

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. Als. 1653, was married to one Nicholas Coats, and that she afterwards, viz. the 10th of October, 1659, the first husband being then alive, married Edward Cage, &c. Upon not guilty pleaded, the first husband was produced at the trial as a witness to prove the first marriage; but the court totally refused to admit of his testimony, and said, That a wife could not be admitted to give evidence against her husband, nor the husband against his wife in any case, excepting treason, because it might occasion implacable diffention, according to 1 Inst. 6. b. And he cited a case of Trover for a billiard-table, port, sticks and balls, and adjudged good, because the port, sticks and balls should be intended things appurtenant to the table. But the court was of opinion that it was too incertain a word, for the word does not immediately sollow the word pot-hooks, but there are divers other things mentioned between; therefore judgment was stayed.

OVENANT. The plaintiff declared upon a custom Custom. in London, That every freeman may take an apprentice, and that infants may bind themselves to serve, &c. After a verdict for the plaintiff, Jones moved in arrest of independent, that this custom is only alledged in sieri, and not in sale, and consequently naught; for prescription consists in the reiteration of acts, which this custom, as here here let out, has not to support it; and he cited the case of 22 E. 4. 8. a custom that every man may turn his plow upon the next land adjoining, if it is not fown with corn; adjudged naught for not adding the usage. So Pasch. 37 Eliz. Bishop's case, a custom bund within a manor, That every tenant of the said manor potuit & potuisset surfum reddere, &c. and adjudged naught. So 21 Jac. Sir William Hatton's case, Licet & licuit for the lord to assess a pain for the breach of a by-law, adjudged void. And the pleading of gavelkind lands, which are partita as well as partibilia, and of copy-hold lands dimissa as well as dimissibilia, seems to demonstrate that the law is so. But the court was of the contrary opinion, and compared it to case of 21 E. 4. 28. and the Old Book of Entries 141. Boylestone versus Radcliffe, Debt on Obligation.

Intr. Hill. 1657. Rot. 243.

THE plaintiff declares upon the statute of bankrupts, Bankrupts, and on the pleadings the case was, That the defendant was indebted to one Studder and the plaintiff in a joint obligation; Studder becomes a bankrupt, and this debt is 1 Keb. 167. assigned to the plaintiff by the commissioners, to the use of the creditors. Finch Solicitor General for the plaintiff; this is a good assignment; and in this case we shall inquire, First, What interest the obligees have? Secondly, What power the commissioners have? Thirdly, If the commissioners here have executed their power? As to the first, The obligation cannot properly be the debt of them both, because an interest cannot be both joint and several, as Sling sby's case, in Coke's 5 Rep. 19. a. and therefore they are both possessed per my & per tout; and then one of them being a bankrupt, the commissioners have power to assign the whole debt due to the bankrupt, and for necessity, because the statute of I Jac. says, That the offignee shall have the same remedy as the bankrupt. Objection. The debt is not the debt of the bankrupt only, but the debt of another also. Answer, It is also the debt of the bankrupt: if the husband be jointly seised in the right of his wife, and is * attainted and dies, the wife dies, the issue is barred, Co. 8. Rep. 72. a. Greenley's case. And by the frank-tenement of the wife, that is intended, that she hath jointly with her husband, by the statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 28. So when the husband lofeth by default land which was the right of his wife, jus uxoris is that which she had jointly with her husband within Westm. 2. cap. 3. there, and this debt is in some sort belonging to the estate of Studder, for he may discharge it. Secondly, Assignment ought to be favoured, and therefore Mich. 23. Car. Baker against Edmonds, Styles's Rep. 62. An affignee brings an Indebitatus Assumpsit for 42 l. upon an assignment of a debt due by contract of 43% and upon Non Assumpsit, and a special verdict, resolved for the plaintiff; for although in strictness of law it is not good, yet in favour of Creditors it was held good. Thirdly, Whatsoever a bankrupt may forfeit, that may be assigned, and there he might have forfeited the whole obligation: and there is a difference betwixt a personal chattel in action and in possession; for of a joint personal chattel in action the king shall have all; but of a joint chattel personal in possession the king shall have only the moiety. 8 E. 4. 4. a. Plowden 259. a. Co. 3. Inst. 35. Object. Perhaps the other obligee hath released. Resp. That is not found in the verdict, and it may be as well furmised that it was in trust for the bankrupt. Wyndham, If there be two obligees, the one cannot release to the other, because a thing in action, and the statute shall not go by the rule of what thing the bankrupt may do, for he cannot assign a thing in action. Twisden, The case of the sorfeiture of felo de se, of a joint debt is by prerogative, but he cannot assign the whole, and if he may, then the other may release it. Secondly, The statute faith, That the assignee shall have the same action. the bankrupt cannot have an action without the other. Foster, The question is, If the commissioners have power to take away the power of the other obligee to release the debt, and if the assignee dies, this survives to the other obligee;

* Jermy against Sir Arthur Jenny, Assumpsit. Suff. * P. 8.

THE plaintiff declares, That whereas the defendant Assumption. the 8th of June 1655, at Layston, in consideration that the plaintiff at the special instance and request of the desendant would from thenceforth admit, entertain and board the defendant and his retinue in the house and samily of the plaintiff, and would find, provide and allow to and for the defendant and his retinue, meat, drink and lodging, and horse-meat for his horses whensoever, and so often as should please the said defendant to repair and come to the dwelling-house to the plaintiff, did assume and promise to pay to plaintiff so much money for the same, as he should reasonably deserve, upon request. The plaintiff avers, That afterwards, (viz.) the aforesaid 8th.day of June, and divers other days and times afterwards, he did admit, entertain and board the defendant and his retinue into the house and family of the plaintiff, and did find, provide and allow the defendant and his retinue, meat, drink and lodging, and horse-meat for his horses several times, and whensoever, and so often as it pleased the defendant after the same 8th of June, to repair and come to the dwellinghouse of the plaintiff, and that he doth deserve 331. 12s. and so brings his action. The defendant demurs upon this declaration, and shews for cause, 1. That the plaintiff doth not shew the time of notice when the defendant came to his house. 2. He doth not shew that the desendant after the 8th of June came to the house of the plaintiff. 3. Because the count is so desective, insufficient, incertain, and wants form, &c. Scroggs for the defendant. The declaration is incertain, because it doth not appear what days the defendant came to the house of the plaintiff, or that the plaintiff found him meat, drink, horse-meat, &c. and therefore on another action brought this action cannot be pleaded in bar; for he ought to have faid, that divers days between the said 8th of June and the exhibition of the bill he entertained, &c. Raymond for the plaintiff. The count is certain enough, for as to the shewing that he entertained him from such a day * till such a day, perhaps the truth of * P. 9. the fact was not so; and then if he had declared so, and the defendant had taken issue upon it, the issue would have been found against the plaintiff, 2. If it had been divers times betwixt the 8th of June and such a day, this had been as uncertain as it is here, for the number of days would not appear, more than here, so that the jury may be ascertained what damages to give. 3. It is shewn that all was after the promise, and that nothing incurred after the bill; for the bringing of the bill shews that he hath not paid; and it seems that it cannot be better; for if he ought to have shewn all the days, or the time in particular, this would have made the declaration too prolix, and to no purpose, for upon the evidence it will appear what the plaintiff hath deserved; and upon this reason it was here adjuged in a case of the same nature, Mich. 1654. that before the said 31. was due, the plaintiff entered upon him, and expelled him. The plaintiff demurs.

Baldwin for the plaintiff, The rejoinder is a departure, for he might have pleaded this matter in his bar, as Dyer 201. Fitz Williams's case. In a Formedon the tenant pleads a fine, the demandant replies, quod partes finis nihil habuerunt, but that such a one was seised; the tenant rejoins that the party that levied the fine was seised in use; and resolved a departure, for he alledges before a skisin at common law, and now would make this good by the statute.

Jones for the defendant, This rejoinder is a corroboration of the bar, and he ought not to have pleaded this thing at the first, because there are several covenants, and he could not know in which of them he would have assigned the breach; and there is a difference where the condition is to perform all covenants comprised, and where it is all covenants and payments, as Chapman's case is, Cro, Car. 76. there the defendant pleaded performance of all; the plaintiff affigued a breach in non-payment of the rent; the defendant cannot rejoin, that it was not demanded, because it is a departure.

Jones for the plaintiff. Here are two points. doubling the 1001. be a devise, or that it shall be only at the discretion of the executors; and it seems clear that it is a devise, and the other part doth not oppose it. 2. If an action upon the case lies for a legacy; and held that it does. aft, I will not infift whether there be any remedy for a legacy at common law. Glanvil, lib. 7. chap. 6, 7. 2dly, An action of the case lies against an executor upon a breach of trust, as it lies against a shepherd for not regarding his charge. And first, the law takes notice of legacies to collateral purposes, as a promise to sorbear a legacy is a good consideration to ground an Assumpsit; and in an action against an executor in his own wrong, it is a good plea to fay that he hath paid all in legacies; and an action upon the case lies for a Tort, as for not performing a contract, Cro. An action doth not lie for a legacy, because it is a testamentary thing, and one of the principal, as appears by the writ of prohibition, Register 38. and the same argument that Littleton uses for the statute of Merton may be here used, that never such an action had been used; and the rule of the civil law is not current in Westminster-Hall, Boni Judicis est ampliare jurisdictionem; and true it is, the common law takes notice of a legacy; but so, as it is a testamentary thing, and as to the Indebitatus Assumpsit which was fo rare, yet it was within the jurisdiction of the common law; and although of late time fuch actions have been used, yet this was lest there should be a failure of justice. when there was no ecclesiastical court; and so it was adjudged in Harwood and Peytoe's case, that an Elegit might Styl. 161, 168. be executed in the glebe land of a parson; but if it were to be adjudged now, it would not be so ruled as it was then.

2dly, If it be a breach of trust, then it is a personal tort, & moritur cum persona, as an executor thall not be responsible for an escape suffered by the testator. Dyer 322. a.

Wyndham, The action doth not lie, for the conusance of a legacy doth not appertain to the common law, for that by our law a man cannot give any thing after his death, because post mortem tunc tua non sunt, and there is not any such duty at the common law as a legacy; and an action of the case doth not lie for every Tort, for it doth not lie for non-payment of rent, and a pension raised by the constitution of the ordinary is not suable here.

Twisden, It was adjudged here, that a legacy issuable out of land is suable here, and originally legacies were suable in the county court; and Rastal Entries 301. a. Title Execut. in Action 5. THE wife having two sons by divers husbands (which were dead) and being seised of the lands in question, in fee, devised them to Thomas her son for the term of his natural life, and if he die without iffue of his body living at the time of his death, then to Leonard another of her fons, and his heirs for ever; but if Thomas have iffue living at the time of his death, then the fee shall remain to the right heirs of Thomas for ever; the woman died, Thomas entered and fuffered a common recovery, and dies without iffue, the recoveror made a lease to the desendant, Leonard entered upon him, and made a lease to the plaintiff; Et si, &c.

Allen for the plaintiff. The points which I shall raise bere are, 1st, What estate Thomas and Leonard have by the 2diy, What operation the recovery had upon the estate of Leonard. As to the first, There is not any estate tail to Thomas, but another estate, for the limitation to Leonard is not upon failure of iffue of Thomas, but upon failure of issue living at his death. 2dly, The contingency is repeated in the second limitation, and this point hath been agreed in the argument of this case before; but now I shall consider whether Thomas hath an estate for life, or a fee determinable. And first, I hold he hath a fee determinable. 2dly, Leonard takes by executory devise, and not by way of contingent remainder.

When a particular estate is limited, and the inheritance passes out of the donor, this is a contingent remainder, and in abeyance, Plow. 35. a. But if the fee be vested in any person, and to be vested in another upon a contingency; this is an executory devise; and here Thomas had a tee-simple immediately, because first he is heir at law to the devisor; and if there had not been any devise to Thomas, but if Thomas had died, Leonard there would have

Here is an express devise to Thomas for life, and the remainder here shall be in abeyance, as in Archer's cale.

Anfw. In Archer's case, Robert had not only an estate for life, but also a reversion in see-simple expectant upon an estate-tail, and therefore the case is not well reported in 1 Co. 66. b. But the remainder there was of necessity contingent, because it is only a devise in tail, and not a gift of • all the estate; and in our case the question is upon the li- * P. 29. mitation of the fee-simple. 2dly, Thomas hath the feesimple, because although it be given to him for life only, yet after it is limited to his right heirs; and the words, If Thomas hath issue, then, &c. are only declaratory. 3dly, This is the meaning of the will; for the devisor took care for the younger fon when the eldest died without issue, as appears by the disposition of the writings by him. 4thly, If the will be capable of divers interpretations, that shall stand which consists with the meaning of the parties, and that is, that Thomas shall have see.

2dly, As to the operation of this common recovery, it feems to me that this executory devise is not barred by it. The reason of a bar in a common recovery, is the intended recompence; therefore if tenant in tail make a feoffment in fee, and the feoffee suffer a common recovery, this does not bar the estate-taii, because the recompence cannot go to the estate-tail; but if the tenant in tail be vouched, then it is a bar, 3 Co. 3. a. the marquis of Winchester's case, and fol. 6. a. Cuppledike's case. Here the recompence in value cannot go to Leonard, because the one estate hath no dependance upon the other, for Leonard hath no estate in him, but in contingency. 2. Recompence in value cannot serve a fee after a fee.

3dly, Leonard cannot falsify this recovery, because he is quafi a stranger to it, and there is not any privity of estate betwixt Thomas and him; and the very same point is resolved in Pell and Brown's case, Cro. Jac. 590. And is Leenard that hath only a possibility may falsify, many conveyances may be destroyed: for admit that A. upon marriage with Jane a-Style makes a feoffment to the use of himself and his heirs till marriage; now by this way if he may destroy this contingency by feoffment or fine, &c. at any time before marriage, it would be very inconvenient.

Finch Solicitor General contra. Leonard takes by way of remainder. This case is out of the reason of Pell and Brown's case, because the devise here was first to Thomas and his heirs, and there is not any case in law where the devisee devisee takes by way of executory devise, but for necessity, as Dyer 330. b. Clache's case, Cro Jac. 415. Webb and Herring, and it was adjourned. Vide post.

Wyndham Justice for the defendant. The principal point in the case is upon the words of the will, what estate Thomas had by them; and it hath been objected that Thomas had a see-simple to avoid a contingency. Answ. Thomas hath only an estate for life, and not more by the will, because the express words of the will are so. 2dly, If he hath an estate in see, there ought to be a transposition in the words of the will. 3dly, This construction avoids all the inconveniences which otherwise would happen; for otherwise it shall be to Thomas and his heirs by way of executory devise, and so such estate cannot be cut off, as Pell and Brown's case, Cro. Jac. 590. But here is a contingent remainder which may be destroyed, and it is more suitable to the rules of law, as it is agreed in Colthurst and Bejustin's case, in Plowd. Com.

2dly, When Thomas hath only an estate for life, with a remainder contingent, the estate for life being destroyed by the common recovery, the remainder falls to the ground, for the recovery vests a fee in the recoverer, and is a discontinuance to the remainder. Littleton, sett. 690.

3dly, Until the contingency happen, the fee descends to the heir in some sort, but not to consound the estate for life, but there shall be an Hiatus to let in the contingency when it happens; so is Archer's case. If tenant for life grant over his estate, the grantee shall support the contingent gent remainder; but if he surrender, then the contingent

Twisden of the same opinion. The main stress lies upon the construction of the will; If Thomas here had been a' stranger, and not heir, he had an estate for life, remainder to Leonard upon a contingency, remainder to the heirs of Thomas upon a contingency, and here the contingency doth not depend on a contingency, but the same contingency which may happen several ways. 2d, Thomas being heir, the fee in the mean time till the contingency happen is in Thomas, and not in abeiance, Hutton, Rep. 118. Napper against Sanders, and here as to Leonard, Thomas takes only for life, but by operation of law he hath a fee. Archer's case is express in Terminis, for there Robert hath an estate only for life by the will, but by operation of law he hath the fee also; and Pell and Brown's case is not like to this case, because there Thomas had an estate to him and his heirs; and in the case of Howel and Auger, Hut. 60. and Winch. 30. The judges will not meddle with the point of limiting one fee upon another. which the lord Hobart there calls the mounting one fee upon another; and here the recovery destroys the contingent remainder to Leonard.

Twisden Justice. The difference is betwixt forbearance generally, there is a good ground of action, although the defendant be neither executor nor administrator; but upon forbearance of the defendant it ought to appear that there was some cause of forbearance.

Allen for the plaintiff. These things are here considerable in the case. 1st, What estate Sir Francis and Hester had, and if the estate be executed. 2dly, What operation the fine hath. As to the first, Here is not any consolidate estate-tail in them, so that they can be said to be seised in their demesse as of see-tail; but they have distinct estates; (viz.) shall engender upon the body of Hester.

Object. This limitation of the remainder to the heirs, males of both their bodies; swallows up the estates for life.

Anfw. Here is not any execution, because all the estates are but one limitation in one conveyance, 2 Co. 60. 6. Wiscot's case, 39 H. 6. 2. b. If lands be given to A. for life, the remainder to him and B. in fee, there is not any merger, because it is but one conveyance. Then an estate to the wife for life, the remainder to the hulband and wife in fee, is an estate for life in the wife, and the fee is in 2dly, It a particular estate be limited to two perfons, and a remainder is limited adequate to them to drown; as to two for their lives, the remainder to the heirs of them, the estates for life shall be consolidated; as Lewis Bowle's case is. But " when there is a particular estate sor life or two, and the remainder is not answerable to them; as to three for life, remainder to two in fee, there they shall remain distinct estates; as A. tenant for life, remainder to B. for life, the remainder to A. and B. in fee, there shall be no merger of estates; so here the baron hath an estate for life; and the wife another estate for life, remainder to them both. 3dly, There is not any rule or case where the estates may stand; that there shall be a merger; for they shall be so taken that the intention of the parties shall stand.

nant for life, remainder in tail, he in remainder disseises tenant for life, and makes a feoffment; this is not a good discontinuance, because he ought to have the freehold and inheritance at the same time; Coke upon Littleton 347. b. And here is not any seisin by the husband in his demesne as of fee. In the case of King and Edwards, Cro. Car. 320. where Jones holds it a discontinuance; it is not like to this case, because there the husband and wife have not fuch divided estates; for the husband there cannot grant his estate distinctly. Here though the estate in remainder vest in both, yet it vests as a remainder, and not to execute the present estate. 2dly, This fine takes its plenary operation without prejudice to any, for by it an intire fee passes, which is the principal reason of Bredon's case; and it is not like where there is an interposing estate, as tenant in tail enfeoffs the donor, it is not a discontinuance: but if there be an interpoling estate, then such feoffment is a discontinuance, Garrard and Blizard's case, Pasch. 29 Eliz. Winington for the defendant. 1. If this fine be a difcontinuance of the remainder. 2. If it devest the remainder.

*As to the first, It is a discontinuance. 1. This estate * P. 38. is an estate-tail in them both, Lit. Sect. 28. 2. Where an estate for life is limited to the ancestor, the remainder to the heirs of his body, there it is an estate by limitation, and not by purchase. Here Sir Francis and Hester were tenants in tail executed. I agree, that if there be tenant for life, the remainder in tail, the remainder to the heirs of tenant for life, they are distinct estates, as in Lewis Bowle's case. But this estate-tail cannot be at any time more executed in the husband and wife than now it is. Vide 1 Co. 98. b. 3 E. 3. 31. Here the estate-tail cannot be granted without the estate for life. THE plaintiff declares, That Nicholas Foster, 12 Jan. 1658. at the parish of Haughton in the Spring, demised to him 2 messuages, 10 acres of land, 40 acres of meadow, 40 acres of pasture and 100 acres of Moor in Haughton aforesaid; To hold from the 30th of Decemb. last for five years, and that the defendant did eje& him. Upon not guilty the jury found a special verdict, That before the faid trespass and ejectment Margery Foster was seised of the faid messuages, lands and tenements in see, and the 8th of Feb. 1652. by her deed of the same date betwixt her of the one part, and Mathew Foster, her son, of the other part, did demise, grant, bargain, sell and set over to the said Mathew Foster, his heirs and assigns, all her part and proportion of that capital mellinge or farm, which formerly appertained to her father Robert Brough deceased, and then in her tenure or occupation, with all houses, edifices, buildings, lands, meadows, pastures, feedings, commons, common of pasture and arable lands whatsoever, as were appertaining or belonging to her part of that farm-hold or tenements with the appurtenances, which the faid Margery Foster then possessed, then being the tenements in the declaration ration mentioned. The tenor of which said indenture solloweth in these words following, viz. Articles of covenant concluded, condescended and agreed upon, 8 Feb. 1652. Between Margery Foster, late wife of William Foster of Helton in the Hole in the county of Durham, yeoman deceased, on the one part, and Mathew Foster, her son, of Helten in the Hole aforesaid, yeoman, on the other part, as followeth: Imprimis, The said Margery Foster for divers good causes her thereunto moving, and especially for and in consideration of the sum of 201. of lawful money of England, to be paid by him the said Mathew Foster, unto the assigns of the said Margery at 50 s. every half year for four years next ensuing after the decease of her the said Margery, Hath demised, granted, bargained, sold and set over unto the aforesaid Mathew Foster, his heirs and assigns, all her part and proportion of that capital messuage or farm, which formerly belonged to her father Robert Brough aforesaid deceased, and now in her tenure or occupation, with * all fuch houses, edifices, buildings, lands, meadows, pas- * P. 44. tures, feedings, commons and common of pasture, and arable lands whatfoever, as appertaining or belonging to her part of that farmhold or tenement with the appurtenances, which the said Margery Foster now possesseth; To have and to hold the aforesaid moiety or part of all the aforesaid premisses with the appurtenances whatsoever, unto the aforesaid Mathew Foster, his heirs, executors and assigns for ever, the the said Margery quietly and peaceably enjoying the premisses aforesaid for and during her natural life. Item the faid Margery is to have Mathew Foster's barn with free egress and regress without let or molestation during her natural life for her full third part of all the houses due to her. In witness whereof the parties above named have hereunto fet their hands and feals the day and year first above written. And the jury farther finds, that after (viz.) 5 Novemb. 1558. the afores id Margery Foster by her deed of feofiment executed by livery and feifin, as well for and in confideration of the natural love and affection which the the faid Margery Foster did bear to Nicholas Foster, her faid son, as for the full sum of 201. did grant, bargain, sell, aften, enfeoff and confirm unto the faid Nicholas Foster the tenements aforesaid with the appurtenances; the tenor of which deed followeth in these words, This indenture made the fifth of November 1658. between Margery Foster of Helton, &c. of the one part, and Nicholas Foster of the same, yeoman, son of the said Margery of the other part witnesseth, That the said Margery Foster, as well for and

Item, The said Margery is to have Mathew Foster's barn with free egress and regress without let or molestation during her life, for her full third part of all the houses due to her. And this deed had not any execution besides sealing and delivery, and then the said Margery 12 Jan. 1658. made a feoffment to Nicholas and his heirs, to the use of him and his heirs; Mathew dies leaving issue Thomas, who commands the defendant to enter.

The only question was, If any estate pass to Mathew by the deed of 8 Feb. 1652. by way of raising an use.

Turner for the plaintiff. That no use arises, because 1. At the common law no freehold passes without the ceremonies of livery and seisin, or attornment, Plowd. 25. a. Nor by the statute of 27 H. 8. cap. 16. because there it is only by bargain and sale. And Coke upon Littleton 271. b. Uses are raised either by transmutation of possession, as by fine, feoffment, common recovery, &c. or out of the estate of the owner of the land by bargain and sale, or by covenant on a lawful consideration. And to raise an use there are four things requilite, Mich. 18 Jac. Winch 59. Buckley versus Simonds. 1. Sufficient consideration. 2dly, A deed testifying it; and therefore Callard and Callard's case was that that no use could rise by parol. 3dly, The covenantor ought to be seised at the time. 4thly, The uses ought to agree with the rules of common law. Here is a good consideration to raise an use according to Pledal's case Plowd, 307. a. But the express consideration is 201. and this excludes the implied consideration of being her son, Expressum facit cessare tacitum, 7 Co. 40. b. Bedel's case, 11 Ca. 24. b. If an ordinary resule a clerk, who is a selon, generally it is good; but if he shew cause of this denial which is not sufficient, as because he wants tonsure or Ornamentum Clericale, he shall be fined and compelled to receive such clerk, 5 Co. 97. a. The law never inquires for an assignee in law, when there is an assignee in deed.

Object The jury have found, that this conveyance was upon both considerations.

This cannot be aided by averment, Dyer 147. a. and it is contrariant; for the deed is found in hec verba, and therefore the jury cannot find a thing which appears contrary to the deed and record, and which is admitted by both parties. 2 Co. 4. b. tute of uses doth not alter the manner of raising of uses; and therefore in London an use is raised by parol, Dyer 229. e. Chibborn's case, and Popham 47. Callard versus Callard, and the case of Dyer 296. b. is not truly reported, for the words were only in future, and for that cause only the use was not raised, Cro. Promise to make an assurance to his fon will not raise an use, and the judgment in Callard's case was reversed upon the mistake that an use might be raised be parol. But now it is to inquire what contract will raise an use at this day. And in this consider, 1st, Negatively, where it appears that an estate at common law hall be conveyed by intendment of the parties, there it shall not pass by way of use, as Foxe's case is, a Roll's Abridg. 786. Trin. 37 Eliz. Rot. 149. B. R. Tebb versus Poplewel. And by Clench and Fenner an use doth not rise to the baron; but by Popham contra The reason of the two justices, because it is only a seoffment causa matrimonii prelocuti; in this case no judgment is entered. But by Popham, If I fay, After the death of such an one my fon shall have my land, an use shall rise. And in Vivion's case, Dyer 302. b. Plowden would aver that the release there made was pro freterno amore, and so to make an use arise. But this case was compounded, and the daughters at law had a small confideration, and the land was enjoyed against the opinion of Plowden. 2dly, When the deed binds to make farther afsurance, there no use arises immediately. Dyer 162. Wingfield's case, Plowd. 302. b. 307. b. Bainton's case, Dyer 96. a. 235. 3dly, When the deed doth not contain a present declaration of the use but in future, 21 H. 8. 19. Dyer 55. e. Burrow's case, 1 Co. 129, 154. Lord Paget's case, Use was void to a stranger, and the case of Buckley and Symonds is upon the same reason, viz. because the tenor of the deed was only by covenants and words de futuro and obligatory, and not declaratory. But in the affirmative, when a covenant and grant is compleat and refers to a future act, there an use arises although the deed be in form of a conveyance at common law, and the word covenant is not necessary, as Bedel's case is: The word Grant raises an use by way of covenant; because covenant is not obligatory, nor hath the effect of a covenant, and with this agrees Tebb and Poplewel's cafe; and Callard's case was not reversed, because the

And by Hale and Atkins, Although the conveyance was a conveyance at common law, yet a use did arise thereby; Mich. 1657. Sympson versus Keyles, in ejectment, On not guilty * pleaded, a special verdict was, That John Pullen the father seised of land 1 Septemb. 1640. by deed gave to his son in these words, viz. The father in consideration of tender uffection hath absolutely given, and livery was indorsed, but not made; and adjudged an use did arise to the son. And a difference taken where the father by feoffment gives to a stranger to the use of himself, remainder over, there no use arises; but when the conveyance is to the party himself, there the use will arise.

Object. Cro. Jac. 127. Osburn's case.

Object. Hill. 11 Car. B. R. Rot. 439. Pitfield against Pierce in ejectment: On not guilty pleaded, a special verdict found, that Thomas seised in see makes a deed, which the jury sound to be in consideration of marriage, and it was in these words: Know all men that I have given and granted, and do give and grant to John my son the lands in question after my death, Habendum to him and to the heirs of his body. John dies and hath issue Elizabeth, John the sather enseoffs Thomas the second son. And if any estate passed to John, the son, was the question; and adjudged that no estate passed.

But it was answered. This was a plain case, That the lessor of the plaintiff cannot have title; for when tenant for life makes a seossment, this is a sorfeiture. And the reason of this case is within the second rule before laid down, because there is not any present execution, but after death. But in our case here, 1st, There is a deed well executed, for the grants the enjoying it; and Callard's case is the same case in point. 2dly, This case is not capable of farther execution, because there cannot be livery. 3dly, Here is allotment of dower. 4thly, When a deed hath two intendments, it shall be construed to establish, and not to destroy an estate. As to the 2d, The addition of 20l. doth not alter the case; the words of the statute are, That the deed ought to be enrolled, when land is conveyed by reason only of any bargain and sale, and here it is not a deed that vests the freehold by bargain and sale only. And if there are two considerations, and both express, then it would be without question, Plowd. 4. Manxel's case. 2. If no consideration had been expressed, it might be averred, as Mildmay's case is. And although one be expressed, yet the other may be averred.

I answer. That case is not agreed, but by the council, 11 Co. 24. b. True it is, another consideration shall not be presumed, but it may be averred. And as to Beaumont's case, Dyer 146. where the difference is, when it is to another person, and when to the same person, that is all one when money is given by a third person. But here needs no averment, because it is for divers good causes and considerations, as well as money; and the court here may take notice of the consideration of him as son; and it was adjourned. Twisden Justice. I have conserred with most of the judges in this case, and they are of opinion that the declaration is good enough without such allegation of repairing, this being in an action of the case; but if it had been in a prohibition, there perhaps it had not been good. Baldwin for the plaintiff. The point is upon the act 3 Jac. which takes notice of the attainder of Henry and George, by which Frances hath good title as heir of the body of William, eldest son of George. 1st, This clause is relative to the will of George, just as if it had been particularly recited, and so is the construction of relative clauses in grants, 9 Co. 30. a. 20 E. 3. Bro. Patents 31 and 91. so in acts of parliament, Plow. 130. Buckley versus Thomas.

1. Obj. The words of this proviso are imperfect, (viz.) and for default of such issue shall be for such estates in tail, and doth not mention the estates.

Answ. In an act of parliament words ought to be taken according to common parlance, as in Arbitrement, &c. and so held and enjoyed are sufficient.

2. Obj. At the time of this act Henry was attainted of treason, and alive, and so no person in esse to take as heir of the body of William at that time.

Anfw. By this act there are five estates-tail to be spent before the will of George is to take place, (viz.) of Duke, Charles, William, Calisthenes, John; and then comes the will of George by this act, and there is no estate in that will to Henry in particular; and it is sufficient if the estate take essection when the particular estates are determined. I Co. 63. Archer's case. And though in strict and legal sense William had not an heir at that time, yet Henry dying before the particular estate spent, the daughters shall take, and the daughters are heirs, as appears by the record; for Henry died 17 Jac. Suppose these sour daughters should bring a Formedon by the aid of that act of 7 Jac. they shall mention Henry and George in the writ, because that act purges the attainder.

2. The intent of an act of parliament ought to be obferved in its exposition, and that was here, that as long as there was any issue of George in being, the land should not

And where Littleton speaks of actions personal, it is to be intended that the action is grounded upon the contract or made his will in writing, and by it gave divers legacies, (viz.) 3001. to, &c. Item. I give to my brother Anthony Norton, 301. per annum. Item, I give all my land in Kent and Sussex to one of my cousin Nicholas Amherst's daughters that shall marry with a Norton within sisten years. And I make Nicholas Amherst my executor. Nicholas Amherst had three three daughters, Elizabeth, Anne and Mary; Stephen Norton the defendant marries Elizabeth; the lessor of the plaintiss marries the heir at law. And the sole question was, if the heir at law or the devisee shall have the land.

Bridgman chief justice. Here are two things to be considered, 1. Here being a devise to one of the daughters of Nicholas Amherst, who marries with a Norton; if this devise be not void for the uncertainty; If it had been to one of the daughters without more faying, it had been without question void, for two may marry with a Norton. But as to this point all agreed, that the devise is good notwithstanding the uncertainty. As to the second point, admitting the devise is good in respect of the person; yet is it be good altogether, because here is an immediate devise to one of the daughters who marries with a Norton. 2. Being limited to Nicholas Amherst to gather rents, &c. and then to Nicholas for fifteen years, and then to the device that shall marry with a Norton. As to the first, although the words are not, who shall first marry with a Norton, yet it is all one with them, for these reasons: First the law supplies these words in a deed, 6 Co. 36. b. the bishop of Bath's case. king's grants, if two constructions be made, and one makes the grant void, then the other shall stand; so here. is agreeable with the reason of the law, because a thing which once vests shall not after be devested. 4. Non prefumitur pluralitas, that more than one shall marry with a Norton, and the words in the will fix in a fingle person. And there is a difference when there is incertainty in the * event, and when in the person, as in all cases of contingencies: And as to Taylor and Sayer's case, Cro. Eliz. 742. that is not law. As to the second point, If it had been immediately devised to the daughters, then if a devise to such of the daughters as should marry a Norton be good. cholas his interest for fifteen years be determinable upon the marriage of one of the daughters with a Norton. As to the first construction, without question there may be a contingent executory devise without an estate precedent limited. to that, because it leaves an estate in the devisor and his heirs till the contingency happen; and where it is to a stranger till such a thing happen, there is difference betwixt them, the reason of law holds in both. If I covenant to stand seised to the use of such a son as J. S. shall name, it is a good conveyance, if he nominate, 1 Co. 176. b. Mildmay's case,

8 Co. 95. a. Manning's case. And here it is to be considered if Amherst had an estate for fifteen years, here he leaves nothing to the heir, because Nicholus had the profits till marriage, and then to the daughter; and then it is a devise made to one for years, the remainder in contingency, which is void. 1 Co. 130. a. Popham 3. The case of the earl of Bedford. But here is a contingent certain, as 2 Bulstr. 127. Robert's case, and Jay and Brown's case in C. B. The question is if good by immediate devise, Dyer 304. pl. 50. A devise to an infant in ventre sa mere is not good. So a devise to a college which is not yet ereced, Hob 32. Cunden and Clerk. In an executory devise it is not void, but shall descend to the heir in the mean time. 1. Although in a conveyance a freehold cannot commence in future, yet in an use or a devise it may. As a devise or feoffment to the use of A. after my death, remainder over, is a good conveyance, because it rises out of my estate. Mich. 13 Car. 1. B. R. Long against Smith. In case of a devise, Cro. Eliz. 919. Hainfworth versus Pretty, and 878. Pain's case. Device to J. S. for fifteen years, remainder to the right heirs of J. D. is not good; but for fifteen years, remainder to the first son of J. D. is good; because the devisor takes notice that he hath not a fon, and intends a future act, and the law aids him which was Inops confilii; so here the devisor intends futurely.

As to the other point, That if it were an immediate device, it is a device to an infant in ventre sa mere for 15 years, if it be with a remainder over it is good by way of executory device. An estate in suturo and a contingent precedent makes an executory device; these executory devices were grounded upon the common law, as Goodcheap's case, 49 E. 3. 16. a. cited in the lord Stafford's case, 8 Co. 76. P. 84. J. 7 Co. 9. a. 11 H. 6. 13: a. Bro. Devise 32. And the words of the statute of 32 H. 8. are not that H. devises to any person or persons, but at his will and pleasure; and see Cro. Jac. 394. Blandford versus Blandford; and so he concluded for the desendant, and judgment was given accordingly.

In the case of one Ferrars, against whom an information was exhibited for forgery: It was resolved by all the justices, That although the jury be charged and sworn in the case of a plea of the crown, yet a juror may be drawn or the jury dismissed, contrary to common tradition, which hath been held by many learned in the law.

that he assumed within six years. The defendant rejoins, as before; and issue was joined upon it, and found for the plaintiff. And it was moved in arrest of judgment, because the plaintiff in his replication hath departed from his count. Cro. Car. 228. Tyler against Wats.

Hide chief justice, Twisden and Wyndham justices for the plaintiff. Because if the defendant had demurred upon the replication, it had been for the desendant; but here he hath joined issue, and therefore good.

Kelyng justice for the defendant. Because the plaintiff ought to have given an account of the time betwixt the time laid in the count and the replication; but after judgment was given for the plaintiff.

On not guilty pleaded and found for the plaintiff, it was moved in arrest of judgment, because he doth not say, that the desendant spoke of the trade of lime-burning, but de arte sua generally, and he may have another trade.

fones for the plaintiff. In ancient time it was the conftant course in declarations to lay a Colloquium of the plaintiff; and it was a grand doubt if it was good without it, until Cro. Jac. 673. Smith and Ward's case. And there resolved de Quer' supplies the Colloquium, Cro. Car. 515. Words of an attorney in his profession. And 2. limeburner is such a prolession of which he may be scandalized.

Wyndham justice. Lime-burning is such a trade of which a man may be scandalized, and so in any lawful occupation whatsoever, for it is his livelihood. 2. The slourishes in a declaration are of no effect, but only to aggravate damages. 3. The saying here De arte sua are applicable to his profession; and a man may speak occasionally to the prejudice of the plaintist without having discourse of his profession. As if two are speaking together of another, and a third person comes in and affirms a scandal of him; this is commonly the worst scandal; and therefore judgment for the plaintist.

Wyndham justice. The prebendary cannot grant this power to make a commissary over to his lesse, no more than he may grant a thing which is annexed to his spiritual funation.

Twisden justice. Although it is not grantable, yet the freehold or power to grant is determinable at common law.

Kelyng justice. It may be granted by the prebendary, for it seems to be a peculiar, and that this office runs with the prebend which is demised, and is not an assignment of the spiritual function, and therefore a prohibition lies.

JECTIONE firme at the bar, of a lease by Philips, dated the 5th of April 1659. The desendant pleaded Not guilty. The plaintiff made title, that the land in question is dutchy land lying out of the county palatine, and there was a lease for years made of it to A. rendering rent, and shews a grant of the reversion the 7th of Fac. to Ferrers and Phillifs under the great seal, county palatine feal and dutchy feal, and that Phillips survived, and the rent was constantly paid to him during the lease, which ended in the year 1658. and in the year 1659. Phillips made the lease ut supra. The detendant shews a patent 8 Car. 1. to him, reciting that former patent to Ferrers and Phillips, and that it was void, because it passed only an interest in reversion, and no attornment had, and so grants the reverfion to the defendant; and this being doubtful whether the former patent were good to pass the estate without attornment, and that upon Co. 4. Inst. 209, 210. it was found specially; the only question in this case being, Whether attornment was necessary or not in this case.

Kelyng

Kelyng justice. The diocese of London is not within the jurisdiction of the Arches, but the archbishop hath a peculiar jurisdiction there, consisting of 14 parishes, Co. 13 Rep. 4. and the mischief here was intended to be prevented by the statute; and so is Mich. 5 Car. 1. Cro. Car. 162. Cadwalder versus Bryan, Hob. 185. Jones versus Jones; and therefore a prohibition lies.

Wyndham. A prohibition doth not lie, because the Arches is within the diocese of London; and if there be any cause to remit the jurisdiction of the bishop of London to the Arches, it ought to be determined by the civilians, according to the statute; and the composition mentioned in Gobbet's case amounts to a licence.

Twisden justice. A prohibition lies. Although there was a composition before, yet now the statute takes it away, and the agreement betwixt the ordinaries cannot prejudice the people for whom the statute was made; and as to Gobbet's case, the reason there is not good, for the bishop of London cannot agree that the archbishop shall not visit; and addy, The composition intended ought to be pleaded.

EBT on an obligation. The defendant demands oyer of the condition, which is to perform an award; and then pleads Nullum fecer' Arbitrium. The plaintiff replies, and fets forth the award, and assigns breach for nonpayment of the money. The defendant rejoins, That one Anne Collins the testatrix of the plaintiff recovered against him on a judgment in an action of battery and falle impriforment, and this judgment was one of the causes submitted, and the arbitrators had notice of it, and they did nothing concerning it. The plaintiff surrejoins, That the award was as well concerning that judgment as of other things betwirt them; & hoc paratus est verisicare. defendant demurs; and Jimes for the defendant, Here the plaintiff ought to have concluded to the country, and not to have said, Et hoe paratus est verificare, for here is an asfirmative and a negative, which make a good issue, which may be tried.

Wild serjeant for the plaintiff. 1. This is aided upon a general demurrer, because only matter of form. 2dly, Here is a departure, because the desendant cannot rejoin concerning an award, when he hath pleaded before that there was no award; and upon debate it was resolved. This is a departure, and therefore adjudged for the plaintiff; but the saying, Et hoc paratus est verificare, where he ought to have concluded to the country, is matter of substance; but for the departure judgment was given for the plaintiff.

If by the common law an executor shall not be charged, if the spiritual court will sue him; there a prohibition lies, because it exposes the executor to a pewassavit; but the reason of Kelyng was disallowed, and a prohibition was denied. But Bendl. 20, pl. 31. takes this difference, That when the action of debt is brought before the writ of error, the action continues good. But if the writ of error is first brought, debt does not lie; but in Limbny and Langham's case the judges held it was all one, and that a writ of error is not any Superfedens to an action of dabt ; and that notwithflanding the writ of error, the bail may bring in the principal in discharge of the mainpernors.

TN an action upon the cafe for an escape against the sheriff I of Nottingham. The defendant pleaded, That during the time the prisoner was in his custody he received a writ of privilege from the marquess of Newcastle, reciting that he was a justice of peace of the said county, and Custos Rotulorum, and that the said prisoner was convened before the justices at the quarter-sessions, and that by the law of England the prisoner ought not to be molested eundo & redeundo during the time that he had eauses there depending, and commanded the sheriff to dismiss him, which the defendant accordingly did. To this plea the plaintiff demurred; and it seemed an ill plea, because the justices can't cause an arrested person to be dismissed. Vide Browl. P, 101. * 1. 15. Patrick's Patrick's Case.

WRIT of Mandamus was directed out of the King's Mandamus.
Bench to Richard Bryan, the senior fellow of Queen's 1 Lev. 65. College in Cambridge, to admit and pronounce Simon Patrick 1 Sid. 346. president of the said college, being Debito modo electus pre- 294, 298, 551, sident, or to shew cause to the contrary. After an Alias 610, 665, 835. and Phories Richard Bryan makes this return: viz. That 164, 259. king H. 6. 30 Martii 26th of his reign, by letters patent Hollingshead under his great seal of England, gave licence to Margaret dit que le seme queen of England his confort, that the might found a col- de E. 4. erea lege to confilt of one president and four fellows (more or less, cest Callege. as the revenues of the suid college should happen to fall out) in the university of Cambridge, and ascertains the place ad Rudendum & orandum. Which president and sellows for the time being, according to such statutes as the bishop of Goventry, John Somerseth chancellor of the Exchequer, and others whilst they lived, or the greater part of them should live, should make, should be governed, punished and deprived. That Andrew Ducket should be the first president; and names the other four fellows, clerks. That the faid prelident and four fellows may afterwards admit more fellows. That the name of the college shall be Reginale Colkgium Sancia Margareta & Sancii Bernardi in Universitate Cambrigia. That 15 April 26 H. 6. Margaret founded the college accordingly, and made the said Ducket president, and the other four fellows, and that they might choose others. The bishop of Coventry, Somerseth and the others before appointed, make and ordain statutes and orders; smongst which they ordain, 1. That the college be called Agen's College, and that in the same be one president, whom all others in omnibus licitis & honestis must obey. That there be mineteen fellows, whereof every one must take holy orders within two years after they become masters of ast, unless the president and greater part of the fellows shall give them longer time. 2. That none of the fellows fow discord, and if any be found so doing, they injoin the first time admonition by the president or his deputy; the second time by the president and two fellows; the third time expulsion. And if discord arise between the president and p. 102. the fellows, or any of them, the president must call the follows together three several times in three days space; and if they cannot compose the differences, then as well the president as the sellows are bound to stand to the award of the chancellor, and the greater part of the prapositi of the colleges, under pain of expulsion. That king James 9 Martii 3 Jac. confirmed all former charters and grants to the university and scholars of the same. And farther, that the chancellor of the faid university for the time, being (if within the town or suburbs) or in his absence, the vicechancellor, per Cancellarium Universitatis prædictæ in ea parte deputat' sive appunctuut', should be ordinary visitor (where no special visitor was nor should be otherwise appointed) of all colleges and halls in the faid university. That no special visitor is appointed of this college. Dr. Edward Martin late president died 7 April 14 Car. 2. and that ever fince Edward earl of Manchester hath been chancellor, and out of the town of Cambridge and suburbs thereof. That Dr. Dillingham is his vice-chancellor. That the town and university of Cambridge are within the diocese of the bishop of Ely. That at the death of Dr. Martin, and ever since, Mathew Wren was and hath been bishop of Ely. That Simon Patrick hath not made his appeal to the chancellor, vice-chancellor or bishop, and therefore he the faid Richard Bryan cannot admit or pronounce the said Simon Patrick president.

Masters pro Patrick. I conceive the return to be insufficient, and the statutes of the college recited are not material, and the letters patent are not well applied. I. It is said That the college is within the diocese of the bishop of Ely; but it is not said, That it is within the jurisdiction of the bishop; and it may be within a peculiar of the diocese, in which the bishop hath nothing to do. I. A college is a temporal corporation, Coke sur Litt. 250. a. Dyer 255. b. Finch. 92. 2. A college is temporal, viz. To pronounce him president. Dyer 209. Deprivation is a temporal act, Et contrariorum eadem est ratio. And it is not requisite that the president be in orders. 44 Ass. 9.

Object. This college is founded ad studendum & orandum, which implies that it is spiritual.

Resp. Coke sur Lit. 342. a. An hospital, though sounded ad orandum, is lay, for every one is bound to pray; and ad studendum doth not refer to divinity. And the sellows here are to enter into orders, but it doth not here appear that the sellows are in orders.

* P. 103. * Object. An impropriation cannot be to a lay corporation, but it may be to a college.

Resp. It may be to a nunnery, Plowd. and yet that is no spiritual corporation. And this court is the proper place for redress and examination of this matter, because otherwise here would be a failer of justice. Co. Inst. 4. 71. And here can be no prejudice to any one by allowing a Mandamus; for notwithstanding such a writ, the party grieved may try his right, viz. the party whom the seignior tellow hath already admitted president.

4. 127. and Allen and Nashe's case.

Jones pro Patrick. This return is insufficient, because it doth not contain an answer to the writ; for the return says that Mr. Patrick hath not appealed; but shews no cause he should appeal, 34 H. 6. 41. but in truth, the return is to the jurisdiction of the court. I shall consider the return in two points, 1. As without reference to the letters patent, and 2 What influence the letters patent have upon the same.

As to the 1st, The king gives licence to the queen to erect a college ad studendum & orandum, and no visitor is appointed; and whether there be any remedy in this court to restrain a grievance, is the question. This court hath jurisdiction to restrain and take cognizance of all misdemeanors extrajudicial. Co. 11.98. Bagg's case. 1. If there be no remedy for this here, there is remedy no where.

Object. Mr. Patrick ought to appeal to the visitor.

Resp. It doth not appear by this return that there is any visitor. And r. The foundation doth not appoint any visitor. 'And 2. The law doth not appoint the founder to be visitor; and if it did, queen Margaret the soundress here was a foreigner and died without issue: And we shall not intend any visitor when 'tis not mentioned, because a return ought to be certain, and is not to be construed by intendment, for the party cannot reply to it.

• Object. The ordinary of the diocese is visitor.

Resp. 1. There is no authority in our law for that, in case of a college. 2. The experience in the university is totally against it; for the bishop appoints visitors, but not the bishop of the diocese. 3. When the letters patent recited in the return were made, the law was not so taken, for 'tis added as a supplement, who shall visit.

P. 104.

nature of this corporation doth not allow the bishop to be visitor; for I take it for a rule, that where the head of the corporation is constituted without the concurrence of the ordinary, there the ordinary hath no jurisdiction, be the corporation spiritual or temporal. 1. For a spiritual corporation, as an hospital. F. N. B. 42. b. 50. p. In case of a free chapel the ordinary shall proceed per pornam corporalem. & non pecuniariam. The king's chaplain may be visited as a private person, but not in his politick capacity 6 H. 7. 7. He-cannot visit a chaplain, because he comes not in by his act. In case of a dean, in temps Ed. 6. Br. Præminire 21. In case of an abbot, 9 H. 6. 32. If he comes in by election without the concurrence of the ordinary. temporal corporation, it is plain; and here this college is not a spiritual corporation, because neither the persons nor employment are spiritual. The president is not to be in orders; the employment ad fludendum & or andum; all learning; ad orandum. So must all lay professions, hospitals, 4 private school, a workhouse is ad operandum & orandum. It is the duty of every one.

As to the 2d, Let us consider what influences the letters patent have in this case; I conceive they alter not the use.

1. Here are no restrictive or negative words, as to the jurisdiction, as in act of parliament, or as in the grant of conusance of pleas, see Quod nullus Justiciarius se intromistats.

2. It doth not appear that there was any visitor at the time of the return. The vice-chancellor ought to be thereunto appointed, and he doth not visit quatenus vice-chancellor.

Object. A presidentship of a college is not an office of a publick nature.

Resp. Bagg's case is, that this court hath conusance of all wrongs, be they private or publick. 2. But then is of a publick nature more than the petty corporations in Cornwal, or any petty borough.

And for authorities, there was no precedent for Bagg's case; but the judges finding the mischief, did out of the soundation of law frame that writ; and here the president cannot have an assise, and therefore ought to have this writ.

P. Fof. * Finth solicitor general contra. I agree the power of this court to be very great, and Bagg's case taken com grand falis is good law. But in all cases where the foundation of a corporation is eleemosynary (be it lay or spiritual) the ordinary is visitor thereof. Linwood cap. de Religiosis Donaibus Verbo Ordinarius. Locus pius non potest sundari eo mode quad non possis Episcopus se intronistare. And it the ordinary is not, then'the founder is visitor; and if neither, then the king, as fountain of authority; and if so, then the king grants this authority by his letters patent. A man cannot resort to this court, but either it must be per saltum or per gradus, Hob. 23. Dr. James's cale, and Kenne's case. Deprivation is not questionable here, and 13 Jac. Huntley's case. The consequence is great. Where the founder names a visitor and prohibits appeals from him, yet an appeal from the visitor is not restrained. Magdalen college in Oxford is so sounded, Absque ullo Appellationis remedio; and resolved inter Dr. Pierce and Dr. Tarbury, such clause doth not restrain an appeal from the visitor; although it was there objected, that he might come into this court, but refolved be ought to refort to the visitor, and the words are contrary to common right. See the clause of Omni appellatione remsta, Co. Inst. 4. 340.

Raymond pro Patrick. I shall waive the exceptions to the form of the return, which is at the best but argumentative; and out of which the consequence intended cannot without much incertainty be deduced, to wit, That the college is within the jurisdiction of the bishop of Ely, therefore not within the jurisdiction of this court of B. R. For a man in some cases may have redress in both jurisdictions F. N. B. 51. b. He may sue here and there for a pension; and that it is within the diocese of the bishop, therefore it must be within the jurisdiction, whereas it may be within some peculiar. Such a return by a sheriff hath been resolved naught, as Plowd. 14. a. Manxel's case. In Habere facias seifman the theriff returns, that another is tenant of the land, and so he cannot give possession without trespass, it is no good return. But I shall waive these exceptions, and speak only to the main point intended in the return, which is this, That this college is within the jurisdiction of the bishop of Ely, who is proper ordinary, and that Mr. Patrick ought to apply himself to the bishop and not to this court, which in short is, That the bishop of the diocese, where no special visitor is appointed, is de communi jure visitor of colleges in the universities. In examining of which point, as to our case, . I shall humbly crave leave to premise three + P. 106. things, which I conceive will be granted me on the other side, for they are very plain.

1. Upon the whole record, upon view of the writ and of the return thereof together, it doth most plainly appear to the court, that the plaintiff Mr. Patrick is greatly injured, and that by the defendant Mr. Bryan, and so deserves no more favour than a Tort-feafor; for the plaintiff by the writ H luggelts, suggests, Quod debito modo electus fuit Præsidens ejusdem Collegii, & in locum Præsidentis Collegii prædicti admitti se obtulerit; and that notwiths ding, Richard Bryan the defendant being seignior fellow, & cui pertinet Præsidentem se electum pronunciare, & personam sic electam admittere, & facere electum Præsidentem jurari & coram communitate Collegii in Cupella cjusdem ad mensam Domini personaliter præsentari, prædictum the plaintist in Præsidentem admittere renuit. The defendant returns, The foundation of the college, and fome certain statutes (so many as he thinks make for his turn) the letters patent, and that the college is within the diocese of the bishop of Ely, &c. and so he cannot admit him; but not one word that the plaintiff was not duly elected, nor that Mr. Bryan is not the person that hinders the plaintiff's admittance, both which by silence are agreed unto by Mr. Bryan; but that the plaintiff hath not taken a right course.

2. That the letters patent as to the matter in question are of no concernment: 1. Because they are not restrictive, so as none other shall visit but the chancellor or vice-chancellor. 2. Because the vice-chancellor must be in ea parte deputat' sive appunctuat', which is not here alledged to be done: So that they make nothing in this case, and this being observed already, I shall speak no more to them.

3. That (contrary to what hath been by the way alledged, but not proved on the other fide) every eleemofynary foundation is not visitable by the ordinary; 'tis said, 8 Ass. pl. 31. That the ordinary shall not visit but where he hath institution and induction; and with that agrees the opinion of Keble, Hill. 6 H. 7. 14. pl. 2. But admit that the ordinary may visit where he hath not induction, yet his power shall not extend to all eleemosynary soundations; for Regist. Orig. 35. a. A prohibition is to an officer of the court of Canterbury and his commissary for the holding plea concerning the grammar school of Fernedon, in a suit between the abbot and convent of Battel and William Piped, * P. 107. Regist. 41. a. Another prohibition * to the archdeacon of Taunton for holding plea concerning an hospital, and yet nothing can be more eleemofynary than schools and hospitals. And could the ordinary by the common law have Mited all foundations eleemosynary, the statute of 2 H. 5.

cap. 1 had been to no purpose, which doth enable the ordinary to correct the abuse of lay-hospitals erected for the purposes therein mentioned. So that I do conceive, as it is of hospitals, so of all other eleemosynary soundations, and without special visitors. 8 Ass. pl. 29. and Coke 1. 10.

31. a. If the hospital be spiritual, the bishop shall visit; if lay, the patron: for so the writ in the Register before cited is, fol. 41. Totum in temporalibus fundatum existit. And the statute De circumspecte agatis, 13 E. 1. Episcopus teneat placitum in Curia Christianitatis de iis quæ mere sunt spiritualia. And Linwood 53. expounding what are Merè Spiritualia, says, Que non habent mixturam temporalium. And if there be no visitors specially appointed, then in common reason, and according to the rule of law, Ne deficeret Justitia, the king. So that now, whether this college upon the whole record be of a lay or spiritual foundation, is the question: for if it be spiritual, then I must acknowledge the bishop of Ely (admitting the court shall intend its being within the compass of his diocese to be within his jurisdiction) in all things spiritual ought to visit; but if it prove a lay corporation, then I conceive the king is to visit, for no founder appears, Ne Curiæ Regis desicerent in Justitia exhibenda, Co. Infl. 4. 213. And I do conceive this college, as it is here described, to be of a temporal and lay foundation. In the proof whereof I shall make no difference between it and other colleges of the universities; for if any difference, it will be on my side, the foundations of other colleges being more spiritual than this.

1. From the end and purpose of its foundation, viz. Ad Bodin. de Rep. fludendum & orandum. 1. Ad studendum, which may be, 1. 3. c. 7. de and by experience we see hath always been humane learn- Colleges Reing principally, viz. logick, philosophy, mathematicks, &c. sel de Trent, And the constant practice founded upon the opinions of 1. 5. c. 3. learned men concomitant with practice. Camden in his Learning and Britannia 381. describing the university of Oxford, says, Clergy Sypo-That the places of learning were in old time called Studia, nyma, Seld. for that they were designed pro bonarum literarum studiosis; ad Flet. c. 9. and in his description of Cambridge, having repeated all the pag. 541, 542. colleges in that university, amongst which he names this of Queen's, speaking in commendation of this university, I will, says he, * let pass little monasteries and religious houses. * P. 108. So that he makes a plain distinction between the colleges in the university and religious houses. And Stow in reckoning up all the colleges of both universities and their foundations. fel. 450, &c. shewing some originally founded for grammar, others for logick, others for other sciences, reckons none of them barely for ecclesiastical matters. Linwood 155. K. Cap. De Magistris, says, A college is only Habitaculum Scholerium; and 161. Cap. De Hæreticis, Verb. Ipsus loci, where treating of the jurisdiction of the ordinary in punishing hereticks, puts this question: What is the place be H 2 Non

Non habens Ecclefiam Parochialem, qui est locus Religiosus, vel Collegium, aliusve locus qui non subest Ecclesiæ Parochiali? So that Collegium (which I take to be in the university) is a place distinct from Locus Religiosus. And in truth, if we observe the foundation of all religious and ecclesiastical corporations and focieties, not one was ever feen whose end was Ad fludendum. Their design was either to pray pro animabus, or to observe such and such canonical hours, according to such and such an order, their mattins, vespers, compline and other divine offices tending to divine worship. which was already by the church prepared to their hands, and such as men of little or no learning might perform. They might contemplate upon what was already invented and studied, and agreed on to their hands, but not excogitate new matters in religion. They went on in a circle, and where they left off at night, they began the next morning. They were not injoined Ad studendum, but Ad cele-Brandum divina. True it is, some members of such foundations have been students, and have profited in arts, and have written learned tracts, but they were not injoined to do so; for 'tis not study, but Celebratio divinorum makes an ecelefiastical corporation. For suppose a man should ere& a society, and direct that it should be to study the schoolmen or the fathers, to enable them in the polemical parts of theology, or to paraphrase or make a comment upon the. bible, as the Schola Conimbricensis did upon Aristotle, this would not be a spiritual corporation; for that the spiritualty confists in celebrando divina & fungendo divinis officiis, and not in studendo. 2. Ad orandum is no more than what is implied, for with all studies that must be concomitant. A lawyer by the lord Coke's rule of Quatuor orabis may be as well an ecclefiastical person, if Ad orandum should make him ecclesiastical. I may say of this word Ad orandum, as Lind-* P. 109. wood expounds the words * of Circumspecte agatis, De mortali peccato. 1. says he, Non intelligas de omni peccato mortali, sed de tali cujus punitio de sui naturâ spectat ad forum Ecclesiasticum; for if the church should take conusance de ratione cujustibet peccati mortalis periret temporalis gladii jurifdictio, for that every evil act would have something of mortal sin in it. So if the injunction of saying one's prayers would make a corporation spiritual, none almost of those, which are out of doubt lay hospitals, but in their creation would be spiritual. Nay in Pit's and James's case, Hob. 121. Prayer for souls was injoined, and yet the hospital was lay. And denomination is from the greater part of the imployment, viz. If it be to celebrate in Ecclesiasticis, 'tis thet that makes an ecclesiastical person. They were Divina mancip' servitio, and did Deo servire. As to the objection, that the fellows are here injoined to be in orders, it hath been answered: 1. The president is not injoined. 2. They may be dispensed with amongst themselves.

Here are four things to be premised. 1. That it is all one in a special verdict as in a general verdict. 2. The nature of the plea is considerable. 3. The infant had no disadvantage. 4. Object. Dame Hale's case, Lease for years forseit by a jointenant.

Resp. The pleadings of this case shew the case to be of a leafe assigned to baron and seme after marriage, and so no moieties betwixt them. /2. The reason of this case is the relation from the time of the forfeiture, which is there a disposition; but in case of jointenancy the one may grant only a moiety; but in our case there is no jointure, and they cannot take the profits together; but there is a priority of time between them, they may be tenants in common by perception of the profits. The words of the act of parliament are, All lands, &c. of which Edward Whaley had any estate, or any in trust for him, shall be vested in the king, &c. But there is also a saving to all strangers; the king shall have the same estate in law as the party had in equity, and not more; and therefore if the trust had been for John for life, the remainder to Edward, the king shall ' have only the remainder, and not the possession. Here Edward can never have the possession of the land. If Edward had brought his Subpæna, he should never have the possession, for there are precedent estates; but the trustees shall deliver the surplus to Edward. It is like to the statute of uses, for this statute of attainder executes trusts. If the trust had been, that the trustees shall permit the Cestur que Trust to perceive and take such annual sum, it shall be vested in the king.

Bigland for the defendant. Consider the case, 1. Without reference to the deed of settlement, and then the case is, 1. When Edward Whaley purchases the reversion he hath a right of sedemption. 2. When the mortgagee and the reversioner join in an assignment; although the money was not paid at the day, yet the trust remains. Where an estate is once vested in the king, nothing shall devest it. 1 Inst. 118. Cro. Jac. 82. — versus Wyndham. Moor 196, 815. Palmer's case. If the trust had been, that Edward Whaley shall have all the profits, then the term it self shall be in the king, Adam and Lambert's case; The king shall have all because a mixt interest. Plow. 423. Wyndham justice. A lease upon condition to pay at: a day to come, and then the lessor makes another lease by estoppel, and then procures another to pay the money; the lease by estoppel shall take place.

Twisden justice. Here by the spiritual law the plaintiff may sue the executor of Denhurst as executor de son tort.

Relyng justice. The executor of Denhurst may be sued as executor of his own wrong, but then he cannot be sued as executor of Denhurst, but as executor of Allington.

Twisden justice. In our law it is so; but in the eccle-

DEBT upon an obligation against an executor. The desendant pleads Non est factum; and upon this the jury sound a special verdict, viz. That the testator of the desendant sealed and delivered the obligation, and that the plaintist was a commission officer, and detained the said testator in prison until he had entered into this obligation. And they sound the act of oblivion that pardons all acts of hostility, and all appeals and personal actions by reason of them shall be discharged, and that all persons may plead the general issue, that the desendant nor testator are not excepted.

Turnor for the plaintiff. There are two points. 1. If this obligation be nulled by this act; and it seems that it is not. 2. If the defendant may plead Non est facture?

And it feems he cannot.

To the 1st, It is not within the words of the act, because there is no mention of an obligation given to another.

2. It is not within the meaning, because it is not a trime or offence. Plowd. 173. Hill versus Grange. Words ought to answer the sense of a statute; the act was intended for the benefit of the plaintiff, who was a commission officer.

P. 125.

* Object. Or relating thereunto.

Resp. This obligation is collateral to the offence, and not relating; for relating ought to be preceding and not subsequent, and therefore it was adjudged, Dyer 14 b. Linley for the defendant. As to the 1st, It is within the words of the act in a legal sense. Personal actions include the causes of action. 1 Infl. 285. 8 Co. 153. Littleton sect. 512. it extends to obligations. There is another clause. viz. That all differences betwixt the subjects, &c. and all that had followed upon it. Here this act of hostility which eccasioned the obligation. 2. This is within the intent, which was to take away all those things which might be the cause of future disturbance.

As to the 2d, If the a& had faid that the obligation shall be discharged, then it ought to be pleaded; but here it is that the obligation shall be woid, and that the defendant may plead the general issue.

Kelyng justice. The act course between man and man, ss a release; that the imprisonment is discharged is clear, then it seems the obligation shall be discharged.

As to the 24, The general issue aids where the defendent cannot justify at common law; here may be a justification at common law.

Wyndhom justice. A contract seems not to be discharged by this act, although many of them were forced by acts of bostility. A man takes a horse in those times, trespass doth mot lie, but upon demand trover lies.

Twifden. Acts of hostility shall be intended matters of torce.

As to the 2d point, The act gives a latitude to the party. And it was adjourned.

3. If the contingent remainder fail, if the other takes.

As to the 1st, This freehold upon which all the remainders depend, determines upon the death of the husband, because it is for their joint lives; although a joint estate to two shall be intended to the survivor, 5 Co. 9. Bruduel's case; but if a particular limitation be, it is otherwise.

To the 2d, Remainder to the heirs of the seme ingen-Ilimitation, and then contingent, so they cannot take, as I' Inst. 22. b. Where the ancestor takes an estate for life, the remainder over to him and his heirs, it shall be by limitation and not by purchase. There is a difference where the freehold is absolute and intire determinable upon life, and not upon a determinable estate for life, where by possibility.

2. If the estate be limited to A. for life, the remainder to the heirs of his body, it is an estate-tail executed, t Co. 204. and there is no difference in this case.

1. It is within the words of Shellie's case, 1 Co. 104. because an estate limited to one for life is a freehold indefinitely. 21 H. 6. 54. a. 33 H. 6. g. b. 40 E. 3. 20. Estate. And upon Non Assumption pleaded, and a verdict for the plaintiff, serjeant Twisden moved in arrest of judgment, because it is not said, that the sather obliged him and his heirs, and therefore it does not appear the desendant was liable to an action, and so the consideration is void. RESPASS in assault and imprisonment. The defendant pleads that the 26th of Feb. in the Palace court one levies a plaint against the plaintiff, and the defendant as serjeant of the said court takes him by virtue of process upon this plaint. The plaintiff demurs.

Offley for the plaintiff. The justification is by several process out of the palace court, and doth not say it is by Pemberton for the defendant. As to the 2d, It is a court of record which ought to have such process. 2. Summons doth not lie in an action upon the case, but a Capias lies in trespass in any case, and it is a general entry in all courts; and the case of Dye and Olive is not to the purpose. To the 3d, Summons is not a process in an action upon the case, but a Pone, F. N. B. 92, and 93.

Object. It is not said, quod profert hic in Curia the letters

And then settles the 1 Lev. 167. reversion upon himself in tail, with a power to make leases 1 Sid. 260. for one, two or three lives, or for 21 years in possession; 910. and then he leafes for 21 years to commence after the first leafe, and then conveys over the reversion by fine; the first lease determines; and the question was if the conusee may avoid this second lease, which, as was admitted, was not within the power, because it was not in possession.

Jones for the plaintiff. There are two points, 1. If the second lease be pursuant to the power in the first indenture. 2. Admitting that it is not, then if the conusee shall avoid this leafe made by the tenant in tail.

As to the ist, There be two parts of powers: 1. To make leases in possession. 2. Leases in reversion. It doth not come within the power to make leases in reversion, because they are tied up to special particulars for any number of years determinable, &c. 6 Co. 33.. Leper and Wroth's case, Cro. Tenant in tail grants a rent-charge, it is void against the issue, tenant in tail mulea a lease without reserving a reat, it is void. Phys. 436. 12 H. 8. 8. The reason of these cases is, because it is an apparent prejudice to the issue; and the statute doth not more fure the acts which the tenant in tail doth by his estate, but with the consequence of the prejudice that may come to the issue by them; and here is an apparent prejudice; for if he may make a lease in futuro he will deprive his issue of the liberty of alienation according to the statute, and alien to levy a fine. This upon the reason since the statutes of 32 H. 8. 4 H. 7. 6 Co. 41. 1 Infl. 223. This legie is a clog. 2. This lease being by way of susure interest, the issue is in paramount this future interest, for it is not an extate until it is executed, for a surrender may be notwithstanding it. Glyn serjeant. I pray judgment for the plaintiff.

The points are, 1. Whether the estate limited to 1. Mary Clark, 2. Joan Brook, be good, and what kind of estate?

2. Whether the fine levied by Mary Clark, and her hufband, 10 Car. 1. do operate any thing upon her interest?

3. Whether the fine levied by the duchess doth turn the estate of the sisters to a right, so that they can any way be barred thereby by that fine and non-claim?

4. Whether a good title be found by the jury for the lef-for Mr. Slingsby?

1. Point. I conceive the limitation to Mary Clark and

Every deed shall be taken most strictly against him that makes it. And if it cannot take effect as the parties express; yet it shall take effect as it may, rather than the deed shall be void. Bredon's case, I Co. 76. If tenant for life, the remainder in tail, the remainder over, tenant for life and he in the first remainder levy a fine fur conusance, &c. to another in see, who renders a rent-charge to the tenant for life; resoved this is no forfeiture or discontinuance; at res magis valeat quam pereat. in good. And although all be by one fine in an instant, yet in judgment of law the lease precedes the grant of the reversion, ut res magis valuat.

30 Ass. pl. 47. If tenant for life, and he in reversion in fee make a feoffment by parol, it shall be the surrender of tenant for life, and the feoffment of the reversioner. But if by deed, otherwise. Vid. 6 Co. 14. 15. Treport's case applied.

In this case it appears, that the intention of the duchess was to give an estate for 1000 years, and the words are, And after her decease, then the one moiety shall be, remain and come, Ec, And the scope of the deed was that she would advance her nioces, being the sisters of Prannel her sormer husband.

1. Object. That no estate passed because it is by indenture, and the sisters not parties, and so they cannot take.

Hob. 313. Winfmore's case, 314. Greenwood.

• Resp. The difference will be between a present estate and * P. 143. an estate in remainder. It's true, he that is not party to the indenture, cannot thereby take a present estate, but may take by way of remainder. Lit. sea. 374. proves this, where he puts the case, If a man by indenture grant an esthe to H. for life, the remainder to another in fee, upon condition, this is a good remainder, and he shall be bound to perform the condition though he was no party. I Inft. 131. Coke on this section takes this very difference that I have taken. And Hob. 313, 314. are judgments in the very point, with that difference. Greenwood's case was, lord Sturton seised in see, by indenture demised to Thomas Hobert, Habend. to the said Thomas Hobart and Michael Hobert, and to one John Hobart and Henry Hobart, the sons of Thomas, for term of their lives, and the life of the longer liver of them successive. Resolved by the court upon great debate, that none could take immediately, but Thomas Holar, because he is only party to the deed, and the rest not named but by the Habendum, then they cannot take but by way of remainder; yet in this case they could not so, became of the incertainty who should take first, according to the book of 20 Eliz. Dyer, the words being omitted pred minatur in Charta, and the same difference agreed in Greenwood's case, fol. 314.

2. Object. That the sisters were not named in the premilles.

Resp. That is not material; and in truth when a remainder is limited it is most proper to come in the Habend. and it cannot be otherwise; and the cases before cited grant the estates in the Habend. The common conveyances of England prove it; A lease for life to A. remainder to the right heirs of J. S. 2 Co. 81. Bredon's case, Gr. Photo. 160. 2. Tracy and Nicholson's case 93. An estate may be granted in the Habend. to whom none is in the premisses. So I conclude this point that Mary Clark and Joan Brook have a good remainder for 1000 years.

1. Because the grant shall be expounded best for the grantees.

2. Because of the intention.

3. It hath a present estate to support it.

Now the next question upon this point will be, What kind of remainder this is, viz. Whether a remainder velling presently or a contingent?

It is a contingent remainder. For the lease made by the duchess to the lord Pawlet, &c. is for forty years, if the P. 144. Iive so long; and after her death, to come, remain that be as to one moiety to, &c. so the remainder is not after the end of the term, but after the death of the tlackets, which may be within the forty years, or after the forty years; so that its doubtful whether the remainder will vest to instant that the precedent particular estate shall end or not.

In which case by the rule of our books the remainder is contingent. 3 Co. 20. in Boraston's case. If one gram to J. S. for life, remainder to the right heirs of J. D. this is a contingent remainder, viz. It's a good remainder if J. D. dies in the life of J. S. but otherwise if J. S. dies

10 Co. 17. Lampet's case. A termor devises his term to A. for life, remainder to B. It is there agreed that this is a contingent possibility. Upon the same reason, if A. shall live after the term, the remainder shall never well; but if during the term he dies, it shall west.

In Plowd. the case put in Colthurst's case, A lease is winde to A. for life, the remainder to R. for life; if B. dies tefore A. the remainder to C. for life, this is a good remainder.

der upon a contingency, viz. if B. dies before A.

So in our case the lease is made to the lord Parolet and others for forty years, if the duchess live so long, wild after her death the remainder to Mary Chirk and Yam Brook for 1000 years; this is a contingent remainder; for the particular estate on which it depends is the estate for forty years, which may or not determine before her death; if it determine before, then the remainder, as a remainder, is gone.

Term. Patch. 1653. C. B.

Object. My brother Bennerd would feem to object that this remainder should not be good because of that manner of limitation; for it is not to begin after the forty years, but after the death; and so the life of the duches interpoled, and compares it to the cale put in Colthurss's case, Ploud. 25. If the estate be limited to A. for life, and after the death of A. and one day after, to remain to D. for life, that is a woid remainder, which is law.

Resp. But the reason is hecause there is no probability for the remainder to well when the particular effecte ends, which is a necessary incident to every remainder; but there is a possibility in our case, for if the duchess die within the forty years, then the particular estate ends when the remainder commenceth. This is expressly agreed in 3 Co. 20. Borasten's case. If a lease be made to A. for twenty years, if B. shall so long live, and after the death of B. a remainder over in fee, this remainder is void, because if the remainder shall " be good, then shall the fee-simple be in abeiance, # P. 145. which the law will not suffer. But if the remainder had been for years it had been good, for that may be in abeiance; and so he concluded the first point.

- 3. Roint. Mow the estate being thus settled (viz.) a remainder for 1000 years to Mary Clark after the death of the duchele, the jury find that afterwards Trin. 10 Car. a certain fine with proclamations thereof made according to the form of the statute by the said Foks Clark, and the faid Mary Clark his wife, in C. B. the tenor whereof followeth, and recites in Lec verba, &c. whereby it appears, that Tiberes Roper, Esq; and Robert Pickring were plaintiffs, John Clark and Mary his wife deforciants. The fine was of the moiety of the manor of Newfils Rockey, Walter Andres and Benezick, eight messuages, sour cottages, and share tofts, and divers numbers of acres in Barkway, Barley and Roylon; so she point is whether Mary Glark by this sine hath passed away her interest, or extinguished it in the lands in question: And he held she had not.
- 4. Because it is not found that the fine was levied of the -lands in question, and if it be not found, being matter of fact, the court will not presume it.

Object. That it appears that the fine is levied of lands of the same name, and in the same place, as are mentioned in she indenture of June 1632.

Refs. If it were so, unless the jury find it to be the same lands, the court cannot prefume it; for it may be of lands of the fame name and in the same place, and yet not the fame lands; and the presumption is against it; for if it had been the same, the jury would have found it so: and it were dangerous for the court to supply it by intendment, for thereby they might subject the jury to an attaint.

2. But in truth it doth not appear the fine was levied of lands in the same place or name, as in the indenture of

P. 146.

For the lands given Mary Clark by the indenture are the moiety of the manor of Newsits, &c. situate in the parithe of Barley, Read and Royston in the counties of Hartford and Cambridge, or one of them; and the fine is of lands in the county of Hartford, and so non constat whether the same.

* 2. Admit the fine were of the same lands; yet I conceive the estate of Mary Clark is neither given away or extinguished.

The case for that is,

The lord Pawlet is lessee for forty years, if the duches live so long; this is in trust that the duchess might receive the profits, the remainder after the death of the duchess to Mary Glark for 1000 years. The duchess being in possession, Mary Clark levies a fine to a stranger sur conssance du droit come ceo, &c.

- 1. Nothing passeth from Mary Glark; for Mary during the life of the duches, hath not any interest in her to grant; for the remainder being contingent is not grantable over, 10 Co. 47. Lampet's case, resolved, Devise of a term to A for life, and after his death to B. this being but a possibility is not grantable during the life of A. and yet this is an executory devise, which is much favoured, 4 Co. 66. b. in Fulwood's case accordingly, and 8 Co. Mathew Manning's case One devises a term to baron and seme for one and twenty years, remainder to the survivor of them; neither baron nor seme during their joint lives may grant this over; so that with some clearness he held that the fine doth not give the estate of Mary Clark, because it is not grantable.
- 2. This contingent remainder is not by the fine either released or extinguished, 10 Co. 48. in Lampet's case, it is said, that a right or title to a freehold or inheritance, when ther it be present or suture, may be released in five manners.

 1. To the tenant of the freehold in deed or in law without privity.

 2. To the tenant in remainder.

 3. To him in reversion without any privity; but an estate cannobe enlarged so.

 4. To him that hath a right only in respect of privity, as if a tenant be disseised, and the long release the services to the disseise.

 5. In respect of privity without right. But in our case the conssess of the fine levied by Mary Clerk have not any of these qualities, for they have neither estate in the land in question, nor privity, or right, &c. therefore the fine cannot operate by way of release.

3. By way of extinguishment or estopped it cannot be; for the right in remainder is not in the conusor; and it is not an estopped to any but those who claim under the commes of the fine; for an estranger shall not take advantage of it, because it is not reciprocal. Vid. 2. Co. Buckler's case.

*3. Point. If the fine levied by the duches to sir Rich- * P. 147. and Tang puts the remainder to a right, so that for default of entry within five years, this is a bar, or the remainder is destroyed. I hold that the fine doth not touch either the estate for forty years, nor the remainder for 1000 years.

As to that, the case is, the lord Pawlet and sir Richard Yang are lesses for forty years, if the duchess live so long, the remainder over to the sisters. Now the clause in the indenture is, that the duchess shall take the profits, and the continuance in possession makes her lessee at will to the lord

Now that she is tenant at will, Vid. 1 Inst. 171. a. If H. enter into lands by the consent of the owner, he is tenant at will, Littl. 108. H. makes a seossement in see upon condition to perform his will, and the seossement in see upon condition to perform his will, and the seossement in see upon condition to perform his will, and the seossements, Little-tw's opinion is, that he is tenant at will; Coke is of that opinion, and so upon debate it was resolved, Hill. 11 Car. 1. B. R. betwixt Wilkinson and Meriam, Cro. Car. 323. In case of a mortgage the perception of the profits doth make the mortgager become tenant at will to the mortgage, and there adjudged that the mortgagee might devise the lands, Cro. Jac. Powseley and-Blackman; so that the duches here hath a rightful possession, and a see-simple in the reversion. And then I conceive the fine doth not stir any of the estates for years, for these reasons.

1. Because it is a fine which works by way of grant, and if there be an estate large enough in the grantor to satisfy the grant, the law will never expound it a tort, if it may be otherwise. Now the duchess by fine grants a see-simple, and she hath a see-simple to grant, and therefore no wrong: upon this reason it is in 1 Co. 76. Bredon's case, tenant for life, remainder in tail, tenant for life and he in the first remainder levy a fine to a stranger; adjudged there that it is not any sorseiture of the estate for life, neither any discontinuance of the remainder, because it is by fine; yet in this case, if it had been by seasonest without deed, it is there agreed to be a sorfeiture and discontinuance. But any estate by fine that operates by way of grant, the law to avoid wrong expounds it so, That every one grants that that he may lawfully grant. so Co. 98. fir Edward Seymour's case. Upon the same reason, if tenant in tail.

*P. 148, bargain and sell in see, and then levies a sine, this sine shall work no discontinuance or wrong. But the law to avoid a tort doth expound it to operate upon the base fee that was formerly granted, which wrought no discontinuance, as it is there adjudged; and yet if the sine had been sevied before the bargain and sale, there it had been a discontinuance; for then the law had had no means to expound it otherwise.

2. Reason. Because the duchess being tenant at will continues the possession, as well at the time of the fine levied, as after, even to her death; and the pelicition of the tenant at will is the possession of him in remainder, and this preferves the estate without any wrong done to it, or turning it to a right. I Infl. 270. The policion of the particular tenant is the possession of the desser, and the possession of the remainders. The possession of a guardian in chivalry or a guardian in focage is the polletion of him in reversion. 29 Asses pl. 161. 20 Affises pl. 9. 22 B. 4. 14. a. Ec. And the possession of a tenant at will doth much more intitle him in reversion to the pessession than any other. For if tenent at will commit any weluntary wafte and dies, and his heir enters, in fuch case the dellor may have an action of trespass vi & armis, &c. without any entry. Litt. fell. 82. 5 Co. 13. 10 E. 4. 18: 21 H. 7. 12. But in case of tonant at sufferance the dessor gannot have trespass without entry. Hence sollows that the possession of the duches is the possession of the lesson, so long as the will continues. The levying of the face by the duches is no determination of the will, for the confinues her possession still; and the levying of the fine by her is a lawful act, and a lawful act shall never determine the 1 Inft. 85. The 3d, and main reason. Because the fine is devied to fir Richard Young, who is one of the lesses for years, and by the flatute of 29 H. C. cap. 10. the effect of fit Richard Young is expresly faved, as appears by 7 Co. Lilling flow's case. If there be soffee for years to the use of another, and the lessor inscoss the lessee for years to uses, the term for years is faved by the proviso of the statute. So if the e tord infents a copyholder to the use of another, the copy- * P. 149. holder's estate is preserved. Then if the estate of fir Rickard Young by express provise of the statute of 27 H. 8. is saved, and no wrong done to it, it follows that the remainder is not touched.

The conclusion. If by the fine no wrong is done, and the effects for years not turned to a right, then no bar can be, and no claim is necessary; and this is resolved 5 Co. 124. Sander's cufe, cited to be adjudged in Saffine's case. If a shan both a future interest, and the lessor is disseised, and the diffeifor levies a fine, the future interest is not touched, and because it is not turned to a right he is not bound to make chine. And the case put out of Ploud. 373. Stower's enfe. If M. levy a fine in which another bath title of comands, and five years part, the commoner is not barred, became the line doth not do any wrong to it.

2d Refolation. That no fine burs any estate in possession, reversion or remainder, which is not devested and put to a sight; and there it is also said, that he that at the time bath not any title of entry shall not be barred, so the possession continuing in the leffers, and not being turned to a right, there it is not touched nor barred by the fine.

Att Reisson. Because the temainder limited to Mary Clark and Joan Brook is contingent, so that at the time of Whe five levied it is not welled in them, but in the cultody of which case a fine levied by a stranger doth not but it, is Co. Podger's case, It is said when the estate is so fettled, that he who claims the interest of it, cannot by any pelibility enter and make his claim, he shall not be barred by the flatute; for it is not reason that he shall be barred by hon-claim who is not guilty of any laches; and therefore H. who had a future interest at the time of the fire Levied that not be barred. So in the case of seoffee upon condition, if he levy a fine, and five years pass, and then the condition is broken, he is not barred. And now in our case at the time of the fine levied the sisters could not enter,

Jehn Grant P. 150. seised of lands in see, held in socage, devises them to his nephew John Grant when he comes to his age of twenty-five years, to hold to him and the heirs of his body; John Grant the nephew, after his age of twenty-one levies a fine of 'em to a stranger, and having issue after attains to his age of twenty-five years, and dies.

Three points were adjudged.

1. That the gift and devise to John Grant the nephew, was in contingency and future at the time of the fine levied.

2. That the estate-tail in contingency was not barred by the statute of 4 H. 7.

- 3. That this estate in contingency was barred by the stat. of 32 H. 8. cap. 26. And this by force of the words of that statute, All fines levied by proclamation, &c. of any mannors, lands, &c. before the time of the said fine levied, in any wise intailed to the person so levying the sine, or to any of his ancestors: And this is a resolution for us, and our case is more strong; for in our case the sine is levied by a stranger, but in Grant's case by the party himself, and yet not touched by the statute of 4 H. 7. And our case clearly is not within the statute of 32 H. 8. for that there is no intail per que, &c. And admit the particular estate of 40 years should be turned to a right, and displaced, this right supports the remainder. 1 Co. Archer's case, Co. Chudleigh's case.
- Object. The last thing objected was to the verdict, which found, that the interest of Mary Clark, Katharine Brook and Frances Brook came to the lessor, and doth not find how.
- Resp. It is good enough; for when the jury finds the interest to come to the lessor, the court intends all circumstances which conduce to that sact; for the court does not doubt when the jury doubts not. 4 Co. Fullwood's case 65. The jury sound that Thomas Castle came before the recorder of London, and mayor of the staple, and acknowledged himself to owe to Thomas Rivet 2001. Exception was taken, that there was no finding of any statute there, for it was not found that this was secund forman Statuti, and that it was by writing.

Resp. It is good enough, for all circumstances shall be intended.

The court did object and doubt that the remainder limited by the two fisters was void, because, 1. That it could could not pass to them by way of present estate, because they were not parties to the indenture. 2. It could not be a contingent remainder, being a remainder for years. P. 151. depending on an estate for years; and there cannot be a contingent estate for years; because a lease for years operates by way of contract, and therefore the particular estate and the remainder estate operate as two distinct estates grounded upon several contracts; but it is true, such a remainder may be of a freehold, as upon an estate for life, the remainder to the right heirs of J. S. and then in law the particular estate, and the remainder, is but as one estate in law, and is created by the livery.

a. The court objected, that the sisters were barred by the fine and non-claim: for admit it be by way of contingent remainder, when the remainder vests the sisters are bound within five years after to enter; as in case where tenant in tail, remainder in tail doth levy a fine, and tenant in tail dies without issue, he in remainder is bound to enter within five years after the death of the tenant in tail, else

of Robert, and that he devised to his executors, by which it was provided, that his executors should found and endow the faid hospital, and make by-laws, and that the heirs of Robert should have the patronage and visitation of the hofpital; and the king by letters patent intending to incorporate the said hospital according to the said will, and that the charitable cure might be performed according to the intent of the founder, constituted the corporation, and granted licence to purchase the endowment intended. And he farther granted, that Edward earl of Dorset, who was heir P. 155. * male of the founder, should have the patronage and visitation. Finch solicitor general, for the earl of Derset; and he said that this Scire fac. is rather Process in the name of the king, than the Process of the king himself; and such Process doth not consist with the interest of the crown; and reduced his argument into five heads. 1. This Scire fac. need not to be brought in the name of the king. 2. This Scire fac. doth not lie at the suit of a subject. 3. A Scire fac. doth not lie to repeal part of a patent. 4. This patent is good in toto, 5. Admit it is not good in toto, yet it is not fit to repeal this patent at this time.

As to the first. Because the conclusion of the writ is · ad damnum of a particular subject, and the king cannot have a Scire fac. but where the thing is in deceptionem Regis, or ad gravamen populi. 10 Co. Magdalen College's case. The king is called Sponsus Regni, and the writ of ad quod damnum is, Ita quod patria non gravaretur; but if the writ be not brought against a publick injury, the king cannot make a private quarrel himself; and no Scire facias lies to repeal a patent but in two cases. 1. A Scire fac. to repeal a prior patent is always at the suit of a subject, 2 E. 3. 7. b. Hill. 16 E. 3. Fitz. Grant. 53. the case of the burgesses of Wells, 17 E. 3. Dyer 269. a. pl. 18. Term. Trin. 18 Car. 2. B. R.

prince could not have those lands without the king by seifure. 2. Here it doth not appear to the court that the ladies ever petitioned to the king to have any such writ of Scire sac. Pasch. 27 Eliz. Sir Henry Nevil in chancery brought a Scire sac. to repeal a patent, and the writ was unde nobis supplicavit.

Object. The king may maintain this Scire fac. because it is in deceptionem Dom. Regis.

* Resp. Admit that it is, yet no deceipt will be sufficient * P. 156. ground for any such writ, if it be not to his damage, or to the damage of his people.

2. The king here is not deceived, because he recites the will, and yet goes contrary to it, which is according to his prerogative; and there is a difference where the king takes notice of the estate of the testator, and where he hath not notice, but only by the suggestion of the party.

To the second point. Such Scire facias doth not lie at the fuit of a subject, for two reasons. 1. Because although the king may bring a Scire facias in chancery to repeal a patent; yet when a subject repeals a patent of another, not upon privity but grievance, there it ought to be repealed in parliament. Hill. 16 E. 3. Fitzh. Brief. 651. Mich. 21 E. 3. 46. b. pl. 65. It ought to be grounded on matter of record, and not upon suggestion of matter of fact only. If the king grants two patents of the same thing, the second patentee cannot have a Scire facias against the first. Mich. 7 E. 4. 22. b. by Catesby, Dyer 176, 277. a. pl. 54. Where the title of a subject appears upon record, there he may have a Scire facias, otherwise not. 11 H. 4. 67. Fitzh. Scire fac. 70. 12 R. 2. Fitzh. Forfeiture 20. 41 Assife, pl. 25. Fitzh. part of a patent. Letters patent may be void in part, and good in part, but they cannot be repealed in part; 1. Because the record of the patent is intire. 2. The form of the entry of the judgment in a Scire facias to repeal a patent, is quad literal Patentes vacentur, and not part of them. Dyer 197. In the prince's case, they are repealed quad Maneria, &c. but it doth not appear there were other lands. And there is a difference between a Scire facias and a Qua Warranto, for a Qua Warranto may be good for part, and ill for another part, because the record is not to be touched by it; but upon a Scire facias the record is to be

 - Resp. Upon the Book of Entries appears a rational difference; for if a fine be reversed, generally the writ issues to the Custos Brevium to cancel the fine. Coke's Entries 252. Gage's case. Rasial's Entries 278. a. But when there is a reversal as to part, there is no such writ. Coke's Entries 257. b. Peirs and Parmiter's case. So a fine may be reversed in part, but not cancelled in part; And as to the case of ancient demesne the fine may be reversed by writ of deceipt; but the judgment is only quod Deminus rehabeat Curiam suam. Rastal's Entries 100. b. 7 H. 4. 44. Countels of Kent's case. In case of an obligation for performance of covenants, the obligation may be good for part, and not good for the other part; but the obligation cannot te cancelled for part, and stand good for another part; and here the judgment ought to be quod Litera Patentes concellentur. There are precedents in point, Pasch. 27 Eliz. Privit versus Ward. In a Scire facias to reverse a patent for a walk in Cranburn chase; the judgment ought to be given in B. R. when the record is brought there to try the issue, but judgment was not given. 28 Eliz. The countels of Bath brought a Scire facias to repeal a patent for a market; l'ide such a Scire facias, Mich. 11 H. 4. 5. pl. 13.

Object. Then all the patent is to be repealed if any part be desective.

Resp. It cannot be repealed upon this writ. 2. Then the whole corporation is dissolved, and all the revenue returns to the defendant.

To the fourth point. This patent is good in the whole, because although the king takes notice of the will of Robert, yet he is not tied to pursue those rules in the erection of the college prescribed in the said will, because a corporation is a creature of the king. 11 H. 7. 27. b. and 28. 21 E. 4. 7. a. by Choke. 2. A devise of land to one after the death of J. S. is a present devise; and a devise to the first son of J. S. when he is born, is void without an estate of freehold precedent.

questions are:

t. If the devise to the heirs of J. S. (he being then alive) be good?

2. The feme here having an estate for life, if this alterate case?

3. If the recital here alter the case?

4. If the words (viz.) If he live to fourteen years, alter the case?

As to the 1st, It is a ground, that judges ought to keep within bounds: and it is said, that if Matthew Manning's case had been to be adjudged now, it would have been otherwise determined. A devise to the heirs of J. S. he being alive, is a void devise. Power to make leases to one, two or three persons, he cannot make a lease for the life of the first son of J. Resp. The greater opinion is, that such devise is void; yet an intant in ventre sa mere is in Esse, and may be vouched; the earl of Bedford's case.

To the 4th. It is a contingent upon a contingent.

Twisden justice contra. It is a good devise to the heirs of Sarah; and he took a difference between acts executed, and devises, because a devise may be in future; as a devise to J. N an ejectment a special verdict found, that the lands in question were parcel of the inheritance of the archbishop of York, and usually and anciently demised by lease. For 12 Decemb. 1604. the archbishop of York on surrender of a former lease demises this to Robert Nevil for 21 years under the old rent. archbishop, who died in 1641. and William was made archbishop, during all which time the land was in the hands of the archbishops. In 1642. an ordinance was made for sequestering the lands of the church; and after (viz.) in 1646. there was a sale of the lands of the church; Williams dies 1646. and after (viz.) in 1660. Fruyn was made archbishop, who made a lease for 21 years to the lessor of the plaintiff; Fruyn dies, and Stern is made archbishop, who demises the land to the defendant.

The question is, If this lease made by Fruyn be good? Moreton justice for the defendant. Because the verdict as insufficient and void: 1. Because here is a demise of divers things, and the verdict finds only for part, and nothing for the residue. 30 E. 3. 33. 1 Inst. 227. a. 2. The jury finds that the lands in question are part of the inheritance of the church of York, and commonly demised, and doth not say for what time, which ought to be for the greater part of 20 years.

As to the matter in law, the lease is not good by 32 H. 8. And to this point it is to be considered, what the law was before this statute: The bishop could not by himself do any prejudice to the church, he could not disclaim, release, grant an annuity. 1 Inst. 102. He might grant the inheritance with the confirmation of the dean and chapter; and P. 166. before the third council of Nice 710. without such consent, receipt of rent by the successor would bind him. In this Ratute the proviso is considerable; the statute doth not mention bishops, and the greater mischief is of tenants in tail; and this statute aimed at the benefit of the successor; leafes ought to be in the form there prescribed. Bridgman's Rep. the bishop of Chichester and Freedland's case. Here was 32 years without any demise, but kept in demesne; and it ought to be demised within eleven years before. Inft. 44. Cra. Eliz. 707.

If the temporalities continue twenty years in the hands of the king, this doth not hinder the demise, because the king cannot charge the church.

A bishop is not compellable to demise his lands, no more than another lord of copyhold. If tenant in tail make a lease for 21 years, which expires, and then the land continues twelve years undemised, and tenant in tail dies, his issue cannot demise this land by the statute.

doth not hinder the demise; but if it be in the king's hands it is a great doubt, and this statute being an enabling law, implies a strong negative, that it shall not be otherwise, being an introductive law. For authorities, the case of Cro. Eliz. is a stronger case, Cro. Eliz. 708. Mallet versus Mallet, and sir John Marvin's case in Harpur's Rep.

Twisden justice for the plaintiff. As to the exception to the verdict, the first he allowed, but not the latter. As to the matter in law; in this statute there is an enacting part and a restrictive part; this case is of a new nature, and never brought in question before.

Here it is to be inquired, 1. If land be kept in the hands of the bishop, if it may be after demised by the successor?

2. If the lessee surrenders, and the bishop keeps the land?

3. It was demised here in 1604. and Octob. 1630. sutrendered to Harfnet, and it was not for eleven years together in the hands of any bishop.

The statute extends directly, and not obliquely to bishops. Here is a shell and a kernel, words and meaning. Space, and term of twenty years is not all one here. preamble is the key for reformation thereof, &c. which implies a mischief before. They were to pay first-fruits, and P. 167. yet they could not " raise money without the chapter, who would have money also to consent. As to Mallet and Mallet's case, the chief gift of that case was concerning the comprize of lands by the name of a manor. And as to the case in Harpur's Reports, it is only, Nota, diclum fuit per Cation and his companions.

As to the 2d. If a bishop make a lease for years, and the lesse surrenders, and the bishop keeps the land in his hands, as long as the leafe hath existence, the successor notwithstanding may demise the land. 1. Because the lease hath existence to some purpose, 9 E. 4. 18. and the lord

Kelyng chief justice for the plaintiff. He agreed that the first exception to the verdict is good; but as to the point in law he concluded for the plaintiff. The design of this flatute was for the benefit of the letliers in one degree, and for the * bishop in another; it was to avoid long leases, * P. 168, and in reversion, and the ancient rent ought to be reserved. If this flatute shall be construed for the defendant these inconveniencies will enfue.

7. A lease expires, and then the bishop is disselfed for twelve years, then he recovers. The drift of the statute was only to restrain the demises of ancient palaces and demelnes, and not other things.

2. It shall be in the power of a bishop to repeal this statute.

In the proviso are two clauses of qualification, viz. Let 2. Or occupied by farmers by the space of twenty Jun; the words by the space of twenty years extend only to the second part of the disjunctive, and not to let to farm. And this hath been the exposition of this statute in the case of the bishops of Winchester and London for their houses lately. And as to the cases of Mullet and Mullet, and Screg's case, they are not to the purpose; and so he concluded for the plaintiff. And for that the court was divided, no judgment was given. WRIT of error to reverse a judgment given in C. B. in a writ of partition upon a Nihil dicit, of divers manors, and view of frankpledge, and free warren, and other things of great value. Upon In nullo est crratum pleaded, the counsel for the plaintiss in the writ of error assigned divers errors, some in form, and others in the Tubstance of the proceedings.

Here is a discontinuance, because there is not any continuance for the tenant per idem dies, when the partition shall be made:

The errors in substance are: 1. No mention is of the view of frankpledge, and yet in the writ is mention of the view of frankpledge, not as appurtenant to the manors, but distinct; and here is not any mention of it in the partition; and cum pertinentiis shall not supply it. 2. Resp. It was subject to repeal originally in the creation. Hale chief baron centra. I premise three things, 1. Why I cannot give an opinion to repeal these letters patent without grand cause. 2. How the case stands here upon the patent and the will. 3. The reasons why this writ of Scire facius will not lie in this case.

As to the first. This is the first case in which clauses which have a general influence through the whole patent 2. It is a case of great moment in parmay be repealed. ticular, because by this repeal the indowment is void; as the case of the abby of Fountain is; and here no master nor other officers may subsist. 3. Because there is no necessity to repeal them, because there are void clauses, and they may be tried at law; and that is the reason that judgment upon an issue tried in a Scire fac. to repeal a patent in B. R. is not there given, but the record is to be returned into this court, which is not in another case; and those things are of long continuance, (viz.) from 6 Jac. for then was the will, and the letters patent were 7 Car. 1. and it cannot be known what transactions have been passed betwirt the king and the heirs of Richard earl of Dorfet during the time.

As to the second observation, upon the patent and the will. 1. No will of Robert appears by other record than by recital in these letters patent. 2. Although Richard son and heir of Robert was dead at the time of the letters patent, it appears not. 3. Although de facto Edward was father of Richard, it appears not. 4. It doth not appear that the land, upon which the hospital was built, was the indo ment of the hospital; and if no indowment, no hospital 1. It cannot be understood that Edward was heir to Robert because here is an averment contrary; and he might be male in vulgar appellation. 2. The clauses are not subst tive and independent clauses, but have an influence thro the whole letters patent; and so by the repeal of them patent shall be vitiated, viz. the naming and appointme of the several officers making of rules, constitutions by-laws; and in this particular, this patent is not like the patent in the Prince's case. 3. If here were not des patory clauses, viz. to create a corporation according to intention of the will, this will create a right to the asset, otherwise the name shall be altered. 4. The lince to amortize. 5. Those clauses are not simply void, conly voidable, because the king takes notice of the will earl Robert. 6. The grant made to Edward to make laws, is to him, and the heirs male of his body; but neerning election of members, this is to Edward, and theirs male of the body of Robert.

As to the third. Such Scire facias lies not in point of m. 1. A patent may be repealed in part, but this shall only in clauses independent. Fitzh. Petition 19. 2. There ill be an infinite inconvenience, if by this way part of is patent may be repealed; for by this way a good patent sy be made naught, and e contra. 3. The king hath faid whe will have this corporation qualified, and he is dead, id now we will make other patrons after his death. he king hath said how it shall be governed, and not otherife. And here is no necessity to repeal this, because if were be void clauses they may be tried in assize, and therewe the writ is ill. 2. It dotn not lie for the matter. 1. ecsuse the king takes notice of the clauses in the will hich are defired to be repealed, and therefore he is not ectived in this grant. THE case was such. Rinch brought two actions on the case against a widow in the Pipowder-Court in Glewcester about two years ago; and about January last brought two other actions of the same nature against the same party. Upon the two first, judgments were given long since, and upon the two last the defendant had demurred, and judgment given against her, and writs of inquiry were executed, but no final judgment given. before satisfied; but notwithstanding the said writs of error, after the return thereof was out, the plaintiff entered judgment upon the two last actions, and took out execution upon the same; and the defendant moved by Saunders for the attachment. But resolved per Cur. there is no contempt, because when there were two judgments formerly entered, the town-clerk might certify them to fatisfy the writs of error; and he could not certify the other two, because no judgment was given upon them, and the writ of error commands to certify si judicium redditum sit, and the defendant might have helped this by moving the court below after costs taxed to have judgment entered in the two last actions as well as the plaintiff, for judgment ought to have been given at the request of either party; and so the contempt was discharged.

Hatton Rich, brother to the earl of Warwick, who was indebted to him 3001. and this Saunders having been delayed for three years by the said Mr. Rich's obtaining a protection, and at length taking the prison of the King's Bench, he wrote a letter to him, wherein he tells him, That if he had any honesty, civility, sobriety or humanity, he would not deal so by him; and that he would one day be damned and be in hell for his cheating, or words to the like effect, and cited several places of scripture to make good his allegations. And in the information was laid, that he published this letter in the presence Quamplurimorum; and upon Non Culp, the desendant was found guilty of all; whereas (in truth) if the matter had been taken care of at the trial, the publication was not proved.

And now Saunders moved in arrest of judgment, for that the substance of the letter is not scandalous, but impertinent and insignificant, and shews a zeal in the defendant to manifest his sense of the injury he hat sustained by the non-

Master for the plaintiff, The single question is, Whether a bond given for caution be good? * It is clear, that before an excommunicate person be assoiled, * P. 226. be must give caution, and to compel the ordinary to take the same a writ lies at the common law, De Cautione admittenda, F. And an action upon the case lies against the bishop for not taking fuch caution, if the person excommunicated requires it, Co. 2 Infl. 623. or the bishop may be indicaed, ibid. But what is Idonea Cautio is left to the spiritual court to determine; and our law is not judge thereof. And there are three forts of cautions, 1. Juratoria, when the party is poor and can give no other security. 2. Fide-jussoria, hy bond or Other security. 3. Jones for the defendant. He made three points. 1. If any bond ought to be given to the bishop. 2. If this bond be good in law. 3. Admit it not to be good, then whether it may be avoided by plea.

True it is F. N. B. 63. speaks of caution, but not of security by bond; and Regist. 66 and 67. describes the caution to be pignoratitia; and the reason is, because the caution is controllable by the successor, and not by the executors of the bishop, as it will be in case of a bond.

2. This bond is not good, because the same ought to be given to the bishop, or to his surrogate; and here it is given to the bishop and his vicar general.

And as to the objection, That it is the usage and practice, Tis answered. Such usage never came judicially in question.

Mary marries the lessor of the plaintist; the desendant Ralph enters, and the jury concluded, That if any use did arise to Ralph by the said indenture of 21 Jac. then they find for the desendant, otherwise for the plaintist.

Jones solicitor general for the plaintiff. That no use arises to the issue of the second wise. Here are two points 1. If by this covenant an estate be raised by way of suture use, to commence after the death of Michael the covenant-or. 2. Admitting that no estate do arise, whether an estate by implication does arise to the heirs of the second wise.

7. No estate arises here as a future use, for these reasons.

P. 229. * 1. An use may arise in future to a person in esse; but it cannot be limited to one in being, to commence after the death of the covenantor, because a covenant shall not bind the heir, where the ancestor is not bound, and (ergs) a covenant that land shall remain to A. after my death, doth not raise an use. 21 H. 7. 18. pl. 30. Dyer 55. a. pl. 3. Hob. 313. 2. Whether this shall amount to a covenant to stand seised to the use of him and the heirs of his body; and I hold it doth not. i. Here appeareth no intent to charge the estate in the life-time of the covenantor. Suppose I covenant, that after the death of J. S. I will stand seised to the use of J. D. that is by way of suture use.

fon shall have his land, tailes a use to the son.

Resp. That case is only alledged by counsel, and not by the judges. And Winch 61. Buckley and Simond's case is contrary, and so is Mitford's case. Coke on Litt. 22. b.

And a man cannot make his right heirs purchasors.

Levinz for the defendant. 1. Here is a good use raised to Michael Mitsord the father by implication, viz. To him for life, the remainder to the heirs of his body; and this appears by the lord Paget's case, 1 Co. 1'54. a. Where the estate to Furmer, and others, during the life of the lord Paget being void, and the other estates not being to commence till after his death; the lord Paget was resolved to have an estate for his life by implication. 1 Anderson 263: pl. 270. Surrender to the use of the right heirs of the copyholder; and it is frequent for uses to arise by implication, 2 Leon. 218. pl. 275. Himson tate. 'Anderson 245. pl. 258.

2. Admit that there cannot be such an use by implication; yet this is a good use to commence after his death, as a new springing use.

Object. This covenant shall operate by way of contract: Resp. It may do so in a subject proper for it; but here the land is bound by it. As to the case of Dyer 55. a. it is not a covenant to stand seised; for if it had been so, an use would have arisen. 2 Roll. 788. pl. 1. Buckler versus Simonds. And here the covenant would be void if it did not raise a use; and springing uses frequently happen upon a contingent. 1 Co. 155. b.

*Hale chief justice. If a man covenant to stand seised *P. 2204 after his death, it will raise a use to commence after his death, as well as during his life; for though the heir is not bound where the ancestor is not bound, yet land may be charged in the hands of the heir by the ancestor, and a use doth charge the land; but there may be improper words to charge the land, as the case of H. 7. and Dyer 55. is.

If H. covenants to stand seised after his death to the use of J. D. he hath the see till his death. Paget's case comes not home to this case, because there was only an estate for life drawn out, and no contingent use. Here are clauses in the deed, which shew that it was never intended that there should be an immediate estate upon the heir: Adjournatur.

Winnington for the plaintiff. Here are three points. 1. If here be a contingent use raised? And I hold there is not. 2. Whether any estate arises to the covenantor by implication? And I hold there duth not. 3. Whether the issue by the second venter shall not take by purchase? And I hold he shall.

Is A future use may be raised upon a contingent. Plowd. 301. Sherington versus Pledal, & in suturo. 2. Here is no estate-tail vested in the covenantor, because no intent of the parties so to have it; but by implication he hath an estate for his life. The covenantor is in of his ancient seisin till the use arise, and not as in case where a use arises by transmutation of possession; and here is a new use raised, and therefore saichael could not be in of an estate-tail executed.

3. Ralph shall not take as a purchasor, for here is a description of the person, rather than a limitation of the estate.

Sanders for the defendant. Ralph here shall take quass by discens. Adjournatur. And judgment given for the defendant.

Hale chief justice. When error in fact is well assigned for error, In nullo est erratum amounts to a confession of the sact; as if infancy be assigned, the plaintiff cannot plead in nullo est erratum, because by it he confesseth the insancy, but he ought to take issue; but if the party assign for error, that the court did not sit, or that the desendant did not appear, which assignments are of matters of fact, but not well made, there In nullo est erratum amounts to a demonstrate.

Courtney contra, for the plaintiff. It is no good prescription, because it hath no good soundation nor meritorious consideration. For 1. Reparation of the key extends only to ships lying at the same to lade and unlade; and the keeping of a bushel is no cause, no more than the case of aulnage, i H. 4. 14. Dyer 117. 2. This is a duty from the merchant, not from the ship. 3. The sail is an unreasonable distress, because it disables the whole ship.

Hale chief justice. This prescription is only for a wharf, not for a port, and here ought to be reasonable recompence for the prescription. For Magna Charta says, Omnes Mercatores peregrinos, &c. without unreasonable toll; and he who hath a port ought to find and provide weights and measures, and other thingt. And in this case the avowant may as well prescribe to the confines of France, and therefore it is not a good prescription; as the case of the Belman of Litchfield, More; And it is not said what salt was in the ship, and there may not be above two bushels; and therefore judgment was given for the plaintiff.

Devise.

THE case was, that in 1663. Quarles Brown made his will in writing, and made Michael Dunkin, the plaintiff's father, and three others his executors, in trust for Murgaret, and died. 1667. administration, with the will annexed, was granted to the faid Michael Dunkin the father. In October 1673. Michael Dunkin the father makes his will, and the plaintiff his executor, and dies; the defendant takes out administration of Quarles Brown's estate for the ule of Margaret, and puts in a caveat against the now plaintiff's proving his father's will, and prays that the faid will may not be proved till a commission of appraisement hath issued out, to appraise the goods of Michael Dunkin deceased, and a commission of inspection to view the books, papers and writings of the faid deceased, and had them. Refolved 1. It is a limitation, and not a condition; tho' the words are the express words of a condition, yet they must always be conformable to the intention of the parties, Dyer 317. pl. 5. 3 Co. 21. 3 Cr. 833. 2. 591. 3. 376, 2 Leon. 31. Owen 8. Roll. Abr. 411. By which cases it appears that words of condition in a will shall enure as a limitation; and though in M. Portington's case 10 Co. it is said otherwise, yet that is but an accumulative reason, which was not necessary.

Resolv. 2. Notice of the condition was not necessary:
1. None is appointed by the devisor to give notice.
2. No body is concerned to give notice, the heirs and executors have nothing to do therewith.
3. All parties had equal means of coming to notice; and if notice be requisite it might be a means to avoid the will of the devisor.
2 Cr.

5. It was not impossible for the defendant to have inquired and informed herself; and if she remains ignorant and not informed, it is her own folly.
1 Roll. Abr. 463. Hob. 68.

As to Francis's case, 8 Co. 92. there the party had other means to claim besides the will, and should not need to take notice of the will. But in our case the will is the only way to claim the estate, and therefore the desendant ought to take notice thereof. As to the case 2 Cr. 144. Molineux, It lies there properly in the conusance of the younger son, that the legacies be paid or not, &c. and differs from this principal case. THE plaintiff suggests that there is a custom time Prohibition. whereof, &c. within the parish of Stretham in the county of Surrey, that the churchwardens with the major part of the parishioners may order the feats in the church, and the churchwardens are to fee to the repairs of them; and that the defendant libelled in the ecclesiastical court for the fole usage of a pew in the same church, and set forth in his libel, that one Bodvile 1611. being seised of the land within the parish, built an house upon it, and after in the year 1637: at his own cost built the said pew in the thurch for himself and his family, and sold the house and pew to the defendant Chute and his heirs, and by sentence in the ecclefiastical court the ordinary annexed the said pew to the faid house, and that the defendant and his heirs enjoyed it. And that the churchwardens would have placed the plaintiff there, and the defendant libelled against the Plaintiff in the ecclesiastical court. Now the plaintiff prays Prohibition, and alledges 2 Roll. 24. Brabin versus Trediham, Poph. 140.

North chief justice. A prohibition shall not be granted, because the ordinary hath jurisdiction, and the churchwardens cannot justle out his authority, when the privilege is claimed only for the defendant and his family; because as to him and his heirs a prohibition lies, and if the plaintist be grieved by the sentence, he may appeal. And the office of churchwarden is a kind of ecclesiastical office. True it is, the parishioners are to take care of the repairs of the Power.

JECTMENT' of the demise of sir Thomas Curson ba ronet: Upon Not guilty pleaded, the jury find a special verdict,

That sir John Curson being seised of the manor of Waterbury, of which the lands in question are parcel, by indenture, Dat. 12 Sept. 1654. in consideration of a marriage between his son Thomas, lessor of the plaintist, and Elizabeth the daughter of William Burrows, and 1000l. portion and for the affection he bore to his relations, covenanted to stand seised of the said premisses, To the use of himself for life, remainder to Broom Whorewood, William Burrows and Elues and their heirs, during the life of the said The Curson, his fon and heir apparent, remainder to the first and every other fon of Thomas successively in tail male, remainder to John Belson in tail male, remainder to Augustin Belson in tail male, remainder to Edward Belson, now defendant, in tail male, with remainders over, with power for fir John to make leafes to any persons for one, two or three lives, or for one and twenty years, referving the ancient rent. That the marriage took effect between the laic Thomas Curson and Elizabeth Burrows. That sir John 11 January 1655. demised the premisses to the said Edware Belfon for one and twenty years, to commence after the deaths of Jacob and Meeks, who were tenants for lives, and who lived several years after. That the saic Whorewood, Burrows and Elues were not at all of kin to fil John Curson. That fir John Curson died before the said The mas Curson had any issue male born. That afterwards The mas had issue John Curson. That John Belson and Augustin Belson are dead without issue. That there was no other execution of the deed but sealing and delivery.

Croks

Croke serjeant for the plaintiff. The questions upon this verdict are:

1. Whether the power to make leases being general, be good in this case?

2. Whether fir John hath pursued the power in making a lease in futuro?

* 3. Whether the uses limited (after the estates in tail * P. 248. male to the fons of fir Thomas Curson) to John Belson, Augustine Belson and Edward Belson do arise, partly upon sealing the conveyance, or that the use continues in the covemantor till after the deaths of the sons without issue male?

To the two first points. The whole court gave their opinions, viz. To the 1st, That the power to make leases being general, is void, it being upon a covenant to stand feised. Mildmay's case, 1 Co. 2 Roll. Abr. 260.

To the 2d, The power is not well executed, the lease being to commence in future. 2 Roll. Abr. 261. Yelver-Stokham versus Hawkins, 6 Co. Fitzwilliam's case, and Lepar and Wroth's case, Hob. 151. Colt's case.

As to the 3d point, Croke proceeds. The case is thus: H. covenants to stand seised to the use of himself for life, remainder to the use of strangers and their heirs, during the life of Thomas Curson, remainder to the sons of Thomas Curson successively in tail male, remainder to Edward Belson in tail. The covenantor dies before any fon of Thomas is born, and afterwards a son is born, whether Edward Belson next in remainder will have the lands presently, or shall stay till all the issues be dead without issue male? And I conceive Edward Belson shall take immediately after the death of the covenantor.

1. Nothing passes to these strangers without involment, 7 Co. Bedel's case, 11 Co. Harpur's case, 2 Roll. Abr. 783. H. pl. 4. and consequently nothing accrues to the sons of Thomas. And when a grant is made to two, and the one is capable to take, and the other not, the estate shall vest in The person capable only at the common law. Perk. 108. b. pl. 566. Dyer 300. b. pl. 39. and 309. a. pl. 67. 494. pl. 687.

Object. This case differs, because it is in case of an use by covenant to stand seised.

Resp. There is no difference, 6 Co. Fitzwilliam's case, uses shall be expounded according to the rules of common Law. And this way of limiting estates by covenant to stand Teised begun in Englesield's case, and Bainton's case, and Shewington and Pledal's case, Plowd. 301. And the statute incorporates the use to the possession, in case of a covenant to stand seised, as well as in other cases. And here sir John Curson covenanting to stand seised to the use of himself for his life, is in of a new estate, and not of his old estate.

193. pl. 343.

Resp. There is a great difference between this and that case; for there the lord Pagit had no estate for his life, but here the covenantor hath, and therefore the use here ought to vest immediately, Hob. 74. Barnes's case. And here the intent of the covenantor was that all estates should be out of him; and if the case should be otherwise, where should the estate be after the death of the covenantor? For Thomas cannot have the particular estate, and the inheritance also simul & semel, which he must have in this case, if the estate shall continue in the covenantor 'till the son of Thomas be born.

North chief justice. It seemed that this remainder vells immediately after the death of sir John Curson in Belson, as Lewis Bowle's case is, 11 Co. 80. a. Adjourned.

The plaintiff Gerrit Johnson, confesses, that ante prame tempus quo, &c. the said Sarah Grant being execuof the said Samuel Grant, father of the said James, give to the said James security for payment of 600%. In as a legacy as aforesaid. But Protestando, that ante listum tempus quo, &c. he did not surrender the said sety, and acquitted her therefrom upon the agreement lged, nor that the said indentures aforesaid were in protion of the said agreement. That the said eight messuages then, and ever since have been worth 791. per annum, by reason whereof the said 2371. being residue of the said 2401. became insolvible to the said James Grant, and still remains insolvible. Et hoe, joined in demurrer.

The sole point remains to be spoke to is, as it is objected by the other side, That the plaintiss in this replevin in his bar to the avowry, hath pleaded as to parcel of the rent, Rien arrear, without making any title to himself.

And whether such his plea be good, is the question?

And I conceive 'tis a good plea.

1. I do agree, that at the common law a stranger could not, nor as yet can plead any thing to the lord's avoury for rent or services, but hors de son Fee, or what doth tantament.

He cannot plead tenure by less services, Rien arere, or, a release, 2 H. 6. 1. a. 22 H. 6. 2 and 3. and 9 Co. 6. 10. a. is against that opinion.

This was grounded upon these reasons and rules of law.

reason that he who is a stranger shall take upon himself to plead to the title of the tenure, with which he hath nothing to do, in prejudice of the very tenant; and there is a privity between the lord and tenant.

2. In pleading every man ought to plead that which i pertinent for him and his case; and therefore in an afficagainst a disseisor and tenant, the tenant shall plead a ple which concerns the tenancy, and not the disseisin.

* P. 255. * The incumbent at the common law could not plead the right of the patronage, wherein he hath nothing; 7 (26 Hull's case, 'till he was enabled by 25 E. 3. cap. 7.

2. But by the statute of 21 H. 8. cap. 19. this stricture is discharged, for as the avowant is not tied to avow up and any

any person in certain, but upon the land, as within his fee or feigniory; so the tenant of the land by the equity of that statute is allowed to plead any plea to save and discharge his goods from the distress, Legem feras quam ipfe tuleris. So that the law of avowries, and their bars, is much altered from what it was by the common law.

Hob. 108. Brown versus Goldsmith. In replevin, the de-Fendant avows upon A. for services of suit of court; the plaintiff pleads in bar, a lease for years from the avowant of the manor; and resolved a good plea, though a stranger.

Br. Tit. Avowry 113. When the lord avows according to the statute, the plaintiff in the replevin may have every plea, that the very tenant might have had though he be a Aranger to the lord; and so is Coke upon Lit. 268. b. and many books there cited.

3. Though the plaintiff make no title, yet he may plead by this statute, as well as if he did.

Trin. 15 Jac. Moor 883. pl. 1238. Kingswell versus Crawley. In replevin, The defendant avows for rent eo quod one Dering held certain lands of him by fealty, and certain rent; that the plaintiff hath the estate of Dering. The plaintiff replies, that Dering infcoffed one Wright, who made a leafe for life to the plaintiff, Absque hec, that he had the estate of Hob. 108. Dering; and ruled by the court, that the traverse was void; Brown versus for fince the statute the party is to avow upon the land, and then 'tis not material what estate the tenant had, if he occupies the land; and so the statute hath changed the law in this point.

Hill. 17 Car. 1. C. B. March 166. Layton versus Grange. In a second deliverance, the defendant makes cognizance as bailiff to Thomas Marsh, and sets forth that Thomas Marsh, father of the said Thomas Marsh, was seised of the manus of Michael Hall, of which the land in question is parcel, and the said lands are held by fealty and certain rent, and derives the tenancy to fir Anthony Cage, and the leigniory to the said Thomas Marso the son; and as bailist to him makes cognizance for fealty, ut infra feedum & dominicum sua. The plaintiff protestando quod non tenet, pro placito dicit, that the defendant took the cattle as in the count, Absque hoc, * P. g. that Marsb the father was seised of the services infra tempus. The defendant demurs.

By Banks, Crawley and Fester, resolved that the plea was good, though no title were made by the plaintiff or his Reve justice wavered in the point, but the others were positive in it; and Banks gave the reason, That as at the common law the tenant might plead any plea in bar to an avowry for a rent-charge, as 8 E. 4. 23. a. is; so now fince this statute, the ter-tenant shall plead any plea to discharge the land from the distress. 2dly, That as this statute hath been always construed favourably for the benefit of the lord; so it ought to be for the benefit of the tenant 3dly, That 'tis no reason that the tenant shall have his good taken, and not use all ways to redeem them, when not party to the wrongs.

But 'tis objected, That our case is not within this standard tute; the words whereof are, Wherefoever any manors, land tenements or other hereditaments be holden by any manner of perfon or persons by rents, customs or services, if the lord of who eny such manors, lands, tenements or hereditaments be so holdens distrain upon the same manors, lands or tenements for any suc # rents, customs or services, and replevin thereof be sued, that the lord of whom the sume lands, tenements or hereditaments be so holden may avow, or his bailiff or servant make conusance, or justify for the taking the said distresses upon the sume lands, &c. so holden, as in lands or tenements within his fee or seigniory, alledging in the faid avowry, &c. the same manors, lands, &c. to be holden of him without numing any person certain to be tenant of the same. And whether the lessor be a lord within this statute is the question. And I conceive he is lord here within the words and meaning of this statute.

For the Stranger can plead but as the Tenant may do, and if the Tenant for years be not within the statute, this case will be out of it.

Lord is a relative word; and so a mesne is lord in reservence to the tenant, and tenant in respect of the lord paramount.

He is lord within the statute of Marlb' cap. 3. Non ideo punictur Dominus.

Resp. It did not lie for so much as the lessor did as lord, as to distrain for his rent, and to demean himself accordingly: but as this case was, he broke his close, which he could not do as lord; and so not within the statute.

That after the death of Ferdinand, for determination of fuits and controversies between the said earl William and Henry earl of Huntington and Elizabeth his wife, one of the daughters of the said Ferdinand, Gray Bridges lord Chandos, and the lady Anne his wife, another of the daughters of the said earl Ferdinand, and sir John Egerton, knight, then fon and heir apparent of Thomas lord Ellesmere, lord chancellor of England, and the lady Frances his wife, another of the daughters of the faid earl Ferdinand, 18 Novemb. 4 Jac. an act of parliament was made of and concerning the faid faits and controversies, and estate and title of the honours, callies, manors, lands and tenements of the aforesaid earl Ferdinand; by which it was enacted as followeth, viz. In

The act of 4 Jac.

In most humble manner beseeching your royal majesty your highness loyal, faithful and obedient subjects, William * P. 265. earl of * Derby, of the most noble order of the garter knight, Henry earl of Huntington and the countes Elizabeth his wife, Gray Bridges, lord Chandos and the lady Anne his wife, eldest daughter of Ferdinando late earl of Derby, sir John Egerton knight, son and heir male apparent of the right honourable Thomas lord Ellesmere, lord chancellor of England, and the lady Frances his wife; which faid William earl of Derby is brother and heir male, and the faid ladies Anne, Frances and Elizabeth are daughters and co-heirs of the said Ferdinando, late earl of Derby, who died without issue male of his body: That whereas after the death of the earl Ferdinando divers variances, suits and controversies did arise and grow between your said subjects William earl of Derby, and the said ladies, as well touching the estate, right and title of, in and to the honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements and hereditaments of the said earl, as alsotouching the filial portions and advancements of and for your said subjects, the said ladies Anne, Frances and Elizabeth; for appealing, ending and determining of which faid variances, suits and controversies, the said William earl of Derby and other issues male of the said honourable house of Derby, as also the said ladies before any their intermarriages, by and with the advice and consent of the right honourable Alice, countess dowager of Derby, late wise of the faid Ferdinando, and mother of the faid ladies; and by and with the advice of other their honourable friends, and of their counsel learned, and officers, did submit themselves to the arbitrement, order and judgment of the right honourable Thomas lord Buckhurst, lord high treasurer of England, and now earl of Dorset, and of the right honourable Gilbert earl of Shrewshury, the right honourable George earl of Cumberland, deceased, George lord Hunsden, deceased, and of the right honourable sir Robert Cecil knight, principal fecretary to your highness, and now earl of Salisbury, being the honourable and well affected friends, as well of the said William earl of Derby, and other the issues male descended of that honourable house, as of the said ladies heirs general; which said honourable persons are elected to end the faid controversies, having deliberately heard the faid parties, and their learned counsel and officers, and such other their loving friends as were authorized to deal therein. and having advisedly heared and considered of their feveral rights, titles and claims, did by the consent and agreement of all the faid parties and their counsel, officers and friends, for

for the appealing, ending and extinguishment of all variances, claims, titles and * controversies then moved and * P. 266. grown, and which then after might arise and grow between the faid parties or any of them touching the premisses, agree, order and determine (amongst other things) That such and so many of the said castles, manors, lands, tenements and hereditaments, late parcel of the possessions and hereditaments of the said Ferdinando, late earl of Derby, in the towns, hamlets, villages and places hereafter mentioned, and in every or any of them, should be assigned, conveyed and enjoyed unto and by such person and persons, and of, for and during such estate and estates, and with and under such limitations, powers, liberties, declarations and favings, and in such manner and form as hereaster is mentioned, limited and expressed. With which said order and agreement so made by the honourable persons, as well the said William, earl of Derby, and the countess Elizabeth his wife, and the rest of the issues male descended from that honourable house of Derby, as also the said honourable lady Alice countess dowager of Derby, and the said ladies Elizabeth, Anne and Frances, daughters to the said late earl Ferdinands before, and until their feveral marriages, their said husbands and they did and yet do hold themselves well contented and fatisfied.

May it therefore please your most excellent Majesty, that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by your majesty the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this prefent parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all and every the castles, manors, lands, tenements, possessions, rents, reversions, services and hereditaments with all and fingular their appurtenances, late the possession and inheritance of the said Ferdinando, late earl of Derby, in the towns, hamlets, villages and places hereafter mentioned, and in every or any of them, shall be from · henceforth for ever affured and enjoyed unto and by the person and persons hereaster named, of and for such estates and limitations, and with and under fuch powers, liberties, provisoes, exceptions, declarations and savings, and in such manner and form, as hereafter in this present act is mentioned, limited and declared; and that the actual and real Possession of all and singular the said castles, manors, lands, tenements, possessions, rents, reversions, services and hereditaments shall be by authority of this present act immediarely from henceforth vested, adjudged, deemed and taken be in the said person and persons hereaster named in possettion, remainder and reversion respectively, of, for and during during such estate and estates, and with and under such powers, liberties, provisoes, exceptions, declarations and P. 267. savings, and in such manner and sorm, as hereaster in this present act is likewise mentioned, declared, limited and expressed.

And afterwards in the same act of and concerning the manor of Hope it was enacted in these words: viz.

That the faid Alice, counters dowager of Derby, during her life, and after her decease, the said William earl of Derby, during his life, and after his decease James, son and heir apparent of the faid William earl of Derly, and the heirs males of his body, and in default of fuch issue the second, third, sourth, fifth, fixth and seventh sons of the said William earl of Derby, lawfully begotten, and the heirs male of their and every of their feveral bodies lawfully begotten, fuccessively and respectively according to the priority of their birth and age one after another; and in default of such issue, fir Edward Stanley knight, during his natural life, and after his decease the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, fixth and seventh sons of the said fir Edward Stanley lawfully begotten, and the heirs male of their and every of their several bodies lawfully begotten successively and respedively according to the priority of their birth and age one after another; and in delault of such issue, Edward Stanley of Bickerstaff esquire, during his life, and after his decease the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, fixth and seventh sons of the said Edward Stanley lawfully begotten, and the heirs male of their and of every of their feveral bodies lawfully begotten, successively and respectively according to the priority of their birth and age one after another: And in default of such issue James Stanley, brother of the last mentioned Edward, during his life, and after his decease the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, fixth and sevenils sons of the said James Stanley lawfully begotten, and the heirs male of their and every of their several bodies lawfully begotten, successively and respectively according to the priority of their birth one after another, shall and may have, hold and peaceably and quietly enjoy all and every the manors, messuages, lands, tenements, rents, reversions, services, hereditaments, liberties, franchises and jurisdictions whatfoever, at any time heretofore the inheritance of the said Ferdinands, late earl of Derby, in Hope and Hopedale, and elsewhere within the parish of Hope in the faid county of Flint, to the manor of Hope belonging or appertaining. And it was farther enacted, That the said William earl of Derby, fix Edward Stanley, Edward Stanley and James Stanley fucceffively

. Iuccessively and respectively in possession to make leases of any of the premisses usually letten, (except the castle of Harvard and Greenhalgh, the mansion-house, parks, demesnes of Latham, Knowsley, Newpark, Buscough, Childwal, Pilkington, * Hawarden, Greenhalgh, Broughton in Farnes, * P. 268. Bothome Armsbead, Withersback, Ebensbam alias Ensham and Bidston, the mansion-house, Channon Row in Westminster, the college-house in Manchester and the tower in Liverpool within the several counties of Lancaster, Chester, Flint, Westmorland, Oxon and Middlesex for one and twenty years or under, or for one, two or three lives, or for any number of years determinable upon one, two or three lives in possession, and not in reversion, reserving the old and accustomed rent; and power for them to make jointures not exceeding a third part.

That in the said a there is a proviso in these words:

Provided always, and be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That your most excellent majesty, your heirs and successors, and all and every other person and persons, bodies politick and corporate, their heirs and succesfors, executors, administrators and assigns, and every of them, other than the persons to whom any estate or estates are before limited, or mentioned to be limited, by this present act, and their heirs shall have, hold, and enjoy all and every fuch and the same estate and estates, lease and leases, rights, titles, interests, reversions, rents, annuities, pensions, services, tenures, primer seisins, liveries, actions, statutes, bonds, recognizances, debts, extents, executions, judga ments, entries, conditions, covenants, warranties, uses, possessions, offices, commons, liberties, easements, profits, commodities, emoluments, claims and demands, as your highness, your heirs and successors, or any of them, or Other person or persons, bodies politick and corporate, their heirs, successors, executors, administrators or assigns, other than the persons before excepted, to whom any estate or estates is before limited by this act, now lawfully have or hereaster shall or may lawfully have, or claim of, into, out of, or for any the said castles, manors, lands, tenements, rents, reversions, services and hereditaments, or of, into, out of, or for any of them in such and the same manner and form to all intents, constructions and purposes, as if this present act had never been had nor made. And your said suppliants, William earl of Derby, Henry earl of Huntington, and the lady Elizabeth his wife, Gray lord Chandos, and the lady Anne his wife, and sir John Egerton, and the lady Frances his wife, shall and will according to their most bounden R 2 bounden duties daily pray for your highness long, happy and prosperous reign over us.

That Alice, countels of Derby, in the act mentioned, was widow and relict of the said Ferdinand, earl of Derby, and that the said sir Edward Stanley knight, at the making P. 269. of * the said act was a person, who the tenements aforesaid, next after the death of James the son of the said earl of Derby, without issue male of his body, by the said letters patent ought to take and have according to the limitation in the same letters patent contained.

That the said Edward Stanley of Bickerstaff in the said act likewise mentioned, until the making of the said act, was the person who ought to take and enjoy the said tenements next after the death of the said sir Edward Stanley, without issue male of his body, according to the similation of the said letters patent; and that the said James Stanley, brother of the said Edward Stanley of Bickerstaff, was the next person who ought to take and have the said tenements next after the death of his said brother Edward, without issue male of his body, by the limitation of the said letters patent.

That 1 May 1636. the said Alice counters downger of Derby died, that earl William entered, and was seised preut lex possulat.

29 Sept. 1642. earl William died seised, and James his son entered and became seised prout lex postulat.

15 Oct. 1651. earl James died seised, and earl Charles entered.

And

And the said Charles east of Derby doth constitute the said Thomas Crackley, Nicholas Brereton, and Roger Griffith his attornies jointly and severally to make livery and seisin of the said premisses.

That livery and seisin was executed accordingly, and the tenants of the said manor did attorn thereto.

* 10 April 1654. That Charles earl of Derby and his * P. 270, wife levied a fine of the said premisses at the great sessions for the county of Flint, with warranty against all men with proclamations.

The faid fine was to the use of the said indenture mentioned.

That the grantees entered and continued in possession from the time of the making the said indenture.

That the defendants at the time when, &c. and still are tenants of the premisses to the said grantees.

21 December 1672. earl Charles died, leaving issue the lessor of the plaintiff now earl of Derby, and was at the death of his father at the age of sixteen years, nine months and four days, and no more.

2 February 29 Car. 2. the lessor of the plaintiff entered, and made the lease to the plaintiff prout in the declaration.

They find the statute of 34 H. 8. and conclude generally,

If for the plaintiff, for the plaintiff, &c.

Levinz for the plaintiff. It is to be taken notice of, that this act of 4 fac. in the record doth alter the estate limited by the letters patent; for by the act it is only limited to the seventh son; but by the letters patent to every other son, and then the remainder over to others.

- 1. 'Tis not doubted but that the reversion still remains in the crown.
- 2. The possession of the seosses is nothing to the purpose, for though there be fines levied and descents, yet the statute of limitations hath no operation but from the death of earl Charles, which is but about three or sour years since. Upon this record are two questions.

warranty have, taking the same abstractively from the con-fideration of the statute of 34 H. 8. cup. 20.

2. What operation the statute of 34 H. 8. hath in this case?

1. As to the feoffment, it is no discontinuance, because the reversion remains in the king. Lit. sect. 625. and Cc. Lit. 335. c.

2. A to the warranty in the foffment and fine, it is of no effect, because it is a lineal warranty, and so cannot bar without assets.

As to the fine, it is no bar by the statute of 32 H. 8. cap, 36. because the last proviso therein excludes all fines levied of lands intailed, where the reversion is in the king, or intailed by act of parliament.

* P. 271. But it is objected, that the words at the end of the proviso are, That every such fine shall be of like force as they were or should have been, if the act had not been made; and such estates-tail were barrable by fine by the statute of 4 H. 7.

Resp. The statute takes notice that there were diversities of opinion in that point.

Pasch. 19 H. 8. 6. pl. 5. Dyer 2. b. pl. 1. and this statute of 32 H. 8. cures a doubt in case of ordinary persons, but leaves out the fines of lands, whose reversion is in the crown. And the exception would not have been inserted, had they not barred before.

If we consider how this point stood before this statute, we shall find, Br. Fines de terr. 121. That such fines die not bind the issue, because no discontinuance. Br. Assurances 6, accordingly; but Dyer 32. a. pl. 1. Englefield justice said he knew it by experience, that a fine did bar the issue in tail, though the reversion were in the crown. Shelley justice doubted; and so there was judge against judge 8 Co. 74. a. Such fine did not bar the issue; and so is 6 Co 55 in Chandos's case obiter; and Co. Lit. 372. b. A fine is a har by 32 H. 8. but not by 34 H. 8. and so there are but opinions in this point, and no judgment. This doub reached the parliament, and therefore they thought that the fine was no bar before 34 H. 8. And the conclusion is That if it was no bar by 4 H. 7. it was now by 32 H. 8 and then came the statute of 34 H. 8. which made at end of the question; for by the opinion of all it is now no bar.

Then we must consider, whether this act of 4 Jac. al ters the use, and here it will be objected,

1. Here is no gift of the king, but of the parliament for 1. Alice is let in before count William. 2. Count William hath now but an estate for his life, and afterwards to seven of his sons successively; but all the other of his son are excluded, and sir Edward Stanley is let in in their place.

Resp. This is a gift of the king within the intent and meaning of the statute of 34 H. 8. for these reasons.

1. There is no more estate given by this act of 4 Jac. than by the letters patent of 2 R. 3. but all the estates granted within the compass of the heirs males of the body of Thomas first earl of Derby.

2. The parliament did not intend to give any thing, but to wrake firm an agreement between the parties.

3. The limitations to earl William for life, with the * P. 272.

4. If earl William had had twenty sons, this act doth exclude them, but others are let in; for the saving extends to them after the determination of the new particular estates, and the old estate-tail supplies the other sons; and the act did not intend to make several donors, viz. The king as to some part, and the act as to other part.

5. The proviso is, saving to the king, his heirs and suc-Cestors, such, and the same estate, &c. as they now have; and how shall the tenure be saved, if the act must be the donor?

5. This is a case concerning the exposition of an act of Parliament, which ought to be as savourably construed as a will Now let us examine the objections.

Object. 1. The estate of countess Alice is a new estate.

Resp. 1. 'Tis possible she hath but what she had in right dower.

2. This agreement shall be construed to be pursuant to dower.

3. But be it what it may be, she is dead, and so is no

Prejudice.

Object. 2. The estate of count William is altered; for he hath only an estate for life, the remainder to his is in tail male.

Resp. That is no gift, but a deprivation of a gift. And a man have three horses in his stable, and a man takes ay two of them, he cannot be said to give the third, which he took not away.

Resp. 1. This act hath not one word of giving in it, but they shall hold and enjoy.

2. Here the meaning was not to make a gift, but in purance of an agreement between the parties to settle the sate; and so it is a distribution of the lands amongst the family.

• Object. Construction of an act of parliament ought to • P. 275. be according to equity.

Resp. This act of 34 H. 8. ought not to be favourably construed, because contrary to equity and reason of the common law, and restrains alienation. Keilway 96. a. pl. 6. Lit. sect. 360. So the statute of Westm. 2. cap. 1. is to be taken strictly for the same reason, Co. 2 Inst. 335. and therefore it is said, that a fine ipso jure sit nullus, yet it is a discontinuance. And so he prayed judgment for the defendant. Post.

William Scot versus Knapton. Debt. Error.

TN debt upon the statutes of 1 Eliz. cap. 3. and 23 Eliz. L cap. 1. for absenting from church for eleven months. Upon Nil debet pleaded, judgment was given in B. R. And now the defendant there brought a writ of error. And it was objected by the counsel for the defendant in the writ of error, that such a writ of error did not lie within the statute of 27 Eliz. cap. 8. because it is an action tam quam; and the words of the statute are (other than where the queen shall be party) and here the king is party. But resolved, the writ doth well lie, because the king is not properly party, though he is to have part of the penalty.

> Upon a special verdict the jury find, That on the day, and at the place in the indicament mentioned, Abraham Chisser came to the shop of Anne Charteris spinster in the said indiament likewise named, and asked for to see two crevats in the indiament mentioned, which she shewed to him, and delivered them into his hands, and thereupon he asked the

Said Abraham Chissers offered her 3s. and immediately run out of the said shop, and took away the said goods openly in her sight; But whether this be selony, or not, is the question. And if it shall be adjudged selony, we find him guilty; and that the goods were of the value of 7s. and that he had no goods or chattels, &c. But if it be not adjudged selony, we find him not guilty, nor that he sted for the same.

And I am of opinion, that this act of Chisser is selony; For that, 1. He shall be said to have taken these goods felles anims; for the act subsequent, viz. His running away with them, explains his intent precedent; as the tuing a Replevin to get the horse of another man's, to which he hath no title, is felony, because in fraudem Legis, Co. 3 Inft. 108. So if an officer cometh to a man, and telleth him that he is outlawed, when the officer knoweth the contrary to be true, and by colour thereof, takes his goods, it is felony. Dalton's office of sheriffs, cap. 121. fol. 489. 1 Sid, 254. And the case of one Far, in which I myself was a counsel, Kely 43. was thus; Far knowing one Mrs. Steneer living in St. Martin's Lane in Middlesex to have considerable quantity of goods in her house, procured an affidavit to be filed in the Common Pleas, of the due delivery of a declaration, in an action of Ejectione firmæ, in which he was lessor, though he had no title, and thereupon got judgment, and took out an Habere facias possessionem for the house, directed to the sheriff of Middlesex, and procured him to make a warrant to a bailiff to execute the writ, who with Far came to the house, turned Mrs. Stencer out of possession thereof, and seised upon the goods of a great value, and converted them to his own use, and upon complaint made by Mrs. Steneer to sir Robert Hide, then lord chief justice of B. R. Far was apprehended by his warrant, and indicted at Justice-Hall in the Old Baily, and found guilty, and hanged; for that he used the colour of an action of ejectment, and the process thereupon to execute his felonious intent, in fraudem Legis.

2. Although these goods were delivered to Chisser by the owner, yet they were not out of her possession by such delivery, till the property should be altered by the persection of the contract, which was but inchoated and never persected between the parties; and when Chisser run away with the goods, it was as if he had taken them up, lying in the shop, and run away with them. Tithes.
596. p. 8.

THE plaintiff being vicar of Chigwel in Effex, exhibited his English bill in the exchequer chamber against the defendant for small tithes, and amongst the rest for tithe milk; and upon the hearing a question arose, Whether the defendant shall pay the tenth part of the milk of his cows every meal, or only every tenth meal? And it was decreed that he should pay every tenth meal intire to the plaintiff; for otherwise the plaintiff must be forced to keep a servant for that service of collecting the milk only, and perhaps the tithe would not amount to a pint a day. The next question was, Whether de jure (there being no custom one way or other) the parishioner ought to fend the tithe milk to the vicar to his house, or that the vicar ought to fetch it from the parishioner? And now 22 May 1679. The vicar brought a civilian, one doctor Raynes, to argue, whose argument was as follows. By the Jus commune Ecelesiasticum which is the canon law, all tithe ought to be brought home to the parson; and the law is grounded upon the scripture. Malac. 3. 10. Bring ye all the tithes into the store-house; and St. Jerome gives the rule so; and Linwood 1. 3. Tit. 16. De Decimis Cap. Quidam, verbo Colligendis, pag. 168. Colonus de jure tenetur non solum Decimas hujusmodi colligere & coacervare, sed ctiam in horreum Sacerdotis afferre. And this is certain for predial tithes. And fo fays Speculator, it is for wines. And although there be no express mention of milk, and that milk is here in England reckoned amongst minute tithes; yet in other countries it is a predial tithe.

2. All tithes ought to be paid so soon as they may be sit for the parson to receive them; so calves at such an age, and other things, as the matter will hear. Now 'twill be very inconvenient if the milk which de jure is tithable every meal, shall be sent for by the parson twice a day, and every time may not be a pint.

3. In the manner of tithing, that which magis expedit Ecclesiae, is to be observed, then it is more decent for the parishioner to bring, than the parson to setch his tithes. Where the law is silent, the custom of the places adjacent P. 278. prevails. * Now here, all the neighbour vicars have their milk brought home to them.

Upon hearing this argument the court thought fit for the Tender of plaintiff, if he saw cause, to insert all his parishioners, or at the house as many of them as he pleased into his bill; and upon their of the parishianswers the court would deliver their opinion, because of oner is good, ascertaining the way of paying tithe milk quite through the 328. parish, to prevent multiplication of suits; but if the plain- Palmer 341. tiff shall not think fit so to do, the court adjourned this Wiseman werf. cause till Michaelmas-Term to give their opinions; and af-Suggestion, terwards, viz. 10 November 1679, we all agreed that the that the pa-My rishioner is to pay the tenth tithe milk ought to be carried by the parishioners. opinion was, That it should be delivered at the vicarage-quart of milk house, because where there is no custom the common law at the parsonage-house, or prevails; but my lord chief baron and the other two barons at any other agreed, that it should be delivered in the church-porch, place is a because the neighbouring parishes did so; but that appeared good ground for a prohibinot in the pleadings, but so it was decreed. tion, by Popham chief jus-

By virtue whereof, and of the statute for transferring uses into possession, the said John Lisse became seised of the tenements aforesaid in his demesse as of freehold, for term of his life, remainder as is before limited, and so being of the faid John Lifle.

That the said William Lisse after the death of the said Edward Lisse, 20 January 28 Car. 2. did enter upon the possession of the said John Grey, Thomas Ogle and Robert Manners, and became seised prout lex possulat, and made the lease to the plaintiff, who entered and was possessed until the defendants ejected him. And if for the plaintiff, for the plaintiff, &c.

Judgment was given in B. R. for the plaintiff; and now the defendant brings a writ of error.

· Pollex fen for the plaintiss in the writ of error.

The questions are two, 1. Whether by the conveyance of 15 August 15 Car. 1. Edward Liste have an estate-tail?

2. If he hath not, then whether the plaintiff hath any title confidering the proviso?

P. 284. * As to the first, The case is no more but this.

Lands are limited to the use of Edward Liste for his life, the remainder to his surst, second, third and sourth sons successively, and the heirs male of their respective bodies; and so severally and respectively to every of the heirs male of the body of the said Edward, and the heirs male of the body of such heirs male, according to their ages and seniorities, the remainder to William Liste, &c. Edward suffers a recovery, and dies without issue male.

And I conceive that Edward had an estate-tail, and so the recovery well suffered to the use of the Forsters and their heirs.

It is agreed on all hands, that where an estate is limited to a man for life, and afterwards to the heirs of his body, the heirs are in by discent and not by purchase, Co. upon Lit. 22. b. 1 Co. 104. a. 11 Co. 79. b. Lewis Bowle's case, which is in effect the same with this in question.

Object. Here it is to the heirs male of the body of Edward, and the heirs male of the body of such heir male.

Resp. The addition of those words make no alteration. but are only words of abundance, and are comprehended within the first words, and are of the same nature; and so is Shellie's case.

'Tis not like to Archer's case, for there the limitation is to the heir in the fingular number.

· Object. The words are relative, and so severally and respectively to every of the heirs male of the body of Edward.

Resp. We are upon the construction of a deed, and not of a will, and therefore rules in limitation of estates ought to be here observed.

The word (heirs) is a term of art in the law, and hath an established sense; and Littleton says, it is the sole word which passeth an inheritance.

There are certain words which in the law are appropriate to some particular purpose, Coke upon Littleton 9. a. And this word (heirs) is so appropriate to an estate of inheritance, 1 Co. 103. b. Shellie's case. From which we may infer, that we cannot alter the legal fignification of the word (heirs) and construe it to signify sons or issue.

Object. This is a conveyance by way of use, which may 5E. 4.7. When be construed with equal favour as a will.

Resp. Uses are now reduced to the rules of the common putation of inlaw. 1 Co. 87. b. Corbet's case. Winch. 60. 1 Rol. Abr. heritances de-837. R. pl. 1. and 2. Tit. Estate. A feoffment to the use scendible, the of A. and his issues male of his body, makes not an estate- directs the detail, for want of the word heirs.

And there is no case to be found in law, where the ${}^{4}_{+}^{Co. 22, 2}_{-}$.

P. 285. word (heirs) is taken for issue or son; And in this case should heir be taken for issue or son, here would be a very great alteration in point of limitation, for the fifth fon must take by name of fon.

1. The word (fo) alters not the case; and if the interpretation of a deed should be as of a will, many suits would be upheld by reason of the incertainty of the law in such cales.

2. The operation of the proviso is out of doors, because it is found in the verdice, that all the estates precedent to the estate of William Liste are determined.

uses have gained the refcent of them,

Levinz

Levinz for the defendant in the writ of error. Edward hath but an estate for life, because, 1. 'Tis a conveyance by way of use which was originally but a trust, and an equitable thing, and therefore ought to be favourably construed.

2. The intent of the father was plainly contrary; for why should he limit no farther than to his fourth son? and it was not intended that Edward should have any other estate but for life in possession, because power is provided for him to raise portions for his daughters, which need not have been if he have an estate-tail, for he could do it by a common recovery.

3. 'Tis not a limitation to the heirs male only, but to every of them, according to their feniority.

4. 'Tis to the heirs male of those heirs male. And so prays judgment for the defendant. Adjournatur. Post.

POLLEXFEN for the plaintiff. The estates limited by the act of 4 fac. are the same estates in substance with what were limited by the letters patent, and vary only in circumstances, and therefore Ferdinando was seised in tail under the patent, and Alice intitled to dower under him.

The first alteration objected is the limitation to Alice for her life.

Resp. That may consist with the estate in the patent, for it is but for her life, and it is but a third part, which is equivalent to the dower she should have by the estate in the patent.

The second alteration is, that count William hath an estate-tail by the patent, but now by the act he hath but an estate for life, with remainders to his sons in tail.

Resp. By the first estate he had no other advantage than he he hath by the estate for life, and therefore there is no sub-stantial alteration.

The third alteration is, that here are by the act limitations to other persons, viz. Edward Stanley, &c.

Resp. Those other persons were to have succeeded by the patent.

Object. The proviso to make leases and jointures.

Resp. As to the power to make leases, tenant in tail could have made such leases before. And as to the power to make jointures, it is to be only of the third part of what he shall be in possession, and so is no more than dower.

Object. Coke on Litt. 372. b. A recovery suffered by tenant in tail, where the reversion was in the crown, barred the estate-tail before the statute of 34 H. 8. cap. 20. and so it was agreed in 33 H. 8. as it is Br. tit. Tail 41. 40 Ass.

Mar. and was either a judge, or very near it, and at the height of his practice in 38 H. 8. about which time the case is cited by the lord Coke, is of another opinion. Br. * P. 287. Assurances 6. Fines levie de terres 121. and he lived nearer the making the statutes of 32 H. 8. and 34 H. 8. So is 1 Anders. 46. pl. 118. And by the penning of the statute of 34 H. 8. it appears that no notice is taken therein of any fine, but only of a recovery, which shews that a fine extends not to an estate-tail where the reversion is in the king.

Serjeant Westen for the desendant. The estate is totally altered by the act of parliament, for now the estate created by that act is drawn out of the estate-tail which was created by the letters patent, and not out of the reversion in the crown, and count William had a reversion in him expectant upon this new estate. And an estate-tail is capable to have another estate drawn out of it, either by wrong or by right, which may out-last the old estate. Tenant in tail bargains and sells; it is a good estate to last till the issue enters. And whatsoever thing may be done where the reversion is in a common person, the same thing may be done by act of parliament in case of a king.

Object. If here be a new estate, who is the donor? Not the act of parliament, because a parliament is no corporation, and so cannot be said to be donor.

Resp. An act of parliament may be donor by way of giving a penal judgment, as in case of forfeitures. 2. By way of execution of an agreement, and either the act is donor, and tenant in tail is donor proportionably, as in the statute of uses; and here William is the donor.

Object. The old and new estate came both into one perfon, viz. count Charles, and so he could not alien the one without the other.

Resp. It is all one as if the estates had been in divers persons, and Charles here had power over the new estate-tail by fine, seofsment, &c. but not over the old estate-tail.

Object. This is Petitio Principii, for whether he hath any power over either of the estates is the question.

Resp. The estate granted by Charles shall arise out of the estate which is most mediate to the gift, viz. the estate-tail, and not out of the reversion in the crown which is the old reversion.

The statute of 34 H. 8. being discharged by the act of 4 Jac. the lands became alienable at all times afterwards, as Dumport's case, where a condition which restrains alienation is once dispensed with, is for ever after destroyed.

Thomas Stanhope makes the leafe, then fuffers a common recovery; the faid lord Burleigh and Walter Mildmay reconvey to the queen. The questions were 1. If the grant to the lord Burleigh and fir Walter. Mildmay was void, for the queen was deceived in her grant; and resolved the grant was good, and the queen not deceived. 2. They farther certify, That before the coming of the writ of Habeas Corpus, the defendant was taken in the faid city, Thompson for the defendant. That here ought no Procedendo to be granted, but that the defendant may be discharged from the action. This writ is a Habeas Corpus to remove a cause out of an inferior court, and if it appears that the plaintiff hath not cause of action, or that this court hath jurisdiction of the cause, no Procedendo ought to be granted.

I hold, 1. This by-law is unreasonable and void, and not warrantable by the custom.

2. The defendant is not within the penalty of it.

3. This court is well possessed of the cause.

As to the first, By this custom alledged, the mayor and aldermen have no power to restrain the number of carts, or to impose fines.

All by-laws to restrain liberty or trade are void, 11 Co.

Player versus Bradnox. This custom was returned upon a Habeas Corpus, and no Procedende allowed.

This by-law hinders the woodmonger from following their trades; for they must use one of the 420 cars; and by the same reason that they may appoint 420, they may appoint but 20, or more or less, and may impose what fine they please, and what rent, &c. They may as well restrain brewers, tallow-chandlers, hackney-coachmen.

Object. Respect ought to be had to the city of London.

Resp. 'Tis true, but they are not to make by-laws prejudicial to the people.

As to the 2d, Admitting this by-law to be good, yet this defendant is not within the penalty thereof, for that it binds none but freemen, citizens and inhabitants, and it doth not appear that he is a freeman, citizen or inhabitant. I Bulft. II. Franklin versus Green. In the case of the burchers. The plaintiff hath not set forth the custom, but declares upon the by-law as upon an act of parliament.

In to the 3d, This court is possessed of the cause. There is a difference where a Habeas Corpus is to remove a cause grounded upon a custom which cannot be taken notice of in this court, as for calling a woman whore, &c. and where this court hath cognizance, as in this case; for an action of debt will lie here upon a by-law made in any place.

Object. This action is for a duty under 40s. and fo not fuable here by the statute of Gloucester cap. 8.

Resp. That statute extends not to this court, for the words of the writ upon the statute are, That Pleas vi & armis cannot be sued in minori Curia quam coram nobis vel alibi coram Justiciariis nostris ad mandatum nostrum, &c. Regist. Orig. 111. b. F. N. B. 46, & 47. and so the court of exchequer is excluded.

answers the objections made to the return.

1. Object. That it is not alledged, that the defendant is a citizen, freeman or inhabitant.

Resp. This objection was made to the return of the bylaw concerning the Eastland company, and ruled that 'twee well enough.

*P. 294. *2. As to the setting forth of the custom in the declaration, it need not, because the citizens are bound to take notice thereof.

3. This court is not possessed of the cause, because this duty is to be sued for in Guildhall, and not here or elsewhere.

Though the by-law may be nought for the fine, it may be good for the rent; for a by-law may be good for one part and bad for another. As to the number, if they cannot be restrained, the streets would be pestered. And bylaws of the like nature in London have been here or in the other courts allowed, as, That none but freemen shall exercise a trade in any shop, and so is such a by-law good in any petty corporation, 8 Co. 121. TRESPASS and ejectment of a demise of Robert Dor- Revocation. mer made 1 Septemb. 29 Car. 2. by indenture, of five messuages, 300 acres of land, 100 acres of meadow, and 400 scres of pasture with the appurtenances in Granborough, Weelescot, Waket and Willowby, and of all tithes of grain and hay arising by the premisses from the last of August then last past seven years. Upon Not guilty pleaded, the jury find a special verdict, viz.

That one William Dormer esquire was seised of the lands and tenements in the declaration mentioned in his demesne as of fee: And so being seised, the said William 25 and 26 Septemb. 7 Car. 2. by his indentures of lease and release conveyed the same to William Moor and John Carter, and their heirs, to the uses in the same mentioned.

The tenor of which indenture of release followeth in these words:

This indenture made the 26th day of September in the year of our Lord 1655. Between William Dormer of Templeson in the county of Berks esquire of the one part, and

William Moor of the Middle-Temple London Esquire, and John Carter, second son of Ancel Carter, citizen and grocer of London, of the other part. Whereas the faid William Dormer by his indenture bearing date the day before the date of these presents made between the said William Dormer of the one part, and the said William Moor and John Carter of the other part, hath for the confideration therein mentioned granted, bargained and fold unto the faid William Moor and John Carter all those several and inclosed arable meadow and pasture grounds, lying and being in the parish, lordship, hamlets or precincts of Granburrough, Woolescot and Wakot in the county of Warwick, and hereafter particularly mentioned, that is to say, All that several and inclosed pasture or pasture ground called or known by the name of Braddimer's Close, abutting upon Willoughby field, and also all that feveral and inclosed pasture or pasture ground called or known by the name of Turnchil, which two closes are containing by estimation 165 acres, be they more or less, * P. 296. * whereof forty of the faid acres are or were in the possession of John Frandon, and also all that one other several and inclosed pasture or pasture ground wherein the shepherd's house now standeth, adjoining to the said ground called Swinehill, being divided with an hedge called Course Hadens Hedge, containing by estimation 128 acres, be it more or less; Also one other close adjoining to the said last mentioned pasture, and adjoining also to Dunchurch field, containing by estimation 26 acres and two rods, be it more or less; And also three other several and other inclosed closes or pasture grounds, lying betwixt Onely grounds, the Graige and London highway, containing by estimation 135 acres, be the same more or less; And also all hedges, ditches, fences, mounds, freeboards, ways, passages, privileges, profits, commodities, emoluments and hereditaments whatfoever to the said several and inclosed arable meadow and pasture grounds, and to other the before mentioned premisses, or to any of them belonging, or in any wife appertaining, or to or with them, or any of them, with their and every of their appurtenances, and the reversion and reversions. remainder and remainders of all and fingular the before mentioned bargained premisses, and of every part and parcel of them, and every of them, and all rents and services reserved upon any demise, lease or grant, demises, leases or grants heretofore made of the same bargained premisses, or of any of them, or of any part or parcel of them, or of any of them; And also all the estate, right, title, interest, claim

Now this indenture witnesseth, That the said William Dormer, for conveying and assuring the several pasture grounds and meadows, lands, tenements, hereditaments and premisses bereatter mentioned and declared, and tor the good love and affection he hath and beareth to Frances his wife, and for her better maintenance and sustentation, and for the natural love and affection, which he beareth unto Robert Dormer, nephew of the said William Dormer, and for divers other good causes and considerations him the said William Dormer in this behalf especially moving, hath granted, released and confirmed, And by these presents doth grant, release and confirm unto the said William Moor and John Carter, their heirs and assigns, all and singular the said several inclosed pastures and pasture grounds, meadows, lands, tenements, hereditaments and premisses bargained and fold, or mentioned, meant or intended to be bargained and fold, in and by the said recited indenture, and every Part and parcel thereof, with their and every of their rights, members and appurtenances whatsoever, And the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders together with the rents and profits of all and singular the recited premisses, and all the estate, right, title, interest, claim and demand what soever of him the said William Dormer of, in or to the said several and inclosed pastures and pasture grounds, meadours, lands, tenements and premisses, and of, in and to every

To the use and behoof of the said Robert Dormer, and of his heirs and assigns for ever, and to and for no other use, intent or purpole whatsoever. And lastly it is covenanted and agreed, and it is the true intent and meaning of these presents, that if the said William Dormer shall at any time hereafter, by any writing subscribed and sealed by him in the presence of two or more credible witnesses, in express words, fignify and declare his intention to revoke or mike void these presents, or the estate and use herein or hereby limited and appointed unto the said William Moor and John Carter and their heirs, of or in the premisses or any part thereof, that then and from thenceforth touching such of the said lands and premisses, whereof such declarations shall he so made, the use and estate by these presents limited and granted shall cease, determine and be utterly void; any thing in these presents contained to the contrary in any wise not with standing.

In witness whereof, &c.

The jury farther find that it was indorsed upon the said indenture thus:

Memorandum, That it is covenanted, concluded and agreed between all the parties to these presents, before the ensealing hereof, that immediately after the deceases of the within named William Dormer and Frances Dormer, and before the limitations of the uses therein limited, shall be any whir profitable or beneficial, that the within named William Moor and John Carter shall be farther trusted, that they and the survivor of them, and the heir of the survivor of them, shall permit and suffer Jane Herbert, now wife of James Herbert, niece to the within named William Dormer, to receive and take all the * issues and profits of the within * P. 299. granted premisses, for and during the term of five years from the deceases of the within named William and Frances Dwmer, upon this confidence and trust nevertheless, That the said Jane Herbert shall detain and keep the said issues and profits until Jane Herbert, god-daughter to the within named William Dormer, arrive to the age of fifteen years, and in case the said god-daughter dies before the said time, and the said Jane Herbert the mother survives, then the said sums of money so raised to be to her sole profit, use and benefit; And with this farther trust, that at the said age of fifteen years of the said god-daughter, she shall deliver and be accountable for all the issues and profits to the said Jane, the god-daughter, for her sole benefit and use.

The jury farther find, That 9 April 20 Car. 2. the said William Dormer made his last will and testament in writing figned and sealed in the presence of two credible witnesses, by which he did give and devise as followeth:

I do give all my lands in Woofcot alias Walcot or Granboin the county of Warwick, with all their rents, rights and profits thereunto belonging, unto my nephew William Dormer and his heirs for ever, that is, in manner and form following, Provided always, and my will and meaning is, that my well beloved wife Frances Dormer shall first enjoy it immediately after my decease for the full term of her natural life, and that immediately after the decease of my said wife, then my will and meaning is, that my god-daughter Mrs. Jane Herbert shall enjoy it with all the profits and commodities thereunto belonging, during the term of five years, beginning from the day of my aforesaid wife's decease;

and in case she die, then to Dorothy Herbert, sister to the faid fane Herbert, shall enjoy the aforesaid five years of the aforesaid lands; and in case the said Dorothy die before she shall receive the aforesaid five years, then my will and meaning is, that my niece Jane Herbert, mother to the aforesaid Jane and Dorothy, shall enjoy all the rents and profits of the aforesaid lands in Wooscot alias Walcot or Granborough in the county of Warwick, for the term of five years, beginning from the day of my wife's decease, and after the expiration of the aforesaid five years, Then my will and meaning is, that my nephew, William Dormer, second son to my brother fir Robert Dormer, shall have the inheritance to Item, Whereas there is himself and to his heirs for ever. a fuit at this time between my two nephews concerning 2000/. given by my brother fir Robert Dormer, to his young-* P. 300. er son William Dormer, by virtue of a * codicil made by his father, and figned by himself in his life-time, which codicil one Mr. Lane, a lawyer of the Inner Temple, and myself perused, as being trusted by the said sir Robert Dormer for the aforefaid William, during his minority, by virtue of which codicil we found therein specified to be given to his fon William Dormer 2000l. which sum, after the decease of my brother sir Robert Dormer, was by myself demanded of my nephew Robert Dormer, when he would pay it us in? Who answered, That he hoped he might as well keep it as any other, paying use for it. Upon which answer Mr. Lane and myself were content he should, and so it rested for that time, but myself going presently into France and leaving the whole business to Mr. Lane, who dying before I came back into England, and not having registered the aforesaid codicil, which as appeareth is now loft, only a copy thereof. appears taken by a scrivener, which it seemeth is not sufficient for the recovering the aforesaid sum of 2000l. so the my nephew William Dormer is likely to lose his right: therefore in confideration of this I think myfelf bound imconficience to fee him latisfied out of my own estate for our omission and great oversight of not having registered the faid original. This I have written to shew how that justify to the whole world in this my last will and testament that there was such a codicil, wherein my brother fir R hert Dormer gave to his fon, William Dormer, 2000L that his brother, Robert Dormer never denied payment ther of till now fince his marriage, and my last coming out _____ England. That the said Thomas Read died 1 March 167- 3. and 84. for three years, ending at Michaelmas last, was beautind, and some repairs wanting; and so the desendants have broken their covenant ad damnum 2001.

The defendants plead, that after the making the said ir denture of demise and grant, and assignment by the same -id John Web to the said Michael Knight, and after the said id grant and assignment to the plaintiff, and before any part come of the rent of 481. was behind, viz. 10 October 25 Car. 2. tl= ===== desendants assigned the premisses to one Evan Powel, come which the plaintiff had notice. The plaintiff replies, That at the said assignment was made by fraud and covin betwee the said defendants and the said Evan Powel, to defraud the said plaintiff of the rent aforesaid. To which replication the defendants demurred, and judgment was given in B. R. for the plaintiff; and the defendants brought a writ of error, and assigned the general error. And serjeant Western for the plaintiff in the writ of error. That cannot be said to be by fraud, which the law allows to be done; and here the assignees are not restrained from assigning, and therefore the assignment cannot be said to be by fraud generally; but some particular fraud ought to have been alledged as perception of rents, continuance in possession, &c. For in all = cases where the thing stands indifferent to be fraudulent or not, there fraud cannot be pleaded generally, but the same must be set forth in particular. Plowd. 46. b. That this a& was confirmed 13 Car. 2. cap. 7.

That 22 and 23 Car. 2. cap. 5. It was enacted as followeth, viz.

That from and after the 24th day of June 1671. there Thall be throughout your majesty's kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, raised, Ievied, collected and paid unto your majesty, your heirs and successors, during the space and term of six years, from the 24th day of June aforesaid, and no longer, for beer, ale, cider, and other liquors herein after expressed by way of excise, over and above all other duties, charges and impositions by any former act and acts, set and imposed in manner and form following, That is to say, inter alia, For every gallon of low wines of the first extraction, made of any kind of imported wine or cider, or other materials imported, to be paid by the maker or feller. 2. And that every the common brewers and retailers of ale and beer, and all and every other person and persons liable to and chargeable with the pain of any excise, or new impost upon beer, ale, or other exciseable liquors, by virtue of any former law of excise now in force, shall also be liable to, and charged with the payment of the additional rates and duties hereby imposed, which said additional rates and duties shall be collected, levied and paid in the same manner; and the same persons liable to, and chargeable with the pain thereof, shall, in case of neglect or default of entry or payment, or in case of any other neglect or offence * tending * P. 308. to defraud his majesty, or any of his officers, farmers or collectors of the duties or rates hereby imposed, be also subject to the like proceedings, judgments and executions, and shall likewise incur the same penalties, fines and forfeitures as he or they, his or their heirs and executors or adminiftrators should or might have been subject to, or ought to have incurred for the non-payment of any former duty of excise, or for the like offence committed against any former law of excise now in force; and that all forseitures and offences made and committed against this act, or any clause, article or sentence herein contained, and all appeals, shall be heard, adjudged and determined by such person and persons, and in such manner and form, as the like forfeitures and offences against the former laws of excise are thereby appointed to be heard and determined, and not otherwise; And moreover, that all commissioners, sub-commissioners of excise, all commissioners of appeals, justices of peace, constables, and other officers and ministers whatsoever, shall have, use, and exercise the same jurisdiction, power and authority, whether it be judicial or ministerial for the better ordering, collecting, levying and securing the duties, and the additional rates and duties hereby imposed, as he or they could have had, used or exercised for the better ordering, collecting, levying or fecuring any former rates or duties of excise whatsoever; And that all fines, penalties and forseitures, which shall be incurred by reason of any offence committed against this act, shall be employed, one moiety thereof to the use of the king's majesty, his heirs and successors, another moiety thereof to him or them that shall or will inform or sue for the same; and also, that if any person or persons shall at any time be sued or prosecuted for any thing by him done in pursuance or execution of this act, he and they shall and may plead the general isfue, and give this act in evidence for their defence; and if upon trial a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs be nonsuited, then every such defendant or defendants shall recover his or their double costs.

That by another act of parliament 29 Car. 2. It is enacted, That from and after the 24th Day of June 1677 there shall be throughout your majesty's kingdoms of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, raised, levied, collected and paid unto your majesty, your heirs and fuccessors, during the space and term of three years, from the 24th Day of June aforesaid, and no longer, * P. 309. for beer, ale, * cider and other liquors herein after expressed by way of excise, over and above all other duties, charges and impositions by any former act or acts set or imposed in manner and form following, viz. (inter alia) For every gallon of low wines of the first extraction, made of any kind of imported wine or cider, or other materials imported, to be paid by the maker or feller. 2. And that the several rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale and other liquors, shall be raised, levied, collected and paid unto your majesty, your heirs and successors, during the space and term of three years, as aforesaid, and no longer, in the same manner and form, and by fuch rules, means and ways, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as are contained, mentioned, expressed and directed in the before cited act of parliament of 22 and 23 Car. 2. That the plaintiff at the time of the trespass, and for 3 years before was, and continued a common distiller of strong-waters at Wapping in Middlesex, within the jurisdiction of the chief commissioners of excise, and during all the time aforesaid, did exercise the art and mystery of a distiller of strong-waters, and did extract a certain low wine of the first extraction. one William Hall, gent. within the time aforesaid, viz. 2 Nov. 29. Car. 2. at the principal capital office of excise, in the parish of saint Peter the Poor in London, did exhibit before the chief commissioners and governors of the excise, an information as well for the king as for himself, that the plaintiff being a distiller and maker of strong-waters, and of low wines within the jurisdiction of the said office, between 23 August 29 Car. 2. and 24 September following, being one month, made 5880 gallons of low wines of the first extraction of cider, or other materials imported, and did not pay the excise due for the same, contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided. which information the plaintiff appeared, and pleaded Not guilty. And so far it proceeded, that 13 November 29 Car. 2. the commissioners proceeded to the examination of the ematter aforesaid, and thereupon it did appear by the oath of credible witnesses, that the plaintiff had within the time assoresaid made 5880 gallons of low wines of the first extraction of materials imported, and had not paid the excise due for the same; and thereupon the said commissioners did adjudge that the plaintiff should forfeit 981. being double the value of the said low wines, to be levied of his goods and chattels.

That 18 December 29 Car. 2. the faid commissioners, at * P. 310. the profecution of the said William Hall, made their warrant to the defendants, being messengers belonging to the said office, reciting the judgment aforesaid, and by which the said commissioners did authorize and require the desendants, in his majesty's name, immediately to enter into the plaintiff's house and distillatory, and to levy, by way of distress, the said sum of 981. of the goods and chattels of the plaintiff, and the same goods to be disposed according to the said a&.

That the defendants pursuant to the said warrant, 10 Jan. mentioned in the declaration, did enter into the plaintiff's house, and did take the goods in the declaration mentioned, for the said 981. and that the same are not sufficient to answer the said sum of 981.

That there are dregs of jugar, called molasses, made beyond sea, which are brought into England.

That there are molasses which are made in England.

That the low wines, in the information and judgment specified, were extracted from the molasses, which were extracted and made in England from sugar imported from beyond the seas, and divers other English materials.

That the sugars, from which the molasses of which the said low wines were extracted, were ten times of more value than the rest of the materials which were used by separation of the aforesaid molasses from the sugar aforesaid.

That the molasses can never be made sugar again.

That the plaintiff in making the said low wines doth usually add seven hogsheads of wash, in which are put one quarter of malt, and twelve hogsheads of water to produce the extract of 200 gallons of low wines.

That the principal spirit of that extraction is produced from the molasses. But whether upon the whole matter the defendants be guilty or no, the jurors ignorant, & pe-parliament, without any recompence moving from the crown, and therefore ought to be expounded beneficially for the people.

* P. 311. * 2. 'Tis a new charge and imposition upon the subject, and odious to the people by way of excise.

3. 'Tis found that molasses made in England is used in making of low wines, and 'tis found that this low wine is made of these molasses.

The act distinguishes between low wines made of foreign molasses, and wine made of English materials.

No

No low wine is made of English material alone.

Materials here are intended immediate materials, viz. The molasses which are English.

Object. Materials shall be such as comprehend the principal part in value.

Resp. The bulky part is the materials, and not the value; and here the lump is the quarter of malt; as English cloths are so called if they be made of English cloth, though there be French lace upon them of double the value.

And the material cause is that which is immediate, as cloth is the material cause of a garment, not the wool.

And 'twill be a hard construction to put upon the trade of distillers, who are numerous; and yet the whole rent reserved upon the duty from them to the sarmers is but 50%. per Annum, which would be 5000% if they should be said imported materials, and 'twould not be worth their labour, if so, and multitudes would be undone.

Ward for the defendant. There are two questions.

1. If an action of trespass will lie against the officers, because they acted by authority from the commissioners of excise, who have jurisdiction of the cause, and ought not to be questioned here?

2. Whether the duty be due here to the king.

1. It doth not lie, 8 Co. Dr. Bonham's case, 10 Co. the case of the Marsballey. And when a man acts as judge, he is not questionable. 1 Cr. 341. Pidgeon's case. And the plaintiff ought to have brought his appeal, and not an action of trespass.

Object. Mich. 19 Car. 2. Terry versus Huntington.

Resp. The question there was, Whether the liquors were strong-waters perfectly made? And the jury found against the sact, and so the commissioners had not jurisdiction.

To the 2d. Here is a duty due for these low wines.

of sugar and lees of wine, which are not English, and though English materials are added, that alters not the ease, because 'tis found, that all the English ingredients together, without these materials, would not have made these low wines, & ubi major pars ibi totum. In the case of alnage, which is only for woollen cloth; yet resolved that linsey woolsey pays alnage, though but part wool.

Memorandum, In September 1679. Francis Barrel serjeant at law, who had been a reader of the Middle Temple, died in Kent.

Memorandum, October 22. Sir William Jones, knight, attorney general, surrendered up his patent, and I took the acknowledgment thereof; and so the place of attorney general became void, by leave from his majesty. And afterwards about October 25. sir Crestvel Levinz, knight, was made attorney general.

By the stat. of 26 H. 8. cap. 3. The revenue of the first-fruits and tenths of the clergy was granted to the crown, and the several bishops were thereby appointed collectors thereof in their respective dioces. The auditor was to make up their respective accounts, which were by him transmitted into the office of the pipe, according to the course of the exchequer, where the bishop had his Quietus est, and where all accountants accountable in the exchequer.

P. 313. have their * Quietus est at this day. But the auditor was not thereby enjoined to give the bishop a duplicate of his account; and it was needless then, because he had his Quietus est from the pipe, without see or other reward for the same.

By the statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 45. That course was altered, and a court of first fruits and tenths was erected, consisting of a chancellor, treasurer, attorney, and two auditors, who were to make up the accounts of that revenue, and being fairly ingrossed, were to remain in the same court as the king's records, and not transmitted into the pipe: But no Quietus est or duplicate of his account was thereby enjoined to be made and given to the bishops.

By the statute of 7 E. 6. cap. 1. The auditors were enjoined to make forth and give duplicates of their accounts at the reasonable request and cost of the accountant, wherein the bishops were included, and accordingly the practice has gone ever fince the beginning of queen Elizabeth; and I never heard it was disputed by any until the archbishop of York, when bishop of Carlisle, was pleased to call his duplicate of his account, a Quietus est, and so would pay nothing for it.

Queen Mary by virtue of an act of parliament made in the second session in the first year of her reign, cap. 10. by her letters patent dissolves the said court of first-fruits, and then creates a new office and officer, viz. The remembrancer of the first-fruits and tenths, who was to take all compositions, and to enter all accounts, and to make out all process against Non-folvents, and all proceedings therein, to be under the furvey of the court of exchequer.

In the second and third year of Philip and Mary, the clergy were exonerated from payment of first-finits and tenths.

In the first year of queen Elizabeth, cap. 4. The payment of first fruits and tenths was restored to the crown, and all things concerning the same that remained untaken away the eighth of August in the second and third year of the faid Philip and Mary, were then restored and settled under the survey and government of the exchequer, but the court of first-fruits was not revived, for that was dis- P. 314. folved before the faid eighth of August, and the remembrancer being then established, continues to this day in every degree, fort or condition, as it was at or before the eighth of August in the said second and third year of Philip and Mary, at which time the clergy were exonerated from payment of first-fruits and tenths.

The archbishop requires auditor Bridges to examine, state and pass his accounts for the year 1675, 1676, and 1677, according to the method I conceive he has sent up, which is not pursuant to the auditor's trust, and would be prejudicial to the king to the loss of all arrears owing by the incumbents; for in his state no arrears of the clergy are continued in charge. Not understanding the true nature of those accounts, in that they relate not barely and simply to the bishops receipts and payments, but to the whole revenue of the respective dioceses, each incumbent is thereby charged and discharged. And if no arrears be continued in charge upon the incumbents, they all, or any of them may plead the account made out in the bishop's name (when entered upon record) for their discharge.

HE plaintiff declares of the demise of William Liste of four messuages, twenty acres of land, two hundred acres of meadow, two hundred acres of pasture, and three hundred acres of moor in Atlon, in the parish of Felton. Upon Not guilty pleaded, the jury find a special verdict.

That one John Liste was seised in see of the tenements in question, and so seised 15 August 15 Car. 1. by indenture between himself of the one part, and John Robson, and others, of the other part, for settling the premisses in his blood; and in consideration of the natural love and affection to those to whom the estates afterwards are limited, and for the advancement of his fon Edward Liste, covenants to stand seised, to the use of himself for his life without impeachment of waste, the remainder to the use of the faid Edward Liste for his life, the remainder to the use of the first son of the said Edward, and the heirs male of his body, so to the second, third and fourth sons, and so severally and respectively to every of the heirs male of the body of the faid Edward Lise, lawfully to be begotten, and the heirs male of the body of such heirs male lawfully to be begotten, according to their ages and seniorities, and for definit

of such issue, to the vse of William Liste of Warkworth, gent. for his life, and after his decease, to the use of his first son in tail male, and so to his other sons, the remainder to the right heirs of the covenantor.

Provided, That if it shall happen the said Edward Liste to die without issue male of his body lawfully begotten, then the said covenantor and his heirs shall stand seised, to the use, intent and purpose that they shall raise out of the profits the several sums of 1001. a-piece for each and every of the * daughters of the said Edward Liste, to be paid to * P. 316. the eldest first, and so in order according to their several ages; and the said John Liste had issue Edward his eldest ion.

1 Mar. 17 Car. 1. John Liste died to feised. Edward had iffue only a daughter still alive:

Hill. 1649. a recovery was suffered wherein Ralph Forfer was demandant, the said Thomas and John Forster tenants, and the said Liste vouchee, and he vouched over the common vouchee.

1 May 1674 Edward Lisse died without any issue, but his daughter; That at his death all the estates limited by the indenture of 15 August 15 Car. 1. preceding the limitation to William Liste named in the said indenture, and now lessor of the plaintiff, did end and determine.

The said William Liste was cousin of the whole blood of the said John Lisse.

20 January 28 Car. 2. William Liste entered upon the possession of the defendants, and made the lease to the plaintiff, who entered and was possessed until the defendants ejected him. And if for the plaintiff, for the plaintiff, &c.

And judgment was given in B. R. for the plaintiff, and now the defendants bring a writ of error.

And I conceive judgment ought to be reversed.

The single question in this case will be (for I do not think the proviso which appoints the daughters portions will make any doubt, because 'tis found in the verdict, That all estates precedent to William Liste's estate determined upon the death of Edward) What estate Edward Liste had by virtue of the indenture of 15 August 15 Car. 1. for if he had but an estate for life, then the judgment ought to be affirmed; but if he had an estate-tail, then the judgment ought to be reversed; and I hold that he had an estate-tail. There

There are but three arguments that I can find, that car be urged why he should have but an estate for life, viz.

- 1. The intent of the covenantor.
- 2. That the word (heirs) here must be taken for some illues.
- 3. That heirs male here must take by way of a springin = 3 uic.
- P. 317.
- 1. As to the first. That it was the intent of the co venantor, that the heirs male of Edward should take be purchase, seems apparent.

1. From these words, so, viz. as the four sons, so ever = = other heir male have it.

- 2. Severally and respectively as they become in being.
- 3. Why should but four sons be named, had not the co venantor intended that every other fon should take by the subsequent words?

4. It's provided, that Edward shall have power to make provision for the daughters, which needed not have bee ======= if the covenantor intended an estate-tail:

5. To the heirs male of such heirs male, had been nece lefs,

All which do shew that it was the intent of the covery

And this holds as well in case of a use, as at the co mon law; for before the statute 27 H. 8. after uses had gained the reputation of inheritances descendible, the co mon law directed the descent of them, and therefore there was possession fratris of a use; as well as of land. 5 E. 4.

And therefore in our case it being expressly against tale of law, that where the ancestor takes an estate for life, and afterwards the land is limited to him and the heirs of his body (heirs) shall be a word of limitation. I Co. 104. a. Shellie's case. These words shall not be construed according to the intent of the party, but according to the rule of law, and so Edward thall be in of an estate-tail executed P. 3 by vittue of these words.

2. As to the second argument. Where this limitation is to Heir not tal The heirs male, that is, to his (issues) male, and so as much for issue. As (fons.)

True it is, in the scripture phrase 'tis sometimes so taken; Husband, so 23, This is the heir, let us kill him; and St. Paul, The heir called after whilf he is a child is under tutors and governors, and differeth describe the mot from a servant.

person, 8 Co.

But in our law 'tis never taken so, no not in a will.

In Foster and Rumsey's case, Mich. 1657. B. R. The 9 Co. 127. b. Case was to this purpose, thus: Sir Robert Ramsey had issue Sunday's case. Tour sons, Robert, Nicholus, John and George; Robert being = n alien had only daughters; Nicholas had iffue Patrick a Folh by his will gives his land to the heir of his brother Nicholas in fee, Nicholas being then alive. Resolved, Pa-Brick the fon did not take; and yet in common parlance the eldest son is called heir. 2. It might amount to a descrip-Rion of the person, and to enure as an executory devise, wiz. To the heir of my brother Nicholas. 1. To the per-Ion who shall be heir at the death of my brother Nicholas; and yet resolved ut supra: For the proper use of the word Meir, is to make an inheritance. 1 Co. 103. b. Shelly's case. And should the word heir be otherwise taken, and only as a description of the person, it would make strange alteration, especially in wills.

Now if this word cannot be taken for fon or issue in a will, much less in a deed, which is contrived by learned advice.

The third and last argument is, That this estate may springing Uses. nure to the heirs male by way of springing use; as thus, the heirs male of Edward, that is, To such others as all be his heirs male of his body, when they shall have a veity to to take; and in the mean time the use to sleep he covenantor; and so was Pibus and Mitford's case in R. 25 Car. 2. B. R. where the case was thus. Upon a ial verdict in ejectment, Michael Mitford was seised in and had issue two sons, viz. Robert by his first wife, Ralph by his second wife, whose name was Jane, and fo being seised by indenture covenants to stand seised, aster the date of the said indenture, To the use of the heirs male of his body begotten on the body of his said wife Jane, with P. 319. * remainder to his own right heirs. And the question was

Whether any estate did accrue to the son by the seconwife? And adjudged that there did by way of a springingular.

But I think there is good reason for that case, and ye not for the case in question. For in that case, 'tis true the covenantor had all the estate in him at and after the time of the covenant, but it cannot be said that he had an estate so life, or any other particular estate, and so 'tis not within the rule of Shellie's case. But in our case Edward Life was feised for life (and so the verdical expressly finds it) are so within the rule of Shellie's case directly.

And if this construction should be made, I cannot see what case the rule in Shellie's case will hold; for all may interpreted as springing uses, and to lie in gremio Begis to there be a son. And I take the rule in Shellie's case to be positive law, of which there can no reason be given, but a land-mark by which other cases are bounded; and sure many rules in our law, as why a fine should not be reversed for non-age of the conusor but by inspection during the non-age; and yet in a common recovery tis otherwise so life and death are to be tried by jury, yet the life of the husband in a writ of dower, is to be tried by witnesses.

But upon the whole matter, I take this case to be the same with Lewis Braules's case, and that here Edward has an estate-tail; and so judgment ought to be reversed.

AUNDERS for the plaintiff. The sole question depend upon the fine and conveyance levied and made by Charcarl of Derby; and in this case there are two points.

1. Whether the private act of parliament of 4 Jac. hallered the estate-tail granted by the letters patent of 2 - 3. and hath made it another estate, or hath altered it some accidents.

2. Admitting that the estate be altered, Whether this testate be restrained from alienation, by 32 H. 8. cap. 36.

It appears upon the verdict, that earl Charles received 1700/. for the sale of the land. But the land is of value of 2000/. per Annum, and the purchasers have resulted themselves at least 40000/.

Befor !

Besore I shall speak to the first point, I premise, 1. * P. 320. at the reversion of the crown continues as it was at the e of the making of the letters patent. 2. If this act of fac. had not been made, the first estate-tail could not re been barred. 3. If the estate-tail is not barred, then ther the feoffment nor fine have made any discontinuance. Lit. 355. a.

And that the act of A Jac. hath not altered the first estate-, I shall prove, by answering some objections already de, and then produce reasons.

1. Object. The first estate had no power to make joines to the wives of them, or the wives of their eldest ites, which this estate hath.

Resp. It doth appear, that 'twas the intent that only a rd part should be so disposed, which was no more than y should have for dower; and some of the lands are reined from that privilege.

2. Object. By the letters patent every of the grantees was mt in tail, and might commit waste; but so cannot tet for life by this act.

Resp. The omission of that privilege doth not alter the ite; for if the king gives land upon condition, that the ntee shall not commit waste, and afterwards an act of liament is made which releases that condition, that doth alter the estate. So e contra, If an act of parliament Il take away the privilege of committing waste, it doth alter the estate.

1. Object. By the letters patent the lands are to be holden service of chivalry, and now here will be no tenure.

Resp. The tenure doth not alter the estate, because 'tis a collateral accident.

1. Object. By the letters patent there was an intire estate en; but here are several estates, for life, and estates-tail, ich are not intire.

Resp. These estates are all the same in quantity, which y would have been without the act, and it's the same ite as to duration; for what soever estates are here made, le out of the estate tail, and the reversion is not touched, I that was the intent of the act, as appears by the faving; the enacting part is, That the several persons shall have teveral estates under the savings following. And this vate act hath cut that, which was but one intire estate, o several pieces; and Co. Lit. 372. b. The third obserion there is, . That if the king keeps the reversion, * P. 321. ie of the mesne estates can be barred; and so in Stafl's case.

Object. If the heir shall bring a Formedon, he must count upon this act of 4 Jac. and therefore the estate arises by that act, which is the donor.

Resp. The heir need not here bring a Formedon, but may enter; but if he will admit himself out of possession, he shall not count upon the act only, but upon the letters patent and the act also; for suppose the first intail be spent, the king must count upon the letters patent in a Formedon in Reverter. This act is not the donor, but the crown; for the parliament cannot give, but by virtue of the legislative power estates may be settled or changed, as in this cafe.

There are some things to be observed, by which the in tent of the act appears, that the estate-tail should not baltered, wherein there are remainders to several persons, i order, That (whereas before there was some dispute wh were first to take! all persons might be satisfied with the order in this at prescribed concerning the same.

r. In the faving, there is livery and primer seisin refer ed to the crown, as if the act had not been made, which could not be if the estates were new.

2. Power to make jointures for life, had an eye to t first estate-tail, for there is a power to bind the issue, bear b not the remainders; and so of leases; but the king show we not be bound.

The intent of the parliament was to make a settlement in the family, and not to give the parties power to alien, they intended by the faving to preserve the lands from a lienation, as if the act had never been made.

As to the second point. That this estate is preserved by the statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 36. By the statute of 4 H . 7. cap. 24. and before 32 H. 8. cap. 36. a fine did not bar ordinary estate-tail. True it is, that Co. Lit. 372. is _____ontrary, and that it did bar; but it is but his opinion, and he cites no authority for it, and there are other authorities against his opinion. The statute of 32 H. 8. says, T hat there was diversity of interpretation and expounding of ₹hat statute, whether such fine should bar the issues in tail; and [bet to it appears by the book of 19 H. 8. 6. which says, I the words of the act of 4 H. 7. are satisfied by barring the issues of tenant in fee-simple; and the issues in tail, the * P. 322. in some measure privies, * yet they claim paramount the And general words in an act of parliament dofine. mt comprehend an estate-tail, as in the case of Premunire. Now what reason had the judges to construe the general words of 4 H. 7. that a fine shall bind as well privies as strangers, that the issues shall be bound by a vofuntary act of the tenant in tail, and yet that he shall not forfeit his estate for treason, which is the highest offence? Observations out of the statute of 32 H. 8. itself.

1. There was diversity of opinions in this point.

2. The words are, Be it enacted (not declared) so it is a conflictutive, not a declarative act, it is Introductivum novi Juris, non declarativum veteris, that fines shall bar an estatezail.

- 3. That the fines heretofore levied shall be a bar to the estate-tail, which shews that the statute of 4 H. 7. was too feeble to do it.
- 4. The third proviso, That the act shall not extend to soch fines as were then in suit, by which it appears that there were recoveries of lands in tail of which fines had been levied.
- 5. The words of the statute are, That this act shall not extend to fines of lands, whereof the reversion is in the king, but that every such fine shall be of like force as it was or should be, if the act had not been made. Observe the statute of 34 H. S. recites, that there was a great mischief by this doubt for a recovery, but not by a fine, which shews that fines were not used in such cases.

Serjeant Maynard for the defendant. The estate-tail is not extinguished, but altered. The points are,

But admit that there is no such custom, or that it be doubtful, yet it is more agreeable to justice to grant a Procedendo, because otherwise there would be a failure of justice, because there is no other remedy to restrain these cars, which will, when without number, annoy the streets; and if a Procedendo be granted, then upon the trial, the custom may be controverted, and found specially.

Here Player cannot proceed in this court, because the action here must be brought in the name of the mayor, commonalty and citizens; but this by-law orders the action to be brought in the mayor's court by the chamberlain, and for this cause a Procedendo was granted in Wilford's case, Moor 403. pl. 538. so for calling a woman whore. 2 Roll. Abr. 69. 1 Cro. 486. Adjournatur ad proximam Cur.

Afterwards it was argued for the defendant, That this case differs from all cases of by-laws made by other corporations, in this, That we shall presume prime intuitu, that this by-law is good, until it shall be found upon examination desective, because it is not a by-law made by a private company for managing their particular affairs. Nor 2dly, by a corporation made up and confisting of a small number of men. Nor 3dly, by men obscurely educated and skilful only in trade and not in laws.

But a by-law made by the body of the great and most famous city of London; a city known, where England is not; a city which is well skilled not only in trade of all forts, but in learning likewise.

And by-laws of this nature made by the whole city, are made not only by the lord mayor and aldermen, but also by the common council representing all other the citizens, attended and assisted with the recorder, coun'el at law, and very many others learned and well read, not only in the laws of this kingdom, but in all other human learning.

So that he that will fuddenly censure such a by-law without well weighing it, and strictly comparing it with the rules, whereby all by-laws are to be examined, will undertake a great talk, and with much difficulty (if at all) obtain a justification from knowing men.

And as fir Francis Moor says in his argument of Deve-* P. 326. nant and Hardie's case 583. All by-laws are accommodated to the utility and advantage of the place. And so a by-law made in Newcastle may be good for that place, which may not serve for London or Norwich.

> So I make no question but that this by-law hath been found in the main of it, so far as to order the carts and carmen, a most advantageous law for the city: for, considering the humour of such men, the populousness of the place, the quality of persons there inhabiting, and thither resorting, and the occasions of stopping the streets and lanes, which though much amended of late, yet narrow enough for the passengers, some such law is very fit to prevail in this city.

And the rather for that this is not a trade, but an employment; and therefore where it is objected, that the city may as well restrain brewers, taverns, tallow-chandlers, &c.

I answer, There is not the same reason, for they are trades to which men are bound apprentices, and to take away their trade is to take away their livelihood.

Nor 2dly, That the overfight is committed to another corporation, for I cannot see, why it may not be as well managed by them, nay better than by others.

Object. What if the president will not grant a licence?

Resp. 'Tis not to be presumed when we consider what great trust he is in already, that he should falsify it in so small a matter. 2dly, The same objection may be made to the clerk of the inrolments in Chancery, or any officer of any court of justice. And if an action of the case will not lie here, yet an equivalent remedy may be had, for upon an address to the mayor and aldermen there will be provifrom in such case. So that so far I shall not doubt of the validity of this by-law.

That which sticks with me is, That part of it from whence arises this very controversy, which is, That 17s. 4d. per annum, and no more, shall be received and paid for a carroom, and 203. and no more, or greater fine, upon any admittance or alienation of a carroom, which 17s. 4d. per annum, and 20s. aforefaid, is wholly to be applied towards the relief and maintenance of the poor orphans harboured and to be harboured in Christ's hospital; and if he sball work without licence he shall forfeit 138. 4d.

In all privileges either by prescription or patent to make by-laws, there is this clause either expressed or implied, that they be ad utilitatem Regis & Populi, bonæ fidei congrua, & rationi consona, & dummodo non sint in præjudicium populi, as • we may see in Waggoner's cale, 8 Co. 121. b. and Da- * P. 327. venant and Hardie's case, Moor 576. and many others.

Now it is faid to be ad utilitatem of the people when

toll travers and other tolls.

There are mutual advantages, and the duty is but equivalent to the profit. And so was Blackwell-Hall's case, 5 Co. 62 b. the penny for hallage was to pay for the labour of the searcher.

And the monies due upon measuring of cloth so far as to answer the charge and the profit of the people was agreed to be good, 11 H. 4. 86. b. though no judgment was therein given.

Now examine whether this be so or no.

T. Here is no compulsion for the carmen; so that my goods may be burnt, and I cannot force a carman to carry them away.

2. Here is 17s. per annum and 20s. fine; for what? for the use of the poor of Christ's-hospital.

This hath no respect to the overseeing of the carts, the streetmen and others are to be provided for otherwise, and so not like the case of Blackwell-Hall. So that I take this to be a pure imposition without regard to the thing in question. And there might have been as well 171. per annum, and 201. sine as this that is imposed; though perhaps the circumstances of persons be more considered in this. But that will not alter the case.

P. 328. And I do not find any by-law of this nature in any place. The case of Andrew Deveen of restriction of brokers hath been cited, but that was to restrain the office, but not to reserve a rent or fine. And though it be said that 40s. per annum is now paid, it may not be by that by-law.

I find this case (as hath been cited) 1 Roll. Abr. 364.

WITALLOP for the plaintiff. This molasses is neither Trespass.
within the words of the act. 2. Nor can it consist Postea 337.
with the grounds of philosophy. 3. Nor grounds of law.

As to the first. If the molasses is not at all imported, the necessary consequence will be, that it is not a material imported; but if it was at all imported, it must be either when the sugar was imported, or before, or since; but it could not be when the sugar was imported, being not in Esse, but was made of sugar here in England, and therefore it could not be made a material here imported.

Suppose there should be a prohibition that no molasses should be imported, and a man imports sugar of which molasses is afterwards made, this should not be within the prohibition.

As to the 2d, Molasses differs essentially from sugar; for what does not partake of the same specifick form differs essentially, but molasses doth not partake of the same specifick form with sugar; Ergo, &c.

Now there is in this making of molasses a separation of parts, and consequently a new specifick form, as cheese, butter, &c. are produced by separation of parts, and do specifically differ from milk.

When it appears farther by the verdict, that the English materials are contributory to this prohibition, and it cannot be said, that molasses is the Faces of sugar, since Faces are only of siquid things, neither can they be compared to property the sees of wine; for sugar after twenty years standing would never produce sees. And the verdict does not find that it is made of sugar, but a separation and extraction from it. For the sweetness may arise from the English materials. And suppose corn should be brought from beyond sea, the siquor arising therefrom by extraction would not be an imported material. So rose-water from roses imported.

P. 329.

As to the third, From the grounds of law, molaffes cannot be said to be a material imported. 1. Not according to the rule of law, Forma dat esse, and mutata forma mutatur substantia.

just. Inst. l. 2. Tit. 1. § Cum ex aliena. Minsing. 118.

The ancient Roman lawyers before Justinian, as to the question of property, had two several sects, viz. one of Sabinus, and the other of Provulus; but afterwards, it was agreed amongst the civilians, That in all cases where this new form may be reduced to the former state, the property remains to him who hath the old substance, but otherwise not. Now here molasses cannot be reduced to sugar again. And with this agrees Hill. 16 H. 7. 16. pl. 6. Moor 19. pl. 67. Leather cut into shoes may be retaken, but not wool made into cloth, or milk made into cheese, Res corrupte & transformate abesse videntur. A thing arising from the parts is not any of the parts. Here all the materials are not so-reign and imported.

As to the value, it is not material, but the quantity is as to the abstraction. Here is no proportion of the molasses found in the verdict in making the low wines.

2. It is not within the act of parliament. There is no such maxim, as Not to recede from the letter of the act, if consisting with the law.

The acts of excise discourage foreign trade, and encourage home made manufadures.

2. The acts charge only foreign commodities, or things made beyond sea. The book of rates says, that molasses is a home manusacture.

These acts are penal, and therefore ought to be taken in the plain and not strained sense; and therefore 39 Eliz. cap. 15. which takes away clergy from one who takes money, &c. out of an house in the day-time, extends not to an accessary. 1 Cr. 473. And for want of such heirs, then to the use and behoof of my cousin Gideon Durdant, and the heirs of his body; and for want of fuch heirs, the same to be and remain to the right heirs of me the said Henry Wicks.

After the death of the said Henry Wicks, the devisor, the said John Higden by virtue of the said devise entered into the said premisses contained in the said declaration, and became seised thereof in his demesse as of freehold, for the * P. 332. * life of the said Robert Durdant. Judgment was given in B. R. for the plaintiff, and now the defendant brings a writ of error.

Samders for the plaintiff in the writ of error. The case upon the record, as to our purpose, is no more but this: Henry Wicks being seised in see devises to John Higden and his heirs, during the life of Robert Durdant, the remainder to the heirs male of Robert Durdant now living. And the question is, Whether George Durdant, the only son of the faid Robert, shall take in remainder during the life of his father? And I hold that this remainder is a contingent remainder, and not vested during the life of his father. The words (Now living) would have a description of the person, as the statute of 25 E. 3. cap. 2. Of Treason, To kill the king, queen, or their eldest son and heir.

Resp. It is not treason to conspire the death of their heir, but eldest son:

Object. Quare Filium & Hæredem rapuit.

Resp. It the writ were now to be tramed, it would be * P. 333. otherwise; but there is a description of the person, but no person is described only by the name of heir, but some addition is made to it, for Non est hæres viventis.

Object. Heirs male now living.

Resp. Now living shall not be referred to heirs male, be- Poph. 21. cause there can be no such person during the life of Robert, but Now living shall be referred to Robert as Proximus antecedens.

But admit that heirs male now living should be a description of the person, yet here is no such person capable to take in the life of the father. If this were a remainder vested. it should be either by legal construction, or because wills are favoured in law.

Object. The words here shew the intent of the testator. Resp. This construction cannot consist with the intention of the testator, for he did not intend that George should have an estate during the life of his father, or for life only. And the word heir may be intended the description of a person, but not when it is in the plural number. And if George shall take here by remainder vested, he shall take only for life, which was never intended. On the other side, the whole will is sensibly penned; for there is a devise to Higden during the life of Robert Durdant, remainder to the heirs of him, which shews his intent, that his heirs shall take as purchasers. And this construction agrees with Littleton, sec. 30. where an estate is limited to the heirs of the body of the father, it is an estate-tail, and the word heirs makes an inheritance, Co. Lit. 9. but heir makes but an estate for life. I Co. 63. Archer's case, I Roll. Abr. 832. Devise to a seme and her heir, 2 Cr. 313. Moor 593: Clark versus Day, 2 Roll. Abr. 253. Pause versus Lowdal.

Object. What estate shall the heirs of Robert have?

Resp. Heir in the singular number doth not make an inheritance, and here is no limitation to the females.

George cannot take as heir in the life of his father, for what if his father were attainted of felony or treason.

P. 334. George could never take.

Now living shall be construed to such as shall be heir to Robert Durdant, and now living, Vide Archer's case, and Hob. 29. Counden versus Clark, and 2 Leon. 70. Challoner allowable notwithstanding the statute of Frauds and Perjuries, 29 Car. 2. The words whereof are, That no will in writing concerning any goods or chattels or personal estate shall be repealed, nor shall any clause, devise or bequest therein be altered or changed by any words, or will by word of mouth only, except the same be in life of the testator committed to writing, and after the writing thereof read unto the testator, and allowed by him, and proved to be so done by three witnesses at the least. And resolved by sir Hugh Wyndham justice, myself and several civilians joined with us in the commission, That as this case is, the nuncupative codicil is good; for by the death of Elizabeth before the testator, the devise of Residuum became totally void, and so there was no will, quaterus as to that part. And so the nuncupative codicil was quass a new will for so much, and was no alteration of the will as to so much, because there was no such will, its operation being determined.

And whereas it was objected, that by the same reason, if any part of a will in writing shall be made by force or fraud, the thing so given and specified in such part may be devised by a nuncupative codicil, and so the will altered contrary to the words of the statute. We answered, that if such part of a will were so obtained, it was no part of the will, and so * such codicil would be no alteration of what * P. 335. was not; but would be an original will for so much. So if A. be possessed of an estate of 1000l. and by will in writing gives 5001. of it to B. he may give the residue by a nuncupative will, so as he do not alter the executor.

About ten years before his death the lady Cholmeley paid to him the 500% and whether this legacy is due is the question; and we resolved, that the legacy was due, though the security was altered; because it is a pure legacy, neither Legatum Nominis nor Legatum Debiti; and the words are only to shew that he meant the legacy should be as certain to her as he could make it. And the counsel for the. legatee X 2 legatee cited Digest. de legatis quidam Testament. 96. and also Theobal and Wynn's case lately adjudged, where a devise was of a legacy out of debts due in several counties, and they were called in before the testator's death, and yet the legacy remained good. And Hill. 1671. Squib versus Chichely, where the lady Verney gave legacies out of monies then out at interest, and called in before the testator's death. And a difference was taken between a legacy in numerat. and a specifick legacy; for in the first case the legacy will remain, though the debt ex quo be paid in; but the specifick legacy may be lost by being altered. HE plaintiff declares of the demise of William-George-Richard earl of Derby made 2 May 29 Car. 2. of one messuage, three water-grist mills, ten acres of land, ten acres of meadow, and fifteen acres of pasture in the parish of Hope alias Queenhope for five years, from the first day of the said month of May. Upon Not guilty pleaded, the jury find a special verdict, viz.

That long before the trespass and ejectment, king Richard the third was seised of the manor of Hope in his demesne as of see in right of his crown, of which the tenements are parcel.

P. 339. That the said king being so seised 17 September 2 R. 3. by his letters patent under his great seal of England, granted the said manor and tenements (inter alia) to sir Thomas Stanley knight, lord Stanley, and afterwards earl of Derby, and sir George Stanley knight, lord Lestrange son and heir apparent of the said Thomas lord Stanley, and the heirs

Ferdinando entered, and had no issue male but only three daughters, viz. Anne, Frances and Elizabeth.

16 April 37 Eliz. Ferdinando died seised in the life of his brother William, and so the premisses descended to him, who entered.

That

That after the death of Ferdinando, an act of parliament 4 Jac. was made for determining differences as followeth, viz.

In most humble manner beseeching your royal majesty, your highness loyal, faithful and obedient subjects, William earl of Derby of the most noble order of the garter, knight, Henry earl of Huntingdon, and the countess Elizabeth his wise, Gray Bridges, lord Chandos, and the lady Anne his wife, eldest daughter of Ferdinando late earl of Derby, six John Egerton knight, son and heir male apparent of the right honourable Thomas lord Ellesmere, lord chancellor of England, and the lady Frances his wife, which said William earl of Derby is brother and heir male, and the said ladies Anne, Frances and Elizabeth are daughters and co-heirs of the said Ferdinando late earl of Derby, who died without issue male of his body.

That whereas after the death of the said earl Ferdinand divers variances, suits and controversies did arise and grow tetween your said subjects William earl of Derby, and the said ladies, as well touching the estate, right and title of, in and to the honours, castles, manois, lands, tenements and hereditaments of the faid earl, as also touching the filial portions and advancements of and for your faid subjects, the faid ladies Anne, Frances and Elizabeth; for appealing, ending and determining of which said variances, suits and controversies, the said William earl of Derby, and other issues males of the faid honourable house of Derby, as also the said ladies, before any their inter-marriages, by and with the advice and consent of the right honourable Alice countess dowager of Derby, late wife of the said Ferdinand, and mother of the said ladies, and by and with the advice of other their honourable friends, and of their counsel learned, and officers, did submit themselves to the arbitrement, order and judgment of the right honourable Thomas lord Buckhurft, lord high treasurer of England, and now earl of Derset, and of the right honourable Guibert earl of Shrewfoury, the right honourable George earl of Cumberland deceased, George lord Hunsdon deceased, and of the right honourable fir Robert Cecil knight, principal secretary to your highness, and now earl of Salisbury, being the honourable well afsected friends, as well of the said William earl of Derby. and other the issues male descended of that honourable house. as of the faid ladies heirs general, which faid honourable persons are elected to end the said controversies, having deliberately heard the said parties and their learned counsel and

I. That the consideration paid for this land by the feoffees of Charles earl of Derby is not material one way or other.

Reversion in Crown.

2. The reversion continues in the crown, notwithstanding the fine, feoffment or act of parliament.

4 Jac.

3. If this act of 4 Jac. had not been made, the first estate-tail could not have been barred.

Discontinuance, Lit. fect. 625.

4. If the estate-tail is not barred, neither the feofiment nor fine made any discontinuance; for Littleton says, seel. 625. That none can discontinue an estate-tail, unless be discontinue the reversion; and therefore if the tenant in tail infeoff the donor, it is no discontinuance of the entail.

Warranty.

5. The warranty contained in the fine of 1654, doth P. 345. no prejudice to the estate of the issue of Charles, because 'tis a lineal warranty, and there is no assets found.

> These things being premised, there are but two points to be spoke unto.

> 1. What effect the fine in 1654. hath, taking it abstractively from the statute of 34 H. 8. cap. 20.

Point.

As to the first. The case is no more but this, tenant in tail, the revertion in the crown, after the statute of 4 H. 7. cap. 24. and before 34 H. 8. levies a Fine come cee, Gen with proclamations, and hath issue and dies, Whether his. issue be by this fine harred?

And as to this point, I do conceive, that if the states of 4 H. 7, will not enable the operation of the fine to ber the the issues, the statute of 32 H. 8. cap. 36. will not, because Proviso in there is a provised in that statute, that the same shall not 32 H. 8. extend to fines levied of lands granted to the conusor or his uncestors in tail, by letters patent from the crown, the re-Version whereof at the time of the levying the said fine being in the crown; but that every such fine shall be of like force as they were or should have been, if the said ad had never been had or made.

So that now I must consider what power tenant in tail had to har his issues by the statute of 4 H. 7.

And I am of opinion, that the issues were not barred by fuch fine, by the statute of 4 H. 7.

To prove this, 1. It will not be denied, but that a fine levied before 4 H. 7. would not have barred the issues. It would have been a discontinuance, but not a bar. Ipso jure fit nullus, viz. it shall not bind the right, but prevent the entry. Co. 2 Inst. 336. For the statute of Westm. 2. de Co. 2 Inst. donis, reciting the form of fees-simple conditional, which 336. are now estates-tail; and the mischiefs, that the seoffees after issue had power to alien, and to disinherit the issues, and to prevent the possibility of reverter to the donor, which was totally against the intent, and therefore durum videbatur, i. e. iniquum, says the lord Hob. 336. That statute ordains, quod non habeant illi, quibus tenementum sic suerit datum, potestatem alienandi; and that if any fine thall be levied, ipso jure sit nullus. The matter mentioned in this statute was to * plausible, that it wrought much upon the minds of * P. 346. then, infomuch as they were so far from finding out of ways to alien, that they thought themselves bound in conscience, as well as by the words of the statute, not to alien, as we may see in Dostor & Student in his first book. And Little- Dr. & Stud. ton fays, 362. That a condition to restrain tenant in tail 1. 1. from altening farther than for his own life, is good; for Lit. sect. 362, that fuch farther alienation amounting to a discontinuance is contrary to good right, feel. 363. And though the project of justice Rickil in the time of R. 2. and of Thirning in the time of H. 5. took no effect, yet asterwards many conveyances to uses to make perpetuities were contrived, and never judicially examined till the time of queen Elizabeth.

About five years after, viz. 18 E. 1. was the stat. of Modus levandi Fines made, which fays, That a fine lexied shall bar parties and privies, by which word, Privies, is meant only privies in blood, and not privies in estate, says the lord Coke 2 Inst. 516. And whereas the words of that Co. 2 Inst. act are, And all other people of the world, yet do they not 516, 517. abrogate the statute of Westm. 2. which provided for prefervation servation of estates-tail, fol. 517. And the issue in tail claims not from his ancestor in privity of blood or estate, but per formam doni, and therefore not concerned in such fine, unless by estoppel, so as not to plead qd' partes finis mihil habuerunt. For before 26 H. 8. though tenant in tail were attainted of treason, his issue should inherit, for the legal blood was not corrupted. And Littleton says, That if tenant in tail infeoff his fon within age and die, the issue in tail shall be remitted, being (as the lord Hobart says, fol. 71.) a kind of third person, by the intent of the statute of Westm. 2. though Fitz. Remitter 13. be of a contrary opinion.

The statute of 27 E. 1. de Finibus levatis doth take away the heir, either in see or tail from pleading quod partes Finis nihil habuer'. But that was not in respect of the estatetail; but by reason of the natural blood between the heir and ancestor; and 'twas only in respect to fines, that they should be an estoppel to such pleas.

Then the statute of non-claim 34 E. 3. cap. 16. reaches not to issues in tail, because they were not concerned in claims.

Then comes the statute of 4 H. 7. which says, That after the ingrossing of every fine to be levied in C. B. of any lands, the same shall be openly and solemnly read and proclaimed; and the fame to be a final end, and conclude privies and strangers.

P. 347.

8. b. pl. 84.

* Now no reason appears why privies in 4 H. 7. shall include issues in tail, more than in 18 E. 1.

As to the objection, That if it had not been for the faving, all estates-tail, remainders, and all others had been barred; I answer, I cannot see any more reason for that, than why estates-tail should not be within the statute of. Præmunire; the words whereof are, That all the lands shall be forfeited to the king. And yet in Trudgin's case, Pasch. Co. 3 Inst. 126. 21 Eliz. Co. 3 Inst. 126. It was resolved, That tenant in tail shall forfeit only during his life; for, by the word forfeit, shall be intended only such lands as he may lawfully forseit; so here, a fine levied of lands, i. e. of such lands of which a fine might by law be levied; but of lands intailed, the fine ipso jure sit nullus, says, Westm. 2. And the court ought not before the statute of 4 H. 7. to take a fine Mich. 22 E. 3. of tenant in tail, Mich. 22 E. 3. 18. b. pl. 84. And if there was tenant in tail, in reversion expectant upon an estate for life, tenant for life ought not in a Quid juris clamat to # torn; for 'twas a good plea, that the conusor was tenant in tail. Trin. 2 E. 3. 23. pl. 8. Trin. 37 H. 6. 33. a. pl. 19.

Mich. 2 E. 2. Fitz. Age 77. 1 Roll Abr. 188. B. pl. 16. Mich. 48. E. 3. 23. a. pl. 7. Co. Lit. 318. a. and 3 Co: 86.4.

The lord Hobart in his argument of Mackwilliam's case, Tays, that there was a great fight between intails and fines: how far fines had operation upon them, was very doubtful, Jones 39. And the very statute of 32 H. 8. says, that by diversity of interpretation and expounding of 4 H. 7. it had been and then was doubted, and called in question, whether fines levied according to 4 H. 7. by tenant in tail, should bind the issues, and by reason thereof divers debates, controversies, suits and troubles were begun and moved; and very certainly so it was; for Pasch 19 H. 8. 6. pl. 5. Dyer 2. 19 H. 8. 6. b. the very point came in question, and before all the just- Dyer a. b. tices at Serjeants-Inn, there were three one way, and five the other; and Brook was one of the five who held that the fine should bar. And yet he himself in his abridgment, Tit. Assurances 6. & Fines de Terres 121. seems to be of opi- Br. Ass. 6, and nion, that such fine did not bar; for he says, that if tenant Fines de Teres in tail, the reversion in the crown, levies a fine with pro- res 121. clamations, the issues are barred by 32 H. 8. Now that statute left the validity of the fine to what it was before. But Br. Tail 41. is, that a recovery barred the issues before 34 Br. Tail 41. H. 8. as the lord Coke cites Brook, Co. Lit. 372. b. and says it Co. Lit. 372. was so adjudged 28 H. 8. But the book in Brook's Abridg-Brook had retracted his opinion, or the reporter was mis- This could not taken. And as Dr. Pollex fen well observed, Brook was made be the same chief justice of C. B. 2 Mar. and was either a judge, or at Brook in 19

the being a Chief and C the height of his practice in 38 H. 8. about which time he ther I think. was of the opinion cited by the lord Coke, and he lived near the making of the statute of 32 H. 8. and so might better know the construction of it. His abridgment was published 16 Eliz. after his death, Co. Epist. ad 9 Rep. He likewise Dyer 32 pl. 1. cites Dyer 52. but there is no such case; and he cits Plowd. 555. and 'tis very true that Manwood arguendo says as much.

My lord Coke says likewise in the same place; and in 2 Infl. 516 and 517. That if tenant in tail after 4 H. 7. had levied a fine, by virtue of that statute, and 32 H. 8. it had barred his issues; and so doth the lord Hobart in the argument of Mackwilliams's case 332. but not 4 H. 7 alone; and fol. 346. he seems that alone could not do it; so that when I read their books I cannot but give very great reverence to them; but I must acknowledge myself unable to understand understand them, or how the law came to be so, and therefore I leave them to their own opinions with all due respect.

Object. The lord Hobart 332. cites Rasch. 28. H. S. That a fine by tenant in tail, the reversion in the crown, bound the issues by 4 H. 7.

Resp. The very case intended by the lord Hobart as is most probable, because of the same term and year as in Dyer 32. a. pl. 1. And there the question was demanded of the justices of C. B. by Say a counsellor of Lincolns-Inn, upon what occasion it appears not. So it may be extrajudicially, and for his own fatisfaction, without any cause depending; but here the justices seemed to hold that the issue were barred; and Inglefield said he knew it by experience, but Shelley doubted, and so there was judge against judge.

I will not mention the lord Stafford's case, 8 Co. 74. a. and 6 Co. 55. a. Seignior Chandos's case, which have been cited at the bar, that such fine will not bar, because those cales were after 34 H. 8.

He was a Practicer in Trin. 27 H. 8 28 Ap-27 H. 8. 22. Pl. 14.

But I think Dr. Densbal, who read upon 4. H. 7. a very great while ago, may be cited, who holds that tenant in pears in Trin. tail is out of the statute of 4 H. 7. as you may see fel. 11 and 12.

The observation made by Dr. Saunders at the bar is not to be omitted, viz. that between 4 H. 7. and 26 H. 8. there were almost fifty years, and yet in all that time no estate-P. 349. * tail was ever forfeited for treason. And what reason had the judges to construe the general words of 4 H. 7. that a fine should bind as well privies or strangers, that the isfues shall be bound by a voluntary act of tenant in tail, and yet that he shall not forfeit his estate for treason, which is the highest offence?

Add to this, that St. Germin in his book called Doctor & Stud. written 23 H. 8. and commended by the Lord Coke in his episse to his 9th Rep. when he examines the question how common recoveries of lands intailed might stand with conscience, Lib. 1 cap. 26. fol. 41. never mentions fines, and certainly he would not have omitted them had they been used to have been then levied of intailed lands; for issues were as much prejudiced by them as by common recoveries. i. From the penning of the act of 32 H. 8. The words whereof are, be it enacted, not declared. 2. That fines heretofore levied, which shews that fines were levied of intailed lands, but wanted the support of an act of Parliament. 3. That this act shall not extend to lands, whereof the reversion is in the King, but that every fuch fine thall be of like force as it was or should be if this act had not been made. Then cometh the Statute of 34. H. 8. which fays, that there was a greater mischief by this doubt for a recovery, but not by a fine, which shews that fines were not used in such cases.

True it is, that recoveries did bar the issues before 34 H, 3. 23 'tis reTolved in Wifeman's case, 2 Co. 16. a. and reafon there was for it. 1. By reason of the pretended recompence as in Octavian Lumbard's case, 44 E. 3. 21. cited in 1 Co. 94. b. tenant in tail grants a rent for a release of one who hath right to the land, it shall bind the issues. 2. But 2dly, for the reason given by brother Magnard, that recoveries in adversary writs did bar in all cases, till the Quod ei deferceat was given by Westm. 2. 4. which was the same Parliament that the statute de Donis was made. And so is 19 E. 3. F. Recovery in Value 20 Hill. 23 E. 3. F. Recovery in Value 13. 44 Ast. 35. Mich. 44 E. 3. 29 b. pl. 9 Pasch. 5 E. 4. 2. a. pl. 11. 10. Co. 43. b. But in case of fines it was otherwise.

And yet to prevent all doubts in that case the judges have construed the Statute of 34 H. 8. to extend to fines, as appears by Notley's case, cited in Stafford's case, which though objected against as not to be found elsewhere, yet it is no spurious case; for 'tis reported again by Baron Savil 105. pl. 183. where the case upon a replevia (upon which the pleading is set out at large) was, that king H. 8. being * P. 350. seised in see in right of his Crown, granted the lands to Philip Van Wilder in tail male, after whose death the same descended to his son Henry Van Wilder, to whom Weston and Gibs acknowledged a fine, and he granted and rendered the land to them for 4000 years, and then died. And whether this lease were good, being made by fine sur render to bind the issues in tail, was the question, and no judgment; but seemed that it did not bind.

So that upon the whole matter, as to this point I hold, that though this case be out of the Statute of 34 H. 8. yet not alienable by the Statutes of 4 H. 7. or 32 H. 8.

I come now to the second great point, viz. what influ- 2 Point.

ence the Statute of 34 H. 8. hath upon this cale.

In handling of which the great difficulty will appear to arise out of the construction of the private act of 4 Fac.

For the true intelligence whereof we are to confider,

1. The mischiefs which had befallen the family of Darøy.

2. The remedy which this a& applies.

3. The consequences which do arise hereby.

As for the mischiefs, they appear in the preamble of the 28, that by the death of Earl Ferdinand, who died without issue male, and left three daughters married into three noble families, those daughters had no certainty of their portions; and lands they were as incertain of, though heirs at law to their father, the reason that the same were intailed upon the heir male of the family, either by the Crown, o by some precedent ancestor. 2. The Lady Alice their mo ther and dowager, and reliet of Earl Ferdinand, though it titled to dower, as the widow of one dying seised of lands inheritance, yet not able to bring a writ of dower with an certainty, because ignorant of the tenant of the freehold. Some of the branches of the family, by reason of the anter quity either of the limitations of the estates found in office or ancient settlements, incertain which of them thall imm diately succeed Earl William in case he shall die without E And 4. All of them incertain what lands we fettled one way, and what another; and hence arose diver variances, suits and controversies.

The remedy was, that all the said parties referred the selves to five honourable persons who were well affected friends of all of them; and thereupon they award the la to be settled as in the act.

• P. 351.

* The confequence of which will be either one way other, as the true construction of the same act shall hap ----to be made, viz.

Whether this act thus settling the lands hath altered, made the estate formerly settled in the samily, another 一 eftate substantially or specifically (as the logicians say) disferent from what it was before; for if the estate do now - become new, then 'twill be for the defendant; but if the old estate-tail did remain in Earl Charles when he made the -Conveyance, it will be for the plaintiff.

And I am of opinion, that the cstate-tail granted by the letters patent is not altered by the act of Parliament.

And my chief reason shall be taken from the intent meaning of the act, and of all the parties concerned, w Frich being only a private act, is to be considered as a settlecarent made by the legislative power of the kingdom. 1 Co. 47- 6.

Wherein the parties to be more especially taken notice of,

are,

- 1. The Derby family.
- 2. The Referees.
- 3. The King. Every of which we cannot but prelume had notice of the letters patent.

1. For

· 1. For were it not for them, it doth not appear by the record how the daughters of Earl Ferdinand could be disturbed from enjoying the lands in question as heirs at law to their father; were it not for them, Earl William could have no pretence.

2. The Referees must needs know of them; for one of the Referees was then Lord Treasurer, and there is a rent of sol. per annum reserved, and in charge in the Exchequer.

3. The King's counsel could not but know them; for in all acts of Parliament, 'tis their duty to examine how far the the Crown's interest is concerned.

And this knowledge and notice of the letters patent produced the words so frequently in the acts, viz. In the recital of the award, that all the faid lands which were of the Earl Ferdinand should be assigned, conveyed and enjoyed, unto, and by fuch persons, for such estates, and with and under such limitations, powers, liberties, declarations and favings as is afterwards ex-3. And that the same shall be vested, adjudged, P. 352. deemed and taken to be in the said persons for such estates, and with and under such powers, liberties, provisoes, exceptions, declarations and savings, as afterwards is mentioned, declared, limited and expressed. 4. The proviso itself.

All which do thew that the act was intended to pass sub modo, and that there should be somewhat preserved from being destroyed thereby; and in truth so there was...

For by the letters patent it appears, that the patentees (under whom the lessor doth derive) were persons well deserving of the Crown; and therefore ob singulare & fidele servitium qd' nobis præantea impenderunt, ac pro bono & fideli servitio nobis & Hæridibus nostris regibus Angliæ per eosdem Thomam & Georgium & Hæredes suos pro desensione nostra & regni nostri contra quoscunq proditores inimicos & rebelles quoties futuris temporibus opus erit impendend. &c. the King grants; so that he did not only respect what was past, but also service to be done for the future; and not only by them, but their descendents and heirs, and to the King and his heirs.

Now whether this would make any condition or tie of any fort in law upon the estate, may be doubtful, though Hob. 41. fays, that pro & in consideratione, do not regularly, and in the case of a common person, purport a condition.

But most certain it is, that the King and his counsel intended that those words should signify somewhat.

The Parliament in 11 H. 7. had so great regard to such gifts of offices or annuities, that they bound the grantees to attend the King and his heirs in person in his wars, upon \mathbf{Y}_{2} pain of forfeiture, though there was no such consideration mentioned in the patent; as you may see 11 H. 7. cap. 18.

Term. Hill. 31 & 32 Car. 2. In. Scacci

And the act of 34 H. 8. takes notice; for the words are,

To the intent that recompence for such service of the doness should not only be a benefit for their own persons, but a continual profit for the heirs of their bodies, whereby such heirs should have in special memory, and daily remembrance, the profit that they have, and take by the service of their ancestors done to the Kings of this realm, and thereby be the better encouraged to do like service to their sovereign lord, as to their duties of allegiance appertaineth.

* P. 353. And the advantage the Crown receives by such remem-

And the advantage the Crown receives by such remembrance in public families is not final, and therefore the ground of that act was very considerable both for the King's honour and his profit.

Now this advantage is utterly lost if the estate granted by R. 3. be altered by this act of 4 Jac. which as the times then were, and as the samily of the house of Derby was then affected, would never be allowed, either by the King or any of the parties concerned in the act: for observe the time of the making the same; 'twas the next year after the attempt of the gun-powder treason, and not quite, or at least but two years after an attempt, or at least an apparent inclination of another contrary party against the Crown and established government, as appears by the resolution in 2 Cr. 37. So that had any of the parties or the King been asked whether they intended to dissolve the tie (of honour at least) between the samily and the crown, in relation to the service they owed to the crown specified in the first gift, they would have returned a negative answer without doubt.

Add to this, that the proviso itself is not a bare savings which might have been excepted against, as opposing, or not well consisting with other parts of the act, as in Pertor's case it is objected; but it is an enacting clause, whereby it is enacted, that the king shall have, hold and enjoy all such and the same rights, titles, prosits, commodities, empluments, class and demands, as if the act had not been made.

By all which it most plainly appears, that 'twas the intent of the act that the estate should not be altered.

Then, to construe this act otherwise, if possible to prevent it, is to make it support a fraud to the king. Reas fellere non walt, falli non potest. 12 Co. 3.

This being so, it must be considered, whether this intertion can consist with the rules of law. In examinated whereof the objections are in order to be considered.

The act doth but pare away part of the intail, and an estate for life; for though an estate for life cannot d to be the same estate with the intail, yet the original is not hereby altered in the issue of earl William; as in the of the lord Delaware, II Co. I. he had an estateI his honour, and disabled for his life; and so part of state in the honour suspended by act of Parliament; his is here an execution of the agreement.

jeet. 3. Earl James hath an estate in his father's life-

Resp. The heir need not bring any action, for he enter. But 2. If he will bring his action, he must december upon both letters patent and act; for suppose the inta spent, the king in a formedon in reverter must declare a the letters patent only.

Object. 7. In all estates-tail there must be donor donee, and here the king cannot be the donor.

Resp. An act of parliament can create an estate-tail w out a donor; and where we see estates limited for a pa cular purpose, we are not to measure the validity of limitations by the strict rules of the common law; for parliament can control the rules of the common law, 13 64. It can make an estate of freehold to cease as if the ty were dead; as the estate of a parson who accepts a cond benefice contrary to the statute of 21 H. 8. of plurali 6 Co. 40 b. and for this cause the lord Hobart says, p. 3 That judges have authority to mould thatute laws acc ing to reason and best convenience, to the truest and best especially considering that the parliament procedes n crimes according to natural equity secundum equum & be which is lex legum, without respect to legal ceremo Hob. 224. So that where the drift and sole intent of an of parliament is most plainly discerned, as in this case, yet that intention cannot be observed, were the same deed, by construction according to the rules of law, ought rather to prefume the parliament (in whose powe was fo to do) resolved to leap over and waive the rule law, and to make a particular law for that occasion. 'As the purpose in the prince's case, 8 Co. 16. duke of Cornwal is limited to prince Edward, & ipfin. kæred. sucrum regum Angliæ filiis primogenitis & ditti loci : cibus & Regni Angliæ hæreditarie successuris. By which, that ought to inherit by virtue of that grant, ought to be eldest son and heir apparent of the king of L land, and of such a king as is heir to prince Edward, that fuch an eldest son and heir apparent to the crown s inherit the said dukedom in the life of the king his fath and the lands there mentioned are accordingly annexed the dukedom for the same estate.

Now by what rules of law could this grant be construct this manner? certainly by none, but the judges were for to bend and conform their legal reason to the words of act of parliament, and rather to construe the words literal and that the parliament intended to create a new limitate as well as a new title, rather than to strain the sense of the sense of ment intended. They did not stretch their invention to find P. 356. out legal reasons for that limitation, as men that would shew themselves more witty than serious, might have done. But qui rationem in omnibus quærit, rationem consundit. And they gave the same reason for their resolution, which appears its this case, viz. That otherwise it would be impossible to make good that limitation; and if they should not make such construction, the whole design of the act of parliament would be frustrated. So here the design was, that the agreement and award should be performed, and yet the king not prejudiced, which cannot be if not construed as the plaintist would have it.

True it is, should the letters patent be left out of the verdict, and the differences, and the award and the agreement and proviso struck out of the act of parliament, I should not doubt but to account the estates therein mentioned to be all new, and that all the estate in the letters patent, except the king's reversion, to be totally altered; but all those things considered together, I think it must necessarily be otherwise.

Object. 8. The act of 34 H. 8. ought to be strictly con-

Arued, because it restrains alienation.

Resp. If it were to restrain such alienations as are favoured in law, viz. Of tenant in see-simple, or tenant in tail of the gift of a subject, whereby trade and commerce might be prevented, debts unpaid, and children unprovided for, which is the reason that the law disallows of perpetuities and conditions which restrain alienation, doubtless the act were to be construed strictly.

Those inconveniencies, that the grantees should not alien, for that the lands were given to the intent that recompence should not only be to the donees for their service, but a perpetual profit to their heirs of their bodies, whereby such heirs should have in special memory, and daily remembrance, the profit that they have and take by the service of their ancestors done to the kings of this realm, and thereby be the better incouraged to do like service to their sovereign lord, as to their duties of allegiance appertaineth.

Now the said inconveniencies will not fail in such cases.

1. Because the lands thus disposed are not many, et ad ca que frequentius accidunt jura adaptantur.

Resp. Tenure is not an essential quality to an essate, for there are estates whose tenures may be gone, and yet the estate remains; as suppose the king had released the tenure of knights service, and that the patentees should hold in socage, yet the estate-tail had continued the same. If a meinalty become a rent-feck by furplulage, the ancient seisin is sufficient. I H. 4. 4. If H. recovers in an assile, a rent-service, and afterwards that rent becomes a rentfeck and he is disseised of it, he shall have a redisseism, because the substance of the rent remains, though the quality be altered. Co. Lit. 154 b.

The estate-tail was without impeachment of Object 10.

Resp. The quality of being without impeachment of waste makes no alteration. 3 Cro. 40. Clare versus Pepys.

Object. 11. By the letters patent there was one intire estate given, but here are several estates for life, and estates-tail, which are not intire.

Resp. These estates are all the same in quantity, which they would have been without the act; and it is the same estate as to duration, for all the estates here do arise out of the original estate-tail, and the reversion is not touched.

Object. 12. Lastly, these estates do arise out of the estate-tail, and are to continue no longer, and are distinct from it; as if tenant in tail bargain and sell to one and his heirs, the bargainee bath fee, and the estate granted continues till the issue enters.

Resp. True it is, that such construction may be made in a conveyance, and so might it have been in this act, had not the intent appeared otherwise; but therefore it shall not be so construed here, because it would prejudice the king's interest contrary to the proviso.

And in the exposition of an act of parliament we need not labour in maintaing its conformity to the rules of law, when its design is for another purpose.

Tenant in tail makes a lease for three lives, by 32 H. 8. this cannot be made good by the rules of the common law.

P. 358. As for authorities in this case, Gardiner's case 14 Car. 2. cited by my brother Weston, is nothing to this purpose, which was, that H. S. gave to Michael Stanhope his wife, and the heirs of their bodies certain lands, Michael dies, the lands descend to Thomas Stanhope his son and heir, who petitions the queen to grant the reversion to some persons in fee, to the intent that he may make a lease for ninetynine years by way of mortgage, and enters into a recognizance to the queen, conditioned, that nothing shall be done whill the reversion is out of the crown, prejudicial to the CLOMIT

The queen conveys the reversion to the lord Burleigh and Sir Walter Mildmay in fee, Thomas Stankope makes a lease and then fuffers a recovery, the trustees reconvey to the queen.

Refelo. 1. 'Twas a good grant.

2. Thomas Stanhope was not restrained from aliening.

But I may resemble this to the case of Falkner and Bellingham, Mich. 3 Car. 1. in C. B. reported by 1 Cr. 80. and Jones 233. The case was this, Ultimus presbyter celebrando divina in the church of East Grinsted was seised in see of a messuage and lands in jure presbyteratus sui, and held them of the lord of the manor of Brambleton, by the rent of 18s. and other services, who became seised of the rent. By the statute of 1 E. 6. cap. 14. this messuage and lands became forfeited to the crown; but in that statute there is a saving of all rents and services to all other persons: The king granted the lands over, and no feifin was had of the rent for above forty years after the statute of 1 E. 6. And whether seifin within forty years was necessary, or no was the question; for if it were the same rent, then seisin was necessary; but if a new rent created by the statute, then seisin was not necessary. And resolved by three jnstices contra two in C. B. that it was a new rent; and there held by the three justices, that this rent being originally a rent-service, was now turned into rent feck by the act of parliament, and became a rent coming out of the womb of the parliament, as justice Hutzan called it; and though it were the same rent in estate, as if there were tenant for life, the remainder in fee, or if descendible on the part of the mother; so now; yet altered in quality.

But the other two justices, and the whole court of B. R. wherein the first judgment was reversed, resolved, that it is the same rent to all purposes, and 'tis parcel of the manor P. 359. And it is not a rent given by the statute, because a saving never amounts to a gift of any new thing, but is quess an exception out of the statute, where otherwise it

Term. Hill. 31 & 32 Car. 2. In Scacc.

And they resolved, that though the tenure was destroyed, it remained the same rent in substance, and in all other things; as if an arrow loses one or two feathers, yet it is an arrow still, or if H. loses some members, he continues a man still.

As to the Objection, that if the act shall be thus construed, this will be very mischievous, because there are many purchasors for valuable consideration, and it will blow up their estates:

Resp. 1. There can be no case adjudged, but must be mischievous to some body; as 1 Co. 53. a. b. But

2. The mischief appears not in the record.

3. Better suffer a mischief than an inconvenience; for should this act be construed against the intention, the king must lose the advantage before mentioned; and to expound an act so, would be generally inconvenient; and so I conceive judgment ought to be given for the plaintiff.

In this case the court of Exchequer was divided, viz. Mountague chief baron, and myself for the plaintiff, and Atkins and Gregory for the defendant; and thereupon the cause was adjourned into the Exchequer Chamber, where it was argued again by counsel three feveral times, and also by eleven of the judges; for that North chief justice of C.B. was made lord keeper last vacation; and all the judges, except Gregory, Atkins and Dolben, gave their opinions for the plaintiff.

As to the first point, all but Jones, Charlton and myself, were of opinion, that the issue of tenant in tail was berred by a fine levied by his ancestor, by virtue of the statute of 4 H. 7. before the statute of 32 H. 8. And all who argued for the plaintiff agreed, that the act of 4 Jac. did not destroy the estate created by R. 3. but was only an instrument to perfect the agreement made by the arbitrators in the Daby The lord keeper's opinion was delivered by the chief justice Pemberton, by the lord keeper's direction, se-

Lovel for the plaintiff. The fingle question is, Whether the grant of this hundred, and other things therein specified be good? and I hold that the same is not good in law.

Hundreds and bailiwicks granted before Edward the fecond's time are good, but not those which have been granted afterwards. As to the original of hundreds before king Alfred's time, which was Anno 872, the counties remained intire, but then divided into hundreds; for before that the earls who were confanguines of the king and of the royal blood had the custody thereof. This office continued in the earls till by reason of the great trouble, they were weary of it, and then were appointed Vicecomites, which continue to this day. This office was affisted with inferior • jurisdictions, as view of trankpledge and turn, to take in- * P. 364. rolment of the freeholders. The hundred court, &c. and these courts continued until Edward the second's time, and then the king granted out of the turn the leet, and out of the hundred court a court baron. Fitz. Leet 11. Br. Leet 26. Dyer 13. b. 64. But notwiththanding these courts were thus chipped out of the county, yet the jurisdiction of the county remained intire to the theriff, until afterwards the king granted some hundreds away in see, and also franchises to several other persons. And thereupon several statutes were made to restrain the mischiefs of such grants, whereby insufficient persons were become owners of them, and managed them to the prejudice of the people, viz. 9 E. 2. the statute of Lincoln, which injoins, that the sheriffs have sufficient in the county to answer the king; and so of farmers of hundreds, and that executions thall be made by bailiffs of hundreds: So 2 E. 3. cap. 4. and 5. But those statutes did not remedy the inconvenience, for the crown did grant bailiwicks in tee, and thereupon were the acts of 2 E. 3. cap. 12. and 14 E. 3. cap. 9. made, both which statutes do forbid the granting more bailiwicks than were then granted.

As to the things granted they are five, and none of them grantable.

1. Courts. They are not grantable by the king, because the turn is called the sheriff's turn, 31 E. 3. cap. 15. and so Pusch. 6 H. 7. 2. pl. 4. And the county court is the sheriff's. 4 Co. 33. a. Mitton's case.

2. Offices. The officers of these courts belong to the theriff. Mitton's case, Scrog's case, Dyer 175.

3. Fines and profits. They are the sheriffs, 1 E. 3. they shall be delivered to the use of the sheriff.

4. Bailiwicks. That is incident to the office of the sheriff, and he ought to answer for him. Dyer 241. a. pl. 47.

5. Hundred. If the sheriff shall not have it, he cannot answer for escapes there.

As to the statutes, That of 2 E. 3. cap. 12. extends only to such hundreds as were let to farm by the then king, and the statute of 14 E. 3. cap. 9. is relative to the other act, and ancient statutes are construed according to the subsequent usage. . Ambrosius Manaton's Case.

Mandamus. Trem. 450.

MBROSIUS MANATON had a Mandamus directed to Charles Luxon mayor of the borough of Trevena Beleny in the county of Cornwal, to be sworn mayor there, according to an election made of him by the faid borough, to which writ the faid Charles Luxon returns, that before the coming of the writ, and before the issuing out thereof, viz. 25 Octob. 31 Car. 2. he the said Charles was removed from the place of mayor, and one William Amy then chofe, admitted and sworn, and from that time hucusque fait & adhuc est Major Burgi prædicti, and by reason of his said office hath the custody of the common seal, and thereupon he the faid Charles could not restore him, as the writ requires; And whether this was a good return was the queftion? And the objection is, because it is not returned, that the new mayor Amy was debito modo electus, and it may be that he was chose out of time, and not according to charter. 2. Returns must be certain, and not by implication, because the party outed hath not liberty to reply to them; and of this opinion were my brother Dolben and myfelf; but Scrogs chief justice, and Jones justice contra, That when Amy is returned, he shall be intended debito modo electus; and if an action upon the case shall be brought for this false return, and the issue be elected or not; if he was not duly elected, it will go for the plaintiff in the action; as Co. Lit. 381. Fines lèvied, is intended lawfully levied, Westm. 2. cap. 5. Ita quod Episcopus Ecclesiam conferat, i. e. legitime conferat. Non præslat impedimentum quod de jure non sortitur effectum. But I do conceive, and was then of opinion, that the return is not good, because only by implication. As the case of the recorder of Barnstable, Pasch. 18 Car. 2. B. R. The teturn was, Non conflat nobis, that he was ever elected; and adjudged insufficient. Vide untea. And these places places do concern the publick government, and we ought not to favour false returns; and if we suspect a return to be false, this court can make a corporation * swear the return; * P. 366. but by reason the court was divided no writ went.

CIR Miles Stapleton having been arraigned at the king's bench bar this last term for high treason, and a day appointed next term for his trial; the profecutor, one Boldron, suggested to the lords of the privy council, that his wife, who he said was a material witness, was in expectation of being brought to bed every day, and so she could not be at the trial, and therefore defired the prisoner might be tried: in the country; and thereupon the lords of the council ordered, that the judges of the king's bench should be attended, and to consider whether the indicament may be feat down into Yorksbire to be tried there next affizes by Nife Prins, and whether a Tales is grantable in case of high treason; whereupon Mr. Attorney general attended at my brother Jones's chamber, where my brother Dollen and I discoursed together concerning this matter, my lord chief justice being out of town, and we did resolve, r. That an indicament of high treason may be tried by Niss. Prins, sec so is Co. 4 Inst. 73. and the statute of 14 H. 6. cop. As for felony and murder, indicaments removed into the king's bench comcerning these offences, may be sent down to be determined by virtue of 6 H. We resolved, That a Tales de circumstation may be awarded in case of treason, by the statute of 4 and 5 Ph. and Mar. cap. 7. where the king is party. And to we lest it to Mr. Attorney to do as he shall see cause, with the prisoner.

Witness.

HE first day of this term Elizabeth Celier, the wife of Peter Celier, was tried at the bar upon an indiament, for That she, with others unknown, I November 31 Car. 2. did compass and intend the death of the KING, to change the government, and extirpate the Protestant religion, and to that purpose did meet and advise together, and did contribute, pay and disburse great sums of money; and for better concealing of the treasons aforesaid, did disburse great sums of money to divers persons to lay and charge the treasons upon other persons. Upon not guilty pleaded, she was found not guilty. There was one person who came against her as a witness, who was the then prosecutor, Thomas Dangerfield, against whose evidence the prisoner excepted, for that he had been feveral times convicted of cheating, and had been set upon the pillory, and had been whipped, and was of very little credit, and then would have produced a pardon of these offences; but the produced a copy of a conviction of a felony, for which he was burnt in the hand, which was out of that pardon; and also an outlawry for another selony, which was likewise out of that pardon; and so his testimosy was set aside. And it was debated, That admit a witness be convicted of felony, and afterwards pardoned, whether he shall thereby be restored to be a good witness? and my lord chief justice Scrogs and myself were of opinion, That he could not, because the pardon doth take away the pannishment due to the offence, but cannot restore the person to his reputation; and of that opinion was justice Nicho L. in Guddington and Wilkins's case, Moor 872. pl. 1213. But my brother Jones and Dolben contra; and so afterwards did I conceive; for in the case of Cuddington and Wilkins, as 'tis reported in Hobart, 'tis said, That the pardon takes away not only pænam, but realum. Another question was started, viz. Whether a man convicted and burned in the hand be stigmatique as to his testimony? And Jones held

P. 370. that he was not, because the burning of the hand is no part of his judgment, and is by 4 H. 7. cap. 13. only to notify to the judge that he hath had his clergy before, 5 Co. 50. a. Biggins's case. But I have examined that case, and do find that no judgment was given therein, but compounded, as 'tis reported both by 3 Cro. 682. and by Moor 571. pl. 782. And Cro. says, there were two judges against two; and Moor says, 'twas agreed, the king could not pardon the burning of the hand in an appeal. And in truth it feems to me to be part of the judgment; for the entry is, Ideo consideratum est, quod le offender cauterizetur in manu sua lava. Rast. Entr. 1. b. and 56. a. But upon the whole matter it appears by Heston's case, cited in Foxley's case, 5 Co. 110. a. Hob. 292. Searl versus Williams.

Thomas Hunt versus William Danvers. Assumpsit. Error in C. B.

HE plaintiff in C. B. declares, That there was a dis-Assumptit. course between him and the defendant concerning a portion of tithes in the parish of Banbury, and of the rectory of Banbury, and concerning divers controversies concerning the same, and concerning a verdict for 181. against one Henry Tasker for the tithe of Berrymore-Mead obtained by the plaintiff; and thereupon the detendant, in consideration that the plaintiff at the request of the defendant would acquit the said Henry Tasker from the said 181. & acquietaret ownes alios occupatores of the lands called Crench, Berrymore-Mead, Burdens, Gaberesses, Little Fullarke, Great Fullarke, Castlemend, &c. from all arrears of tithes then unpaid to the plaintiff, and permit the defendant then to receive of the then occupiers of the aforesaid lands, the tithe of hay growing upon the said lands, which then had not been received by the plaintiff, did promise,

J. To allow the tithe of hay of the said closes to be the right of the plaintiff, and clearly to belong to the said portion of tithes.

2. That the plaintiff from thence-forward should qui- * P. 371, etly receive all tithes of the said closes without any interruption or molestation.

3. That he would seal a writing purporting a disclaimer of the defendant and his trustees of the tithes of the said closes.

The plaintiff in fact fays, That he hath done all on his part, and assigns for breath, that the detendant did not permit the plaintiff to receive the tithes of the said closes without interruption and molestation; but Term Mich. 26 Car. 2. did prosecute two suits in the Exchequer chamber, ad damnum 300l. Upon Non Assumpsit pleaded, and verdich and judgment for the plaintiff, the defendant brings a writ of error, and assigns 'the general error. The sole question proposed by Holt of counsel with Hunt, the plaintiff in the will of error, was, Whether a fuit in equity be a breach of the agreement, such as the common law can take notice of? and relied upon 3 Leon. 72.

And I have confidered that book, and others, and do couceive such suit is a disturbance; for, I. Ex vi termini, when a man is in possession, to be subpænaed to appear in chancery is a disturbance. And this suit arises by reason of these tithes, 1 And. 137. pl. 188. Burr versus Higgs. Debt upon an obligation, conditioned to permit the plaintiff quietly to take, reap and carry away corn. The detendant pleads quod permisit. The plaintiff replies that he came and forbid him to reap; and adjudged a breach of the condition, Mich. 47 E. 3. 22. a. pl. 51. In an affile between two tenants in common, a forbidding by word of mouth to the tenant to pay his rent was adjudged a disseisin.

True it is, that Selby and Chute's case is, That a suit in chancery is no disturbance, as 'tis reported by Moor 859, pl. 1179. 1 Roll. Abr. 430. pl. 15. 1 Brownl. 23. But by the record itself. Winch Intr. 116. it appears that judgment was given for the plaintiff, and Winch was one of the judges that gave the judgment; for this was 11 Fac. and he was made judge 9 Jac. and so he should know better than any of those who report the case, none of which then attended the court of G. B. but Brownlow; and this judgment is entered not in his, but in Waller's office.

As to the case cited at the bar, 3 Leon. 71. The suit was there against the lessor by a stranger; and so the lessee could not be disturbed thereby. And I take such a suit not to be a breach of covenant against incumbrances, because a * P. 372. * decree is no incumbrance upon the land, but 'tis a molestation to the person. And the law doth take notice of suits in chancery; for a forbearance to fue in chancery is a good consideration to ground an Assumpsit, 3 Cro. 769. Doudenay versus Oland, by the courts of C. B. and B. R. and so is 3 Cro. 847. Coulston versus Carr. . And of this opinion were the other three judges; but my brother Dolben found a flaw in the assignment of the breach of the promise; and so it was adjourned.

Viscount Clare versus Linch. Error. Ireland.

N ejectment for lands in the county of Clare, of the Triely demise of Peter Gransborough for ten years. Upon Not guilty pleaded, issue was joined, and then there is an entry upon the roll thus:

Et super hoc pro indisserenti triatione exit' præd' inter partes præd' superius junca' habend' eædem partes ex eorum unanimi confeniu & affenfu, & ex affenfu & confeniu eorum Consilii & Attorn' in Cur' Domini Regis coram ipso Rege hic scilicet apud the King's Court prædict' petunt Breve Domini Regis Vic' Com' Corke dirigend' de Venire faciend' corum dico Domino Rege hic &c. duodecim, &c. de Corpore Com' fui ad triand' exit' præd'. Et quis videtur Cur' hic quod petitio ill' est rationi consona, Ideo præcept' est Vic' Com' Corke præd' quod Venire fac' coram Domino Rege hic scilicet apud the King's Court die Martis proximo post Octab' Pur' Beatæ Mariæ Virginis duodecim, Bre. de Corpore Com' sui per quos &c. qui nec, &c.

Then there is a Nisi prius granted to the said county of Corke, and the cause there tried, and a bill of exceptions put in, and upon debate in B. R. in Ireland, judgment was given for Linch; and now the lord viscount Clare brings a writ of error, and assigns the general error; and the question new debated was, Whether consent can make this trial, had in a foreign county, good, contrary to Crow and Edward's case, Hob. 5.

And we all resolved that the trial was well had; for the case in Pasch. 44 E. 3. 6. b. pl. 2. is as strong a case, where villenage was tried where the lands lay, and not where the scion was brought, as it ought to be by law, but consent made it good, Vide Dormer's case, 5 Co. where consent shall make good what otherwise would not be so. And Crow and Edwards's case, the consent was entered on record, * P. 373. as tis in this case. And so judgment was affirmed, in the point resolved 2 Roll. Rep. 166. Topham versus Pannel.

Condition.

EBT for 201. upon condition that Anne Mason alias Fawne, shall pay 71.9s. 4d. such a day to the plaintist, or personally appear 23 Jan. instant, in the house of William Barrsley, esq precisely at ten o'clock in the morning. The defendant pleads, that the said Anne Mason upon the said 23d day of January, and diverse days as well before as after, ex visitatione Dei agrota suit, & sub quodam morbo ex visitatione prad' tant' laboravit, quod eadem Anna totaliter inhabilis ad comparend' super eundem vicesimum tertiam diem Januarii in prad' domo prasat' Willielmi Barnessey devenit, scilicet apud, &c. Et hoc, &c. The plaintist demurs.

And first, the court seemed to agree that the plea as to the sickness was good, notwithstanding Co. Lit. 259. b. I Anders. 32 pl. 79. and Bro. Saver default 45 and 48 Abridgment de Assis 55. a. and which is allowed an excuse in outlawry for telony, Fitz. Challenge 153. For 'tis not barely the was sick, &c. but ex visitatione Dei ægrota fuit, & tota-

But 2dly. They resolved, that though the condition be in the disjunctive, and one part is impossible, yet that the other ought to be performed, as the case is, because to be done by a stranger; and my brother Dolben urged, that the reason given by the lord Coke, was not needful in that case; and by that reason there given, if I sell my land, and desire the purchaser to pay the money down, and I will either make him an assurance, or pay the money; if I die, the money would be lost. And judgment was given for the plaintisf; for this reason chiefly, that the appearance was to be by a stranger, and not by the obligor himself.

Oath.

THE defendants were indicted for refusing the oath of obedience injoined by 3 Jac. cap. 4. and the indictment was, that at the assistes and general gaol-delivery held before Sir Robert Atkins, &c. and Zachary Babington, gent. eidem Roberto Atkins and Timotheo Littleton, &c. hac vice officiat. per sacramentum suum, &c. præsentat. existit mode sequentuz. Jur. pro Domino Rege præsentant quod, at the general quarter sessions for the county of Hereford, 14 January 30. the justices of peace did tender the said oath to the defendants, fendants, and they refused, and that afterwards ad Assistant. pro Com. Hereford præd. 31 Martii 31 Car. 2. Coram Roberto Atkins Milite Balnei un. Justic. di Ai Domini Regis de Banco & Zacharia Babington Gen. eidem Roberto Atkins & Timotheo Littleton Mil. un. Baron. Scaccarii di Eli Domini Regis ad Assista in Com. Hereford prad. capiend. assign. per formam Statut. the said justices Atkins and Zachary Babington again tendered the faid oath, and they refused to take the same; and upon not guity pleaded, the defendants afterwards, reliela verificatione, confess the indiament; and judgment is given, that the defendants ponantur & quilibet eorum ponatur extra protection. ditti Domini Regis, & quod forisfaciant & quilibet eorum forisfaciat di Ao Domino Regi omniu bona & catalla terras & tenementa sua, and that they committantur & quilibet corum committatur Gaole dicii Domini Regis in Com. Hereford præd. ibidem remansur. duran. beneplacito di Eti Domini Regis, &c. Upon the writ of error, the error assigned was, that the second tender of the oath was by the justices of assis only. Whereas the statute of 3 Jac. says, it must be by the justices of affise and gaol-delivery, and this error seemed not to be allowed by my brother Dolben, but by the other two it was not spoke to. But I conceive 'tis error, and that the justices of assise cannot, by virtue of that commission barely, tender the said oath; for the statute says, that in case they shall refuse to take the said oath tendered them by the justices of peace, then the said justices shall and may commit the same persons to the common gaol, there to remain without bail or mainprise, until the next assises, where the # P. 375. faid oath shall be again in the said open assists required of them by the said justices of assise and gaol-delivery in their open affiles, every person so refusing shall incur the danger and penalty of Pramunire; by which it appears, that they being committed to gaol by judgment of the justices of peace, none can deliver them but they who have power to deliver the gaol. And though the statute de Finibus, 27 E. 1. gives justices of assise power to deliver the gaol, that is intended only of felons, as appears by Stamf. Pla. Cor. 57 and 58. But the judgment was reversed for another error incurable, for mifreciting the oath contained in the act; for whereas the oath in the act is, and him and them will defend to the uttermost of my power against all conspiracy and attempts whatsoever, the indiament is, against all conspiracies and contempts whatsever.

Dominus Rex versus Pemlington. Error. Chester

Error.

THE indicement was for entering into the close of one Crew, and he was found guilty, and judgment, and fined 12d. and the error assigned is, because the first process is a capias; whereas in all indicements for trespass and under selony, a venire savias is the first process. And judgment was for this cause reversed.

Doddesworth, &c. versus Anderson.

Bankrupt, 1 Danv. Abr. 686. p. 1. 2 Jones 141. THE case was upon a special promise. The question between the plaintists and defendant was, whether William Grice was a bankrupt before a conveyance by him made to the defendant and Mary his wise, dated 23 Septem. 23 Car. 2. And the jury find a special verdict.

That the said William Grice was a subject born of the king of England, and lived at Dublin in Ireland.

That before the making of the said conveyance he traded as a merchant at Dublin, and got his living by buying and selling.

That he frequently came into England and bought goods there, and fold them in Ireland, and became indebted to divers persons in divers sums of money as yet unpaid, exceed-

* P. 376.

That he once did sell in England a parcel of neats tongues, and at another time in Ireland did sell a parcel of tallow to be delivered at Chester in England, which was done accordingly.

That he left his house and trade in Dublin, and there absconded from his creditors.

That he afterwards sojourned with a friend in England, and gave order to be denied, and absconded from his creditors in England before the making of the said conveyance.

That the said conveyance was made bona side, and sor volumble consideration, 23 Octob. 23 Car. 2. but dated 23

Sept. 25 Car. 2.

And upon this verdict we resolved, that Grice was a bankrupt before the conveyance; for though he is sound to buy and sell but once in England, it is not necessary that he do so, for many merchants do only buy beyond sea and sell here, and others do only buy here and sell beyond sea; for tis trading that makes a person capable of being a bankrupt,

and

and 'tis plain that Grice did trade in England. And judgment was given accordingly.

But the court did declare that he was in a wrong way to exhibit any information in this manner, and did cause his words, whereby he did accuse the two judges of oppression, to be recorded; and for those words, and for that he was infamous by having been on the pillory, the gentlemen at the bar did pray that his gown might be pulled over his ears (he having been formerly a practifer at the bar) which was ordered and executed in court, and he was also condemned in court to pay the king gool. and to lie in prison till he paid it. Sed utrum super tota materia the desendant be guilty or no, petunt advisamentum Cur. And I conceive upon this verdict, the desendant is not guilty, for these reasons.

- 1. From the preamble of the act of 27 Eliz. cap. 2. which says, that whereas divers persons called jesuits, seminary priess, and other priess, have of late years come and been sent, and daily do come and are sent into England to withdraw the subjects from their obedience, &c. Now this man neither came not was sent, properly speaking, but coactus suit into Minehead.
- 2. The clause which prohibits pricsts to come into or remain, reaches not here, because it is said that he was, P. 378. * immediately after his being driven a shore, taken, and so cannot be said to remain.
 - 3. There is the act of God in the case, which is summa necessitas, of which all laws, both human and divine, allow. And in this act it is said in the clause, which injoins priests to depart, if the wind, weather and passage shall serve for the same; and so the clause which preserves liberty, who cannot go for infirmity.

4. Actus non facit reum, nisi mens sit rea.

As to that clause in the indicament, that he was going into the king's dominions, viz. Ireland.

Resp. Nil efficit conatus, nis sortitur effectu. And with my opinion agreed the whole court. And judgment was given for the defendant.

Upon not guilty pleaded, the defendant having been a prisoner in the tower for some time, was the twentythird of June 1680, tried at the bar. There were only twowitnesses who offered materially to depose against him, * P. 380. and they * did depose very positively against him as to his attempting to procure some to kill the king, the witnesses were doctor Titus Oates, and one Thomas Dangerfield. Upon the evidence of Dangerfield, who had been found guilty upon several indicaments, one of selony, for which he had his clergy, and was burnt in the hand; upon other indicaments he had been upon the pillory for cheating but had obtained his pardon under the great seal for all the said offences; a question did arise whether he might be a witness, and thereupon the prisoner did desire to have counsel assigned him, and it was granted; and Mr. Daniel, one of his counsel, urged, that Dangerfield ought not to be a witness, for that he was blemished, and the pardon had not restored him to his testimony; and cited 2 Brownlow 47. where it is said that the king pardoned a man attaint, for giving a false verdict, yet he shall not be at another time impanelled upon any jury; for though the punishment were pardoned, yet the guilt remains. 2 Bulfte. 154. And the judges there resolved, That the burning of the hand was quass a statute pardon, as to the felony; and as to that he was a good witness, and the pardon made him a good witness as to the other offences. But they said, That had he not been burnt in the hand, the pardon would not have restored him to his credit again, because in his testimony the people are concerned, and consequently the pardon will not deprive them of their interest, and thereupon we allowed him to be a good witness; and with the opinion of the judges of the common pleas, as to the burning of the hand agree the books of 5 Co. 110. a. It is ordered by the lords spiritual and temporal in parliament assembled, that it be, and is hereby referred to the lords committees for privileges to consider thereof, and report their opinion thereupon unto this house, and that the said lords committees do meet on Thursday next at three of the clock in the asternoon for that purpose.

Die Mercurii 12 Martii 1672,

The earl of Shaftsbury reported, That the committee appointed yesterday to consider in what state the impeachments in the last parliament now stand, have perused the journal journal of this house, and find that the fifth day of December 1678, the impeachments against the five lords now prifoners in the tower were brought from the house of commons, which consisted of a general charge of treason, and other high crimes. The house of commons declaring they would in convenient time exhibit the articles of their charge them. The next day this house appointed to go upon the consideration of these impeachments, and all the judges were appointed to be then present, but nothing was done thereon.

The lords committees do also find that an impeachment of high treason, and other high crimes against Thomas earl of Danby lord treasurer, was brought from the house of commons the twenty-third day of December 1678, and the particular articles then exhibited, and the commons desired that he might be sequestered from his place in parliament, and committed to safe custody.

* P. 382.

That the lord treasurer defined copies of all papers and proceedings concerning this business, and that it was then resolved upon the question, that the lord treasurer should not then withdraw.

It farther appears, That on the twenty-fixth of December 1678, the lord treasurer moved the house for a copy of his charge, and that he might not lie long under it; where-upon it was moved that the house would consider of the desire of the house of commons concerning his confinement.

The debate was adjourned.

It appears that this house on the twenty-seventh of December, resolved, That the lord treasurer should not now be confined; and ordered, That he should have a copy of the articles, to which he was appointed to bring in his answer before the third day of January, and that he might have counsel to affish him.

Upon report made by the earl of Shaftfbury from the lords committees for examination of the late horrid confpiracy concerning the impeachments brought up from the house of commons in the last parliament, how they stand entered in the journal of this house,

It is ordered, That it be, and is hereby referred to the lords committees for privileges, to confider of the flate of the faid impreschments, and all the incidents relating thereunto, and report their opinion thereupon unto this house.

Die Martis 18 Martii 1672.

The earl of Essex reported, That the lords committees for privileges, in obedience to the order of this house dated the seventeenth of this instant March, have considered of the matters referred to them, whether petitions of appeals which were presented to this house in the last parliament to still in force to be proceeded in; as also to consider of the state of the impeachment brought up from the house of commons last parliament, and all the incidents relating thereunto, and make report thereof unto the house; and their lordships upon perusal of the judgment of this house, of the twenty-ninth of March 1673, are of opinion, That in all cases of appeals and writs of error they continue, and are to be proceeded on in statu quo as they stood at the dissolution of the last parliament, without beginning de novo.

The judgment and proceedings being large, are omitted to be reported, the journal of this house being ready, wherein that judgment is entered.

And upon consideration had of the matter referred to their lordships concerning the state of the impeachments brought up from the house of commons the last parliament, and all the incidents relating thereunto, their lordships find, that the five lords who are in the tower are upon general impeachments, and the other lord is impeached with special matter assigned, they refer the house to the report made the 12th of March instant, which states what is entered in the journal of the last parliament concerning this matter; and their lordships are of opinion, That the dissolution of the last parliament doth not alter the state of the impeachments brought up by the commons in that parliament.

Then the main question was put, Whether to agree with the committee in this report? And it was resolved in the affirmative.

The house this day taking into consideration the report made from the lords committees for privileges, that in purfuance of the order of the seventeenth instant to them direced for confidering whether petitions of appeal which were presented to this house in the last parliament be still in force to be proceeded on, and for considering of the fate of the impeachments brought up from the house of commors the last parliament, and all the incidents relating thereunto, upon which the lords committees were of opinion, That in all cases of appeals and writs of error they continue and are to be proceeded on in statu que, as they stood at the dissolution of the last parliament, without being de nove, and that the dissolution of the last parliament doth not alter the state of the impeachments brought up by the commons in that parliament. * Obeden versus Keynel. Dorset.

Recufancy. 2 Jon. 187. 2 Show. 179. Polica 465. At the trial, after the jury sworn, and before verdictiven, the desendant came into the court, and did there submit, recognize, contess and acknowledge, that he had offended and done ill in not going to church, and not conforming himself to the law therein, and did then prove that he had conformed himself since the suit brought by going to church, secsiving the facrament, and behaving himself orderly and foberly during all the time of divine service, according to the law; and did then and there promise and engage to conform, and go to church, and there to behave himself soberly and orderly, according to the law; and that the faid defendant was never indicted or profecuted for any offence of this nature before.

This is an action for 20% a month for not coming to church, tried the last assizes in Dorset, and a verdict for the plaintiff for 40l. At the trial the defendant comes into court and conforms, and makes the above written recognition; Whether that doth discharge the action and verdict, er no, is the question?

It was objected, that in the action tam quam the plaintiff hath an interest which shall not be divested within the intent of the clause in 23 Eliz. cap. 1. the words whereof ace. Every person guilty of any offence against the statute fother than treason and misprisson of treason) which shall before he be thereof indicted, or at his arraignment or trial before judgment, submit and conform himself before the bishop of the diocese, where he shall be resident, or before the justices where he sball be indicted, arraigned or tried (having not before made like submission at any his trial, being indicted for his first like offence) shall, upon his recognition of fuch submission in open assizes or sessions of the county, where such person shall be resident, be discharged of all and every the said offences against this act (except treafon and misprisson of treason) and of all pains and sorfeitures for the same; for that this clause refers only to such cafes where the party is arraigned or indicted, and not to actions.

But it seems that the words shall be taken distributively at his arraignment, or trial before judgment, i. e. arraignment in case of indictment, and trial in all cases. 20th of October 31 Car. 2. being above the age of fixteens and inhabiting at Halftead, did not go to church, contrary to the form of the statute. The defendant demurs generally, and the fole question is, whether this suit may be commenced in this court, notwithstanding the statute of 21 Jac. cop. 4. The lord Coke 3 Infl. 194. fays, that the informer cannot inform for this offence, or any other offence therein excepted, in any of the courts at Westminster, but before the justices appointed by the act, because the clause of excepting them out of the act, extends only for the laying or alledging any of those offences in any county that he will. But to me it feems, 1. That the words of the act are, that all offences hereafter to be committed against any penal flatute, for which any common informer may lawfully ground any popular action, bill, plaint, fuit, &c. before justices of affife, nist-prius, gaol-delivery, over and terminer, or justices of peace, shall be commenced, fued, prosecuted, tried, recovered and determined by way of action, plaint, bill, information or indiciment before the faid justices of Assign, &c. having power to inquire of, hear and determine the fame, &c. and not elfowhere; by which it feems that if they cannot determine the same, or that such actions will not lie before them, then they are to be determined, where such jurisdiction is given by the law. Now the statute of 23 Eliz. cap. 1. gives remedy by action of debt, bill, information or plaint, Gr. And an action of debt cannot be commenced before the justices of affise, &c. either by writ or bill, and confequently it will not be within this statute of 21 Jac. Et adjourn. * Jamaica, Ostober 20. 1660.

In the year 1661. Sir Charles Littleton as deputy governor to the lord Windsor called the first assembly, which was held in Jamaica, and thereby made laws for raising a publick revenue by a tax on strong liquors towards the upholding of the government there, which laws are indefinite and perpetual. Afterwards, viz. 15 February 1663. The king grants power to Sir Thomas Modyford to choose his own counsel, and with the consent of the major part of them to frame general assemblies of freeholders, according to the usage of other plantations, and with their consent to make laws suitable to those of England, which should remain in force for the space of two years, and no longer, unless approved by his majesty. After Sir Thomas Modyford, Sir The mas Linch succeeded, and after him the lord Vaughan, who had the like power with Sir Thomas Modyford: during the government of the lord Vaughan, the affembly granted the like revenue out of strong liquors, but to continue but two years.

The question hence arose, and which was reserred by the privy council to the lord chief justice North to consider and certify his opinion, and to take the opinion of such other. judges therein as he should think fit, whether the law made by the affembly in the lord Vaughan's time had totally laid aside the law made in Sir Charles Littleton's time by implication? And upon debate of the matter by the lord chief justice North, Ellys, myself and Charleton justices, and baron Gregory, it was resolved, that the last council having power to make laws to continue but two years, did not repeal the perpetual law made before, but did suspend its power during the two years, and no longer, according to the case of prices of wine, Hob. 215. where by 37 H. 8. cap. 23. a perpetual law was made for fetting prices of wine; then by the statute of 5 E. 6. the said perpetual act (through the inadvertency of the parliament) was continued amongst other acts till the end of the parliament, which continuance was resolved to be idle as to that act; for an affirmative continuance of a perpetual statute cannot work an abrogation thereof; and when the two years expire, it is as if no such a& had been made; for by 12 Co. 7. and 2 Inft. 684. when an act of repeal is repealed, the first act repealed is revived.

And here also judgment was affirmed by the whole court, because though the evidence be conclusive, yet the jury may hazard an attaint if they please; and the proper way for the defendant had been to have demuned upon the plaintiff's evidence. Memorandum, 3 December 1680. At one o'clock in the morning died sir William Ellys, knt. one of the justices of the court of Common Pleas, at his chamber in Serjeants-Inn in Fleet-street, Grandævus senectute, viz. ætut. 71.

was impeached by the house of commons of high treason, the case sell out to be, that his charge was, That he kired persons to kill the king. And upon the evidence it appeared, that Stephen Dugdale swore, that the prisoner prospered him 5001 to do it; and Oates another witness swore, that the prisoner received a commission to be pay-master to an army to be raised by the Roman Catholicks; and Turbervile swore, that another sive or six years before time, the prisoner at Paris proffered him a good reward to kill the king. And upon this evidence, the question was put to all the judges then attending (who were all there, but Scrogs chief

was sufficient evidence for convicting the offender by the statute of 1 E. 6. cap. 12. and 5 E. 6. cap. 11. which sequires two witnesses for convicting of a traitor, and for finding an indicament; and here is but one witness to each fact. And after conference between themselves, all the judges delivered their opinions seriatim, beginning with the lord chief justice North; that when the prisoner is charged with the offence of killing the king, and the evidence is, That he at several times laboured it, and by several ways, and to each particular time and fact there is but one witness, and yet every of the said sacks conduces directly to the effecting and perpetration of the fact and treafon charged upon the prisoner, such evidence is sufficient within the statute. But otherwise it had been if the facts had been tending to another several treason; and the reason given why fuch evidence was good, was because otherwise it would be P. 408. a most difficult thing, and almost * impossible to convict any one of high treason for compassing the death of the king, for such compassings are seldom acted in the presence of two witnesses at one time present. And upon this occasion my lord chancellor in the lords house was pleased to communicate a notion concerning the reason of two witneffes in treason, which he said was not very familiar he believed; and it was this, anciently all or most of the judges were churchmen and ecclesiastical persons, and by the cason law now, and then in use all over the christian world, none can be condemned of herefy but by two lawful and credible witnesses; and bare words may make a heretick, but not a traitor, and antiently herefy was treason; and from thence the parliament thought fit to appoint, that two witnesses ought to be for proof of high treason.

In the same trial of the said viscount, after the lords had feriatim voted (whereof thirty two acquitted, and fifty four condemned him) he moved in arrest of judgment, that every person arraigned ought by the law to hold up his hand at the bar, which he did not, nor ever was demanded so to do; and thereupon the opinion of all the judges was asked, who unanimously answered, That that ceremony was only sor the making known the person of the offender to the court, and if he answers that he is the same person, 'tis all one; and so it salls out sometimes in the circuits, that some will not hold up their hand, and yet have been condemned; and judgment of high treason was given against the prisoner of

26 December 1669. Robert Berrier the son of the testator died (the testator living) leaving issue Robert Berrier his fon and heir.

Robert Berrier the grandfather 26 March 1671. made a endicil to be annexed to his faid will in these words,

And also I the aforesaid Robert Berrier do give and bequeath unto my grandchild Judith Berrier, and her heirs for ever, some than I have formerly given by this my last will and testament, a little close, &c. This I will shall be added as a codicil, and taken as part of my last will and testament.

The tenements by the faid codicil devised are ten acres of meadow, and ten acres in Fithing, part of the tenements devised by the said Robert the grandfather to Robert the father.

The tenements in the declaration are the tenements devised by the will to Robert the father.

46 May 1671. Robert the grandfather did republish his haft will, and by parol, and without any writing, Anima. testandi did declare, That the said Robert Berrier the grandfon by the same will should take and have as the said Robert Berrier his father might take and have.

1 March 1672. Robert the grandfather died, and Robert the grandson him survived, and entered into the said pre-miffes, and became feifed prout lex postulat.

William Berrier eldest son of the said Robert the grandfather, 25 September 1646 died, leaving issue Judith and Mary the lessors of the plaintiff, whose husbands in their right right entered on the possession of the said Robert the grand-son, and made the lease to the plaintiff. Et si, &c.

Judgment was given in C. B. for the defendant, and the plaintiff brings his writ of error, and assigns the general error. And by Scrogs chief justice, Jones and myself, judgment was reversed, but Dolben justice contra. We had all prepared to deliver our opinions openly in court, but in regard my lord chief justice had business of his own in the lords house, he desired that he might deliver the sense of the court without any argument; I was prepared with this to fay for my opinion, viz.

• P. 410. • 1: I do not find at the bar any objection to the want of finding a good title for the plaintiff in this verdict, as was objected in C. B. viz. That it is not found that Judith and Mary wives of the lessors of the plaintiff are grand daughters and heirs to the testator; neither do I find any ground for the objection; for it is found that Robert Berrier the testator had issue William, primogenitum filium suum, and also Robert sather of the desendant his younger, and that William died in the lifetime of the testator, leaving issue

In this case there have been two points in question, both tending to the making good a title to the desendant.

the said women, whereby in a special verdict it must be necessarily intended, that they are heirs at law to the tes-

1. Whether the new publication of 16 May 1671— whereby the testator did declare that Robert Berrier the grandson by the same will should take and have, as the said of Robert Berrier his father might take and have, did pass any estate to Robert the grandson?

2. If that point fail for the defendant, then, Whethers by the words of the will, I devise and give to my fon Resolution comments bert Berrier and his heirs for ever, Robert the grandson comments toke?

I hold in both points for the plaintiff in the action, armend that the judgment (with all due reverence and respect to the persons and court that gave it) ought to be reversed.

As to the first point, I cannot distinguish it from the themseld point in Bret and Rigden's case, Plowden 345. b. The words there were, That Thomas Bret the son should be herein to Giles (the devisor) and that he should have all the lands which his father by the will should have, if he had lived; and here the words are, That Robert Berrier the grants should have and have. It most being being in writing cannot pass any thing, by reason of the statutes which appoint land to pass by will in writing. And so were Gowdy and Clench's opinions in Fuller and Fuller's case, 3 Cro. 423. But this point seems to be agreed with me at the bar, and therefore I shall not insist upon it farther.

As to the second point. Constructions of wills ought to be collected out of the words, and not dehors, or by averment, as 5 Co. 68. Chenye's case; and therefore 39 Eliz. Chellener versus Bowyer, 2 Leon. 70. pl. 94. William Bowyer had two sons, and devised his land to his younger son in tail, • the remainder to the heirs of the body of his eldest son, • the remainder to his daughters in tail; William Bowyer dies, the younger fon dies without iffue, living the eldest fon; and in an assise, the tenant produced witnesses to swear that the devisor declared, That as long as his eldest son had issue of his body, the daughters flould not have the land; but the court utterly rejected the evidence; and indeed were it otherwise, no man could advise his client, or know the certainty of any will; for if contrary to, or otherwise than what appears written might be averred, one will would appear in writing, and quite another upon evidence.

Which being so, it necessarily follows, that the parol decharation is out of doors in this will, and it is not at all to be taken notice of.

Then the words on which the defendant must rely for his title, are,

I give to my son Robert and his heirs, by which the defendant must take either as heir to his father, or as son to his grandfather.

The first he cannot, by Bret and Rigden's case, in the second point there, because the words (heirs) is but to shew the quantity of the estate given, and to make them persons to take immediately by the will.

He cannot take as son, for these reasons.

1. The word fon is never taken for grandson, no more than child is taken for grandchild. 3 Cro. 357 Brown versus Pease. Warner seised in see of two manors, Warners and Churchall, devises Warners to the eldest son of his cousin Richard Foster in see, and he devises the manor of Churchall to Margaret Waters for life, the remainder to such of his cousin Foster's children as shall be then alive and owner of Warners. Resolved, If such son be dead, when Waters dies, the grandchild of Richard Foster shall not take; the reason is given, because out of the words child and grandchild are different persons.

2. The

P. 411.

2. The words (fon) and (grandfon) are discriminating words in all instruments, and in this very will, for he gives the land to his fon, and 1001. legacy to his grandfon.

3. By the same reason, the son of the grandson may take; and it appears not whether this Robert had a son named Robert.

4. It was not the intent of the devisor (as expressed in the will) That the grandfon flould take, for he makes him a distinct legatee.

* 5. The inconvenience which would enfue, should the P. 412. word (sen) be so taken; no certain construction could be made, for so godfon, great grandfou, son-in-law, &c. may take, and no body can guess whom the testator meant. The fame mischief would happen, as by an averment beforementioned.

> Had the defendant been called frequently by the testator in his life-time, his son, he had been capable to take by that name; as an illegitimase for may take by the name of the reputed father, after he hath acquired a certain name by reputation.

But it is not found in the whole record, that the tellator knew of the death of his son Robert. True it is, that the parol declaration disposes to the desendant what was given to his father, but that may be as well for other resions as for death.

Object. The new publication is as if the will were new writ over again.

Refp. I grant it. But then if the words are the fame, there will no more pass than by the first writing.

If he had devised to Robert Berrier (without addition) er to my heir Robert (if the truth were, that his heir at his death proved to be Robert) this new publication would have made the will have passed the lands, because the words would have agreed with the person of the devisor, as is Beckford and Parmet's case. 3 Cro. 493. Parsons seised of lands in Aldworth devised all his lands there to his daughters Berbera and Joan, and then purchases more, and then new publishes his will. Resolved, The new purchased lands passed, because sufficient words; so is Bret and Rigden's case in the second point there.

ed to pass the land to his grandson the defendant.

Resp. The intent appears not by the will. 2. That intent was not according to law, and the intent must be fubservient to the rules of law, and not e contra, as Countra and Clark's case is, and many cases might be cited on that

head. And 3dly, wills must have an apparent intent, when they dismherit an heir. I Cro. 369. Sprit versus Bence.

As to the lease made by two copartners and their hul-bands, Vide Moor 682. pl. 939. Millener versus Rebinson, Noy 13. 2 Cro. 83. Jurdain versus Steer 166. Mantle versus Wollington. It seems good enough after a verdict; and judgment was reversed.

JOHN PEPPER seised in see, by lease and release for Remainder. 100 l. conveys the lands in question, to the use of Paul 1 Vent. 345. Barret Sen. and Sarah Barret his daughter, for their lives, the 2 Jon. 136. remainder to the use of the first, and every other sons of Sarah in Pollexs. 573. tail male, the remainder to the use of her daughters equally to be divided in tail male, the remainder to the use of the right heirs of Paul. Sarah by deed gives, grants, remises and releases all her right and estate to the said Paul and his heirs, to the use of him and his heirs. Sarah marries Samuel Hall, and hath issue Samuel Hall lessor of the plaintiff. Paul Barret by indenture 22 May 28 Car. 2. covenants to stand seised to the use of himself for life, the remainder to Sarah Norwood his grandchild for her life, the remainder to Paul and Thomas Norwood his grandchild for her life, the remainder to Paul and Thomas Norwood his grandchildren, and their heirs. Paul dies.

The sole question of this case is, whether the remainder imited to Samuel Hall lessor of the plaintiff, as first son of

And I conceive it is not, and that judgment ought, to be given for the plaintiff.

Barret and Sarah were joint-tenants for their lives, and that the estate in see-simple is not executed in Paul Barret. Coke upon Littleton 182. a.

For though a discent or any other subsequent conveyance will destroy the jointure, as Westcot's case is, 2 Co. 60. yet

Coke upon Littleton 273. Two coparceners of a rent, and one marries the ter-tenant, the other may release to her that was married.

Tis requisite for the execution of all contingent remainders, that the particular estate do continue the same it was the time of the creation thereof, when the use comes in esse; for it must vest either during the particular estate, or at least eo instante that the particular estate determines. 1. Co. 66. Archer's case.

3. This

J. This release doth not alter the estate. I Coke upon Littleton 273. Such a release is no alienation, Winch 63. Wase versus Pretty. By Winch justice, and Hobart, if land be given to two upon condition, that they shall not alien, and one releases to the other, it is no breach of the condition. 2. It makes no degree, for the relessee is in by the lessor. Coke upon Littleton 184.

And though the remainder did before depend upon an eftate for two lives, and now but on one, that one is the same

Fitz. Aid, 77. Tenants in special tail recover in assize, and afterwards one dies without issue, and the other being tenant in tail after possibility, is redisseised, he shall have a redisseisin, because it is the same freehold which he had before, and is part of the estate-tail.

I conceive the case of a condition of accruer is a stronger case; there the estate on which the condition is to grow must continue the same. And yet 8 Co. 75. b. If a man grant land to another and his heirs on the body of his wife, with such a condition, and the wise dies without issue, yet he may perform the condition.

4. The intent of the parties (which is observable in all acts, and especially in the disposition of estates) was only to transfer Sarah's estate to Paul, and not to deprive her children, she being but tenant for life.

Her acts shall be construed with as much strictness as the rules of law will permit. Judgment was given for the plaintiff by Scrogs chief justice, Jones and myself: but my brother Dolben was for the desendant, but had not opportunity to shew his reasons, because my lord chief justice desired that he might deliver all our opinions shortly.

Valentine Joyner versus Sir Robert Vyner. Error. P. 415. in C. B. Lundon.

Intr. Pasch. 32 Car. 2.

EBT upon a bond against the defendant as son and Award. heir of Christopher Joyner. The defendant demands oyer of the condition, which is, whereas the above-bound Christopher Joyner did 4 December 1665, leave with Henry Lewys, then servant to the above-named Sir Robert Vyner, a bill of exchange of the sum of 61 l. 14 s. 4 d. payable by Richard Fuller late of London merchant, deceased, and upon leaving the Jaid bill the said Christopher Joyner had credit in his account with the said Sir Robert Vyner for the said sum of 61 l. 14 s. 4d. And whereas the said Henry Lewys doin aver that the faid sum of 61 l. 14s. 4d. was not paid to the said Sir Robert Vyner, or any other person for his use, the condition therefore of this obligation is such, that if the said Christopher Joyner shall not, before the 10th of November next the date above-written, legally and sufficiently prove, that the said sum of 61 l. 14 s. 4 d. was paid to the faid Sir Robert Vyner, or to his use, then if the said Christopher Joyner, his heirs, executors, administrators or affigns do well and truly pay or cause to be paid to the said Sir Robert Vyner, his executors or assigns upon the said 10th of November the said sum of 61 l. 14s. 4d. and all interest at 6 l. per 100 l. per annum accrewing for the said money, from the said 4th day of December 1665. until the payment thereof, that then this obligation to be void. Quibus lectis & auditis, the defendant pleads, that the said Christopher Joyner his father, after the making of the said bond, and before the said 10th of November viz. 20 May 24 Car. 2. died. The plaintiff demurs; and adjudged by the whole court for the plaintiff; for there is a difference where the condition contains a duty vested in the obligee, and where it is only a collateral act; for in the first case the executors are bound to perform it; and so the obligor forfeits his obligation if it be not performed. 3 Cro. 10. Debt. 2 Show. 143.

EBT upon an obligation of 600 l. dat. 11 Aug. 1657. the condition whereof (upon over demanded) is, that whereas a marriage hath been lately had between the above-named William Lee and Mary daughter of the abovebound Frances Ambler; if now the heirs, executors, adminiftrators or assigns of the said Francis Ambler do and shall well and truly pay or cause to be paid unto the said William Lee, his executors, administrators or assigns the full and whole sum of 300 l. within two months next after the death of the faid Frances Ambler, if the said Mary, or any issue of her body by William shall be living at the death of the said Frances. Then, &c. The defendant pleads, that I January 29 Car. 2. the faid William Lee died intestate, and the said Francis Ambler him survived; and 15 Febr. 31 Car. 2. died, and that the said Mary the wife of William Lee died before the said Frances, leaving the said Mary wife of the defendant.

That at the death of the said Frances, nor any time within two months next after the death of the faid Frances, there was no executor or administrator of the said William Lee, nor any person appointed on the behalf of the said Wil-. liam Lee, to have or to receive the said 300 l. in the said condition mentioned, nor to whom the fame could be paid according to the form of the said condition; and that adminittration of his goods and chattels was not granted within one year next after the death of the faid Frances. plaintiff demurs generally; and adjudged for the plaintiff, because the money being a duty, the defendant ought to Leeson versus Dover. London. Trin. 32 Car. 2.

DEBT upon a bond of 600 l. dat. 19 Junii 27 Car. 2. Condition.

The defendant demands over of the service of th The defendant demands over of the condition, which is, whereas there hath been a marriage lately solemnized between the above-named John Leeson and Anne Dover, daughter of the above-bound John Dover, and that the said John Dover did promise to pay the sum of 500 l. as the marriage portion of the said Anne to the said John Leeson, 2001. of which said fum hath been paid accordingly by the above-bound John Dover. Now if the above-bound John Dover shall and do well and truly pay or cause to be paid the due interest of 3001. yearly, and every year, being 181 unto the above-named John Leeson at two times or feasts in the year by equal portions, that is to say, 91. upon the feast of St. Thomas the apostle next ensuing, and the other 91. upon the feast of St. John the Baptist, which shall be in the year of our Lord .676. And it is farther the condition of this obligation, that the above-bound John Dover shall retain the principal money, being 3001. as aforesaid, in his hand, for the use of the said Anne, until such time as the said John Leeson shall settle, or cause to be settled, upon the said Anne, a jointure equal in value to the said sum of 3001. and then, that the above-bound John Dover shall upon half a year's notice thereof pay the said sum to the said John Leeson, to be to his own proper use for ever; all which the above-bound John Dover shall well and truly perform and keep; then this obligation to be void. P. 421. the plaintiff thould settle a jointure, which he hath not yet done. The plaintiff demurs, because the desendant doth not plead payment of interest for the said 300 l. after the first year; and it was adjudged for the plaintiff by the whole court, (except Scrogs chief justice who was absent) for that upon the whole condition it appears, that the intent of both parties was, that interest should be paid for the 300 l. for these reasons,

1. By the preamble of the condition it appears, that 500 l. was to be the marriage portion of Anne, and that the plaintiff was to have it without respect to the making of a jointure.

2. The words are, that the defendant shall pay due interest for the 3000 l. yearly, and every year, which must necessarily extend beyond one year.

3. The principal was to be retained till settlement, which implies that he was to pay interest: for principal and interest are relatives.

Et hoc, &c. unde, &c. The plaintiff replies, that the defendant Ollist imprisoned him de injuria sua propria, absque hoc, that the said Woodcroft and Bowles did take the plaintiff within the said liberty of the said duke of Norfolk. The defendant demurs, and shews for cause, that the plaintiff traverses a matter not traversable; and judgment was given in the Common Pleas for the plaintiff, and damages 100 L and the defendant brought a writ of error; and I conceive judgment ought to be aifirmed.

1. In all civil acts the law doth not so much regard the intent of the actor, as the loss and damage of the party suffering; and therefore Mich. 6. E. 4. 7. a. pl. 18. Trespass quare vi & armis clausum fregit, & herbam suam pedibus conculcundo consumpsit in six acres. The defendant pleads, that he hath an acre lying next the faid fix acres, and upon it a hedge of thorns, and he cut the thorns, and they ipso invita fell upon the plaintiff's land, and the defendant took them off as foon as he could, which is the same trespass; and the plaintiff demurred; and adjudged for the plaintiff; tor though a man doth a lawful thing, yet if any damage do hereby befal another, he shall answer it, if he could have avoided

P. 423. avoided it. As if a man lop a tree, and the boughs fall upon another ipso invite, yet an action lies. If a man shoot at buts, and hurt another unawares, an action lies. I have land through which a river runs to your mill, and I lop the sallows growing upon the river side, which accidentally stop the water, so as your mill is hindered, an action lies. If I am building my own house, and a piece of timber salls on my neighbour's house and breaks part of it, an action lies. If a man assault me, and I lift up my staff to defend myself, and in lifting it up hit another, an action lies by that person, and yet I did a lawful thing. And the reason of all these cases is, because he that is damaged ought to be recompensed. But otherwise it is in criminal cases, for there, Actus non saciet reum niss mens sit rea.

Mich. 23 Car. 1. B. R. Stile 72. Guilbert versus Stone. Trespass for entering his close, and taking away his horse. The desendant pleads, that he for sear of his life by threats of twelve men, went into the plaintiff's house and took the horse. The plaintiff demurred; and adjudged for the plaintiff, because threats could not excuse the desendant, and

Hob. 134. Weaver versus Ward. Trespass of assaukt and battery. The desendant pleads, that he was a trained soldier in London, and he and the plaintiff were skirmishing with their company, and the desendant with his musket casualiter, & per infortunium & contra voluntatem suam in discharging of his gun hurt the plaintiff; and resolved no good plea. So here, though the desendant knew not of the wrongful taking of the plaintiff, yet that will not make any recompense for the wrong the plaintiff hath sustained.

2. The defendant here suffers no wrong but by his own act and will, for he was not compellable to be gaoler. And when a man takes an office, it is presumed he knows of all the conveniencies and inconveniencies which attend it. And in this, as in all other contracts, he must take the bad with the good.

3. As the gaols of the counties are incident to the office of the sheriff, 4 Co. 34. a. so the gaols of liberties are incident to the lord of the liberty. And the gaoler is but servant to him, as the gaoler of the county gaol is to the sheriff, and consequently they understand one another, and are privy to each other's acts relating to the prisoners, in presumption of jan.

I give my wife all that messuage called the White Hart,. together with four acres of land called Aplands, in the parish of Tottenhum, &c. She out of the reass and profits thereof breeding and educating all my children. Item, I give to my third fon, Gerard Kipping, after my wife's decease, all the P. 426. And farther, my will and meaning is, That if my faid for Gerard happen to die without issue, my daughter Elizabeth 100/. being first paid, then the remainder of his estate to be divided amongst my sons and daughters, and the survivors of them. And lastly, I make my said wife executrix, to whom I give all the refidue of my estate, my debts and k-

Susan the wife immediately after the death of the devisor entered, and enjoyed the premisses during her life, and educated and maintained the children according to the said will.

Afterwards the said Susan, and Anne one of the daughters, died without issue.

Gerard after the death of his mother entered, and had issue Francis Kipping his only son, and no other issue, and died seised before his age of twenty-one years.

Francis the son of Gerard died before the said Gerard could have attained to the age of twenty-one years without iffue.

Charles Dyfon, one of the defendants, in the life of the faid Gerard married Susan one of the daughters of the said Francis and Susan; and William Davenant married Elizabeth aforesaid.

The 1001. bequeathed to the said Elizabeth was not paid to the said William and Elizabeth, or either of them, by the said Gerard in his life-time, or by the said Francis his only son.

* P. 428. And judgment was given for the plaintiff; and our opinions were delivered by my brother Jones. The reasons of my opinion were as follow.

ought to guide the judges in the exposition of all wills, 'tis necessary to consider, what estate the testator intended for his wife by his will. And I am of opinion, that he intended her an estate only durante viduitate, which the lord Ceke says, Co. Lit. 42. a. is in judgment of law an estate for life determinable, and in pleading the grantee shall say that by virtue thereof he was seised for life; which being premised, the question will be, Whether by the will she hath an estate durante viduitate? The words whereof are, I will that my wife shall have and enjoy all my houses, lands, &c. during her natural life, if she do not marry; and I do conceive they

they are so much and no more; for what is an estate during widowhood, but an estate to continue till she doth marry? And such an estate is not tied up to the words, durante viduitate, as exchange, warranty, frankmarriage, frankalmoign, &c. but any description thereof will satisfy; which being so, then the words, But if she do marry after my death, is no more than, in case the estate shall determine, then I will that my son Humphry shall presently enter, &c. by which it is most plain, that here is no contingent remainder, but an estate vested in Humphry to take effect in possession upon the marriage or death of the wise.

2. That the intent of the devisor was such, appears by the limitation; for he intended that the lands should go to his fons, and their issues male, and not to the females, which would not be, if this should be a contingent remainder; and such intention hath been in all ages regarded, in esteeming of issue male. 1 Reg. 21. 21. Interficiam de Achab mingentem ad parietes, Plowd. 305. Now this intention would not be attained without much improbability. cause of the age of the wife, for she had four fons at the time of making this will, and her great grandson was born within less than forty years afterwards, as appears by the record, and so she could not be very young, and consequently not inclinable to marry. 2. By her marriage she would lose this estate, which for aught appears by the record, was all her subtistence, both which were sufficient restraints of her marrying again without which the testator's intent would not be completed.

Object. It hath been objected, That the meaning of the testator could not have been expressed more plainly for a contingent remainder, that Humphry should have a see- P. 429.

Resp. It might have been much more plainly expressed, to have said, If she do not marry, living Humphry, Then, Esc. as Pell and Brown's case was, or by a more large description of all the circumstances of his intention.

Object. By this construction the eldest son would have less power of his estate than the younger, if his mother had survived him, because he could not have made an estate

Resp. That disability arises not from the estate given, but from the collateral accident of the mother's surviving, and so it is in all vested remainders where is a tenant for life in being; and here the mother might have survived all the remainders.

As

As for authorities, though they cannot be expected in case of a will to be very direct, yet to me these seem pretty apposite, viz.

Holcroft's case, six John Holcroft seised in see, covenants to levy a fine to the use of himself for life, the remainder to his son fix John for life, until he attempt to alien, and then to Hamlet Holcrost, during the life of six John, june the remainder to six John the younger's first, second, third and fourth sons successively, and the heirs male of their respective bodies, the remainder to the said Hamlet in tail male. Six John, sen dies, six John, june had only one son, who dies, and then six John the younger dies. Resolved. r. That Hamlet had an estate in remainder presently. 2. Though six John the younger had but one son, yet the remainder in tail vested in possession in Hamlet after the death of the said six John the younger without issue.

make any acts to alter or discontinue this estate-tail, and then to Thomas Keilway and the heirs male of his body, with feveral remainders over. The devisor dies without iffue, Honry enters, Thomas dies leaving issue Richard, Honry levies a fine, Richard enters. It was objected, that Richard could not enter, because the remainder devised to his father was contingent, viz. to arise upon Henry's alteration of the estate, and not before, and then Thomas dying before the contingent happened, the remainder could not vest. resolved, The remainder to Thomas was not contingent, but P. 430. an immediate * devise, because, should it be contingent, the devisor's intent would be destroyed, which was that every one in remainder, fuccessively, should enjoy the land; and so in the case at bar; and judgment was given by the whole court, except Scrogs chief justice, who was absent, and fate not at any time this whole term.

good enough, because, if they should certify only the judgment in the Scire facias, it could not well be understood by this court, because in inferior jurisdictions there are not several rolls to enter the judgment for the principal, and another for the Scire facias, and another for bails; but all proceedings as well against defendants as against the bail are entered (for the most part) in a book, and never entered at large unless when a writ of error is brought, and then they make up an entire record, and not otherwise; and judgment was affirmed.

By the act of 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 2. concerning the repairing the highways about London and Westminster, which is now expired, It was enacted, Sect. 11. In case any perfon shall propose to carry away the ashes, dirt, and other filth, for all or any of the places aforesaid, at less rates than the yearly raker or undertaker can or will perform the same, the said commissioners shall have power, and are hereby authorised to conttract with such person, and for such term as they shall think fit; the faid commissioners by deed poll under their hands and feals did dispose to Windsor Sandys, esq; the employment of raker, or general undertaker, for cleanfing of the streets, lanes and other open passages of each ward and division within the parith of St. Giles in the Fields, and St. Martin in the Fields in Middlesex, for the term of 21 years, of which term eleven years being expired, Windsor Sandys died, and his interest vested in his wife, who not being able to manage the said employment, invited Thomas Row, esq; to take it from her, and to buy out her interest, which he refused to do, without the consent of the said parishes; and thereupon he addressed himself to them, and acquainted the inhabitants of the faid parish of St: Giles in the Fields with it at a general vestry, (whereof Whitcomb was one) who unanimoufly affented to Row's perfecting an agreement with the widow Sandys, and made an order of vestry for continuance of such their agreement with the said . Row, as P. 433. they had before done with the said Windsor Sandys, and thereupon Row bought the widow Sandys's stock of horses and carts, to the value of 1000l. and entered upon the employment, and afterwards Whitcomb procured another vestry in the said parish, and there obtained an order contrary to the former, viz. That Whitcomb should have the employment, and caused the money raised by virtue of the scavengers rate to be stopped in the scavengers hands; and thereupon Row made application to the justices of the peace at the quarter-sessions, who ordered a reference to seven of them, who reported to them as is before-mentioned, and the court ordered that the money should be brought to the clerk of the peace, and Row to proceed in the faid employment, and that the money be paid over to Row. this Whitcomb obtained a Certiorari, and removed the order into this court, and upon opening of it, we were all of opinion, That the order was not good in law, because the justices of peace have nothing to do with contracts; but it seems probable, that the contrast and lease made by the commissioners at Scotland-yard was good to Sandys, and went to the widow, and by her might be transferred to Row;

Rew; but we determined not that point, but referred the business to sir Robert Sawyer knight, attorney general, to end it, if he can, because the way of managing the cleanfing the streets by such undertaking hath been very convenient; and we understood that Whitcomb was a man of small ability to carry on an employment of so great charge; and in the mean time the order to remain unquashed.

Upon

Upon this conviction, Phorbes brought a writ of error; and although the conviction was very vitious and erroneous, yet it being no judgment a writ of error doth not lie thereof; for the statute of 3 Jac. cap. 4. says, That after proclamation made, and upon every default recorded, the same shall be as sufficient a conviction in law of the said offence, as if upon the same indiament a trial by verdia thereupon had proceeded and been found against him or her and recorded; so that this is no judgment, but the statute gives process upon it for the forseiture; and the party's remedy is in the exchequer to quash it there. The faults in the record are, 1. The session is held 13 January 30 Car. 2. and the party is indicted at that sessions for not coming to church from 1 January 30 Car. 2. for fix months, which is all but thirteen days after the fessions held, and so impossible. The indicament is per sacramentum bonorum & legalium hominum, but not Com' præd', both which were held faults to have quashed the indiament, but not without first conforming, as that statute of 3 Jac. requires; and Phorbes was left to have his remedy in the exchequer.

IMOTHY HADDOCK brought a Mandamus direct- Corporation. ed to the mayor, aldermen, bailiffs and citizens of Trem. 355-the city of Carlifle, to restore him to the place and office of one of the aldermen of the said city, who returns as follows, viz.

That the city of Carlifle is, and time out of mind hath been an ancient city, and that the citizens of the city aforefaid for the time being, time out of mind until 21 July 13 Car. 1. were incorporated in the name of mayor and citizens of the city of Carlisle, and that always to that time there were within the said city twelve of the most sufficient citizens of the faid city for the time being, who were named confiliarii, alias Aldermanni, Civitatis præd', and out of which one yearly was duly chosen, and sworn in the office of mayor of the faid city for one whole year next following fuch election, and farther till one other of the twelve counsellors, otherwise aldermen aforesaid, should be chosen and made, and sworn mayor; and that every one of the said counsellors, alias aldermen, after that he should be chosen and sworn into the said office of counsellor, alias alderman, should continue therein during his life, if he should so long well behave himself.

Dd

That

That from time out of mind, till the said first day of July 13 Car. 1. there were, and used to be other thirty-two good and sufficient citizens of the said city e Gilda Mercatoria there chosen, which together with the said other eleven counsellors, alias aldermen, not being mayor, were and used to be the common council of the mayor and citizens of the said city.

That king Charles the First by his letters patent under the great scal of England, dated at Canterbury 21 July 13 Car. 1. did will, ordain, constitute and grant, that the said city from thencesorth should be a city of itself, and that the same should be from thencesorth incorporated by the name of mayor, aldermen, bailiss and citizens of the said city of

That from thenceforward for ever there should be within the said city, one of the aldermen for the time being, who should be named mayor of the said city, and eleven besides the said mayor, who should be called aldermen, and two others of the said city, which should be called bailists, two other discreet men to be chosen, who should be called coroners of the said city, and sour and twenty other men which should be called Capitales Cives of the said city, and should be adding the said mayor, aldermen and bailiffs for the time being.

That the said mayor, aldermen, bailiffs, and 24 Cepitales Cives, or the greater part of them, whereof the mayor to be one, upon publick summons by the said mayor to be made, should in the Guildhall have power to make orders and by-laws for the good government of the city, and to have all amerciaments and forfeitures thereby arising for their own use; and the king appoints Richard Barewise esq. to be the first mayor, to continue so till Monday next after Michaelmas Day following, and from thence till another out of the faid eleven aldermen should be chosen, if he should so long live; and the king likewise appoints eleven others by name to be aldermen, to continue in the faid office during their natural lives, unless in the mean time for ill government, or for any reasonable cause by the mayor, aldemen, bailiffs and Capitales Cives for the time being, or the greater part of them, whereof the mayor to be one, he should be: amoved. He also appointed two bailiss by name to confimue till Monday next after Michaelmas, and from thence the others should be chosen, if they should so long live, with in the mean time they should be amoved for ill governments or any other reasonable cause. In like manner he appointed two coroners by name, and also twenty-four common-costs-n to continue so during their natural lives, unless d for ill government, or for any other reasonable by the mayor, aldermen and chief citizens, or the part of them.

or the greater part of them, without the affiliance of other cirizens might every year on Monday next lichaelmas Day in the Guildhall, chuse one of the said en to be mayor of the said city; and if the number choosers shall be equal; then the mayor to have a voice.

t the mayor so chosen shall be sworn before his prer; if living, and if dead, before the aldermen, of part of them in the presence of the aldermen, baind twenty-four, or so many of them as shall be after he shall be so sworn, he shall continue a year, another shall be chosen and sworn in his place.

the said mayor, aldermen, bailiffs, and twentyall on Monday next after Michaelmas Day choose two yearly out of the citizens, who shall be sworn bemayor, and other aldermen, and 24, and shall hold aces a year, and until others shall be chosen and sworn ir places.

n, bailiss, and twenty-four, or the greater part of hall choose one of the aldermen to be mayor, and minue so for the residue of the year, and till another chosen, to be sworn before two aldermen; and if the said aldermen for the time being shall die, then for and surviving aldermen, or the greater part of hall choose others in their places to be sworn before for to continue so during his life.

within the year, then the mayor, bailiffs, and four, or the greater part of them, shall choose out of the citizens of the said city, to continue duresidue of the said year; and if any of the twenty-li die, or be amoved, then the mayor and aldermen, greater part of them, shall choose others de magis discretis Civibus into his place. The king also that the said mayor, aldermen, bailiss and citizens have a recorder, and named one to continue during sture of the mayor, aldermen, &c. preut per Literas (inter alia) apparet.

That one Thomas Jackson being mayor, 6 Other 31 Car. 1. a common council was held in the Guildhall of the city for the election of a mayor for the year ensuing, at which the said Haddock was present, who being then about to depart, the said mayor spoke to him, and requested him not to depart from the said council before the election with but should attend the election according to his duty, and without any reasonable cause departed from the said council, and afterwards the same day before the said election made came back again leading thither with him divers persons to the number of fixty of the inferior citizens of the said city, not having voices in the said election, to disturb the said election, and there did tumultuose, riotose & minuciter require the said mayor, aldermen, bailiss, and capital citizens then assembled, that he and the persons he brought with him might together with the faid mayor, aldermen, bailiffs and capital citizens so assembled us aforesaid, choose a mayor, contrary to the form and effect of the said letters patent, laying, and with a great noise clamouring and alledging the said letters patent concerning the election sforefaid to be void, to the great terror of the faid mayor, aldermen, bailiffs and capital citizens so assembled as aforefaid; and the said Timothy Haddock, and all other the perfons aforesaid, and by him brought with him at and by the instigation and procurement of the said Timothy, then and there in the presence of the said mayor, bailists and capital citizens for the cause aforesaid assembled, did so disturb the said mayor, aldermen, bailists and capital citizens with threats, complaints and clamours, that they durch not, nor could not, proceed in the said election for the space of two hours; and therefore afterwards, viz. 25 October then next following • in a council held in the Guildhall aforesaid before • the said Thomas Jackson then mayor of the said city, and the greater part of the aldermen of the city aforesaid, it was ordered by the same mayor and aldermen then and there present, that the said Timethy should be summoned to be at a common council of the faid mayor and aldermen in the Guildhall aforesaid, 8 November then next following to be held, to answer concerning his misbehaviour aforesaid, and to thew cause why he for the said misdemeanor should not be amoved from the place and office of alderman of the faid ity, at which said council the said Timothy appeared, and being spoke to by the mayor if he had any thing to say in excuse of the premisses, or could shew any cause why he sught not to be amoved from the office of alderman of the laid city, said nothing in excuse of his said misbehaviour, nor shewed any cause why for his said offence he should not be amoved from his said office; and thereupon the said Thomas Jackson then mayor, and the said greater part of the faid aldermen then present, did amove the said Timothy Haddock from his said office of one of the aldermen of the faid city, and did declare him to be fo amoved; and for that cause they cannot restore him. And we all held this return good; for though by the charter of 13 Car.

P. 439,

13 Car. 1. there is no power given for the corporation to remove an alderman, yet when the confiliarii, alias aldermanni, were before the said charter removeable for reasonable cause, the same power still remains, for that the charter doth not merge or extinguish any of the ancient privileges; but the corporation may use them as before; and if it should be otherwise it would be very mischievous for most of the corporations in England, who have taken new charters, but were ancient corporations before.

Carpenter's Case.

Churchwarden.

And be it enacted by the authority aforefaid, that the lord chancellor or keeper of the great seal of England for the time being, shall and may at all times hereafter by virtue of this act, without any farther warrant, make and direct commission or commissions under the great seal of England to any person or persons, giving them or some of them thereby authority to tender and minister the oath aforesaid to such person or persons, as by the aforesaid commission or commissions the said commissioners shall be authorised to tender the same unto.

They find also the next clause expressing the penalty for the first resulat of the said oath, and the clause of certificate of result into the King's Bench, and concerning the indistances of the offender.

That the defendants 23 November 30 Car. 2. and 8 Par. 31 Car. 2. were not any officers or ministers mentioned in the said statute of 1 or 5 Eliz.

That

That there was no other commission made to the said Harrison and Croome to tender the said oath to the said defendants; and the jury conclude, Et si the defendants are guilty or not petunt advisamentum Curice.

And the points intended in this special verdict were three, wiz. 1. The words of the act of 5 Eliz. cap. 1. being, that the lord Chancellor, &c. shall, &c. make, &c. commission, &c. 20 any person or persons, giving them or some of them thereby authority to tender and minister the oath aforesaid to such person or persons, as by the aforesaid commission or commis-Sons the faid commissioners shall be authorized to tender the same oath unto, whether the commission specified in + P. 445. the record be pursuant to the said act, for it is not directed to any persons particularly, nor to tender the said oath to any persons by name; and if it shall be in the commissioners discretion to tender it as they shall think fit, they shall take mpon them to judge who are Romana superstitionis settatores, or so reputed; and though several commissions were made out about the same time of the same term with this, yet the lord Chancellor did cause new commissions to be made out, expressing the names of the persons to whom the oath should be tendered; and this objection was raised by the lord chief justice Scrogs before whom the verdict was found; but it was resolved by the other three judges (myself doubting) that this commission was very good, because the power is left to the commissioners to choose whom they will tender the oath unto by the clause of the act; and in this manner were the ancient commissions shortly after the statute made.

The exception was, that the indictment sets forth a certificate from the commissioners under their hands, but not under their feals, as the statute requires; but to this the court answered, that in regard the certificate is found in hac verba in the verdict to be under their seals, it shall be amended, and so good enough; and it was amended accordingly.

The third exception was, the certificate is directed only to the judges by name, and not to the king in his court of King's Beach, as the act requires; but resolved by the said three justices, that that is good enough, because it shall be intended that the faid judges made the court, and were therein fitting at the time of the certificate: but I also doubted of this answer; but the judgment was given against the defendants. And as to the finding that the defendants were mone of the officers or ministers mentioned in the several statutes of 1 and 5 Eliz. the whole court were of opinion, it was not material, because by the clause of 5 Eliz. impowering the lord chancellor to make out commissions, all perfons, though not officers, may be offered the said oath if the commissioners think fit.

Taverner's Case.

Mandamur

TEREMIAH TAVERNER, having been chosen into the I livery of the company of vintners in London, had a Mandemus directed to the master, wardens and assistants of the faid company to admit him to be a livery-man according to his said election, to which they return,

That London is an ancient city, and that the citizens and freemen thereof time out of mind were, and still are incorporated, as well by the name of mayor and commonalty of the city of London, as by the name of mayor, commonalty and citizens of the city of London, and that of the said citizens there were several societies, guilds and fraternities, of which the company of vintners is and always hath been one.

That in the faid fociety there have been time out of mind certain men being citizens and freemen of the said city and company, called livery-men, who were used to be chosen for the said company.

That the said company of vintners (as other companies) for the preservation and maintenance as well of the honour, as state and government of the said city, as well at times of publick meeting and attendances of the mayor and aldermen, and other publick occasions, and for the preservation of the honour and reputation, and government of the faid company, and for the relief of the poor members thereof, have been forced to expend great sums of money.

That the faid company of vintners have been anciently incorporated, and called by divers names; and that the 2 Feb. 9 Jac. the king by his letters patent incorporated them by the name of mafter, wardens, and freemen and commonalty of the mystery of vintners of the said city of London, and that they may make by-laws.

That time out of mind the place and office of the livery hath been a place and degree of pre-eminence in the faid company; and that as well before and fince the faid letters patent every fellow of the said company, who was elected into the place and office of one of the livery was used, and ought to be Idoneus homo, ac de bono statu & substantia qui bene potuit & ad vel ante admissionem suam per totum tempus præd. usus suit & consuevit & debuit solvere pro & erga me-Laren liorem & necessariam supportationem & sustentationem societatis præd. & necessuria onera & expensa, inde certam competen. denariorum summami.

. That without the assistance and relief which the said * P. 447. company by fuch payments hath had and received, it could not maintain its government and reputation.

That for many years before the 24 April 1656, the sum of money which every livery-man upon his admission paid, exceeded 311. 13s. 4d. and then a by-law was made, that the payment should be so much only; and from that time the faid fum hath been always paid by every one admitted into the livery.

That 18 June 1680, ante adventum brevis præd. he was chose to be a livery-man, and was then required to take the said office upon him, and that the master, wardens and company were ready to admit him to the place of a liveryman upon payment of the said sum of 311. 13s. 4d. which he ought to pay according to the by-law afore-mentioned; but he hath refused so to do, and thereupon the company refuse to admit him until he shall pay the same.

Upon this return the counsel for Taverner argued, that the by-law therein mentioned for imposing 311. 131. 4d. upon every livery-man was unreasonable and against law, and a grievance to the subject: but the court resolved, Were the fum more or less, it could not make the by-law void, for it is to bind only the members of the corporation; and when a man will agree to be of a company, he doth thereby submit himself to the laws thereof, and we are not to take notice of the extravagancy of charges they lay upon themselves. And 'tis convenient that the company have such power to keep up their reputation, and the honour of the city of London; and so allowed the return to be good.

The Case of the Town of Winchelsea.

Certiorari. 2 Lev. 86. Trem. 556. 3 Keb. 154. 3²4. CERTIORARI was granted to the mayor, jurats and commonalty of the ancient town of Winchelfes in Suffex, to remove an order or decree made by them; who made this return: viz.

That there have been time out of mind in Kent and Suffex five ancient towns, viz. Haftings, Sundwich, Dever, New Runney and Hith, which have been always called the Cinque Ports of the kingdom; and that in Suffex there are, and always have been two other ancient towns called Rye and Winchelsea, which are members of the said Cinque Ports.

That the said town of Winchelsea hath been time out of mind incorporated by the name of mayor, jurats and commonalty of Winchelsea.

That all the said Cinque Ports with their members have been time out of mind places for ordering provision, and preservation of shipping of the kings and queens of this kingdom of England for the time being; and that by reason of their situation upon or near the sea-shores, the inhabitants and residents thereof, as well for safe keeping the said towns, as of the said kingdoms of England against foreign invasion of enemies, have always and ought to keep beacons, watch-houses and guards night and day, as well by sea as land; and for better maintenance thereof, the said town of Winchelsea in their common hall used to make taxes and rates upon every inhabitant or occupier of house or land, lying or being within the said town or liberties thereof, which said privileges were consirmed by Magna Charta.

That I May 32 Car. 2. they made a tax of 6d. per pound for the maintaining of the said beacons and warehouses according to a schedule annexed to the said tax, and that there was no other order or decree. And set out the schedule.

And to this schedule was objected, That 'tis not set forth that the beacons or watch-houses were in decay or out of repair, and so the rate unnecessary.

But resolved, It is well enough; for 1st, 'Twould be P. 449. dangerous to expect till they became in decay, for then there must be no beacon till repaired, nor no watch-houses in the mean time, which would be dangerous for the place. 2. Tis to be presumed that the inhabitants will not tax themselves unnecessarily, and they do all concur in the taxation:

And so the order was confirmed.

Richard Sheldon versus Michael Clipsham. Assumpsit.

HE plaintiff declares in an Indebitat' Assumpsit for Pleading. 100/. received to the plaintiff's use; and also upon 2 Jon. 158. an Infimul Computaffet for another 1001. the same day. The defendant pleads, that the said several sums of 100% in the declaration respectively specified, are for one and the same cause of action for one sum of 100% only, and not for several fums of 100/. and that after the time of the said several promises respectively specified, viz. such a day, the desendant paid to one Bellamy by the plaintiff's order 301. in part of payment and satisfaction of the monics in the declaration specified; and that the defendant in full payment and satisfaction of the said monies demanded by the plaintiff in his declaration did then become bound to the plaintiff in a bond of 1201. conditioned for payment of 651. to the plaintiff at a certain day in the faid condition specified as yet not incurred; which 301. and bond the plaintiff accepted; Et hoc perat', &c.

Upon this plea the plaintiff demurred, and the whole court were of opinion that the plea is good; for though 'tis frequent to lay a declaration for a debt several ways in an Assumpsit, and 'tis not a good plea to say that the several sums are but only for the sum first mentioned, and so go no farther; yet when the defendant pleads over, that the very sum demanded is satisfied, 'tis a good plea; and if that the two several hundred pounds were two distinct sums, the plaintiff might have replied so, and taken issue therewoon. But he admits that there was but 1001. due, and that satisfied, the plea is good. But at the importunity of the plaintiff's counsel we gave him leave to waive the demourrer, and take issue upon the satisfaction, upon paying to

* Elizabeth Case versus James Barber.

Accord. I Dany. Abr. 77 · P· 4• 241. p. 19. 2 Jon. 158.

THE plaintiff declares in an Indebitatus Assumpsit for 201. for meat, drink, washing and lodging for the defendant's wife, provided for her at the request of the defendant, and lays it two other ways. The defendant pleads that after the making the said promise, &c. and before the exhibiting the faid bill, viz. such a day, it was agreed between the plaintiff and the defendant and one Jacob Barber, his son, that the plaintiff should deliver to the defendant divers clothes of the defendant's wife then in her cultody, and that the plaintiff should accept the said Jacob, the son, for her debtor for 91. to be paid as soon as the said Jacob should receive his pay due from his majesty, as lieutenant of the ship called the Happy Return, in full satisfaction and discharge of the premisses in the declaration mentioned; and avers that the plaintiff the same time did deliver to the defendant the faid clothes, and that the accepted the faid Facob the son, her debtor for the said of. and that the said son agreed to pay the same to the plaintiff accordingly; and that the said Jacob afterwards, and as soon as he received his pay as aforesaid, viz. 27 April 32 Car. 2. was ready and offered to pay the said of. and the plaintiff refused to receive it; and that the said Jacob hath always since been, and still is ready to pay the same, if the said plaintiff will receive it. Et hoc paratus, &c. The plaintiff demurs. And it was alledged by the defendant's counsel that the plea is good; for though in Peyto's case, and formerly it hath been held, that an accord cannot be pleaded unless it appears to be executed,. 9 Co. 79. b. 3 Cro. 46. pl. 2. yet of late it hath been held that upon mutual promises an action lies, and consequently there being equal remedy on both fides an accord may be pleaded without execution as well as an arbitrement, and by the same reason that an arbitrement is a good plea without performance; to which the court agreed; for the reason of the law being changed, the law is thereby changed; and anciently remedy was not given for mutual promises, which now is given; and for this reason, Mich. 18 Car. B. R. Palmer versus Lawfon, ante. In indebitatus Assumpfit against an executor upon a contract made by the testator; the desendant pleads judgment in debt upon simple contract against him for the debt of the testator, and after argu-

mur, yet when he admits the demand, and executors are now liable to pay such debts in action upon the case, the judgment so obtained was pleadable; so Vaughan Rep. Dee versus Edgcomb.

But in this case at bar judgment was given for the plaintiff for two reasons.

1. Because it doth not appear that there is any consideration that the son should pay the 91. but only an agreement without any confideration.

2. Admit the agreement would bind, yet now by the statute of frauds and perjuries, 29 Car. 2. this agreement ought to be in writing, or else the plaintiff could have no remedy thereon; and though upon such an agreement the plaintiff need not fet forth the agreement to be in writing, yet when the defendant pleads such an agreement in bar, he must plead it so as it may appear to the court, that an action will lie upon it, for he shall not take away the plaintiff's present action, and not give him another upon the agreement pleaded.

Charles Holmes versus Elizabeth Meynel. Ejestment. Derby.

F the demise of Francis Meynel of the moiety of the Estate. manors of Meynel-Langley and Kirk-Langley 300 mef- 3 Danv. Ab. susges, 500 acres of land, 200 acres of meadow, and 500 2 Jon. 172. acres of pusture in Meynel-Langly and Kirk-Langly. Upon 2 Show. 136. Not guilty pleaded, the jury find a special verdict, viz.

Pollexf. 425. Skip. 17.

That one Isaac Meynel was seised in see entirely as well of the manor of Meynel and Kirk-Langly, as of all the tenements in the declaration, 2 Novemb. 1675. made his will in writing thus: I give and devise all my lands in Meynel and Kirk-Langly in the county of Derby unto my two daughters Elizabeth and Anne Meynel, and their beirs, equally to Εe be divided betwixt them: and in case they happen to dis without issue, then I give and devise all the said lands to my nephew Francis Meynel, eldest son of my brother William Meynel deceased, and to the heirs male of his body; and for want of such issue, to William Meynel, brother of the said Francis, and the heirs male of his body, the remainder to Godfrey Meynel, brother of the said Francis and William in tail male, the remainder to John brother of the said Francis, William and Godfrey in tail male; and for want of such issue I give and devise the said lands to the next beir male of the name and family of the Meynels, and died without issue male, having issue Elizabeth, now defendant, and Anne, his two only daughters, who entered and became seised preut Lex, &c. Anne died without issue, Francis the lessor of the plaintiff entered.

After several arguments at the bar, the court by the mouth of the chief justice gave judgment for the desendant. I had prepared my argument, as the rest of the judges had done; but in regard we were all unanimous, it was thought needless for us all to argue. My argument follows.

• P. 453.

* 1. What estate Elizabeth and Anne have by this will.

2. Whether upon the death of Anne without issue Francis in remainder takes any thing?

As to the 1st, I conclude that Elizabeth and Anne have several estates-tail by moieties; for though the devise be to them and their heirs in the beginning, yet when the will asterwards says, And if they die without iffue, it shews that (heirs) was intended heirs of their bodies: so it hath been construed in grants.

5 H. 5. 6. a. Lands granted to man and his wife, & distance haredibus of the husband, if the heirs of the husband and wife shall die fine haredibus de se, the husband and wife had an intail: A fortiori in a will, 2 Cro. 448. King versus Rumbal, where many books are cited; and Bridgmen 1. Pell versus Brown; so that as to this point, 'tis not much denied on either side.

As to the 2d point. I conceive Francis takes nothing upon the death of Anne, but that her part remains to her sister by way of a cross remainder.

testator was, that in the first place he would take care of his own children, and then look after the continuation of his own name and family; for first he gives to his daughters, and afterwards the remainders to his nephews, then to the

That this was the intent appears by the words of the will: 1. In case (they) die without issue, i. e. both of them, 'tis not they or either of them. 2. All the said lands, which intends both parts, and not a moiety; and All cannot pass till both are dead without iffue. And if the testator had been asked, what he meant by the lands going to his nephew after the death of his daughters without issue, he would have answered, that he should have the lands when both of his daughters should be dead without issue, and not before.

2. This intent consists with the rules of law, for 'tis a general rule, That a will shalk never be construed by implication to disinherit the heir at law, unless such implication be neceffery, and not only constructive and possible, 13 H. 7. 17. Br. Devise 52. A man devised his goods to his wife and after the decease of his wife, his son and heir shall have the house wherein his goods are; the son shall not have the house during the wife's life; for though it be not * expressly * P. 454. devised to the wife, yet by his intent it appears, that the son shall not have it during her life, and therefore it is a good devise to the wife by implication, and the devisor's intent: but if it were a devise to a stranger after the death of the wife, the heir shall have it during the wife's life, because it is not a devise to the wife by a necessary implication.

Hill. 20 & 21 Car. 2. C. B. Gardiner versus Sheldon, Vaughan 295. William Rose made his will thus, My will and meaning is, that if it happen that my son George, Mary and Katharine my daughters, do die without issue of their bodies, then all my freeholds shall come, remain and be to my nephew William Rose and his heirs for ever. Resolved the son and daughters had no estate by the will, and so are the books of Moor 7. pl. 24. and 123. pl. 269. 2 Cro. 74 & 75. Horton verius Horton.

In our case here is no necessary implication that Francis must take immediately after the death-of Anne without ifsue, for Elizabeth is still alive, and he is not to have the land till the devisor's daughters shall die without issue.

2. Had the teltator fet forth at length the cross remainders, this question had been out of doubt. Now he being inops Consilii we ought by construction to make his words answer his intent, appearing in other parts of the will, as near as may be.

will, for the old books cannot have any unless of a devise by custom, which is rare; and every case upon a will stands upon its own legs, according to the penning thereof; yet Mich. 32 Eliz. C. B. 4 Leon. 14. pl. 51. is direct in the point. The case was, A. seised of lands had issue two sone, and devised part to his eldest in tail, and the other part to his younger in tail, with this clause in the will. That if any of his sons died without issue, that then the whole land should remain to a stranger in see, and died; the sons entered into the lands devised to them respectively, and the younger died without issue, and he to whom the see was devised entered; and adjudged that his entry was not lawful, and that the eldest son should have the land by the implicative devise.

As to the cases objected, which are, 2 Cro. 655. Guilbert versus Witty. A devise of three several messuages to three several children, Provided if all my said children shall die without issue of their bodies, then all the said messuages shall * P. 455. * remain to my wife and her heirs, and two died. Resolved the wife shall have the two parts.

Resp. That differs much from this case, because there are three devises, in which case cross remainders will be more difficultly settled; for whether the survivors shall be jointenants for life with several inheritances, or tenants in common in tail, would be perhaps some question, as appearantly the report of the same case, 2 Roll. Rep. 281. But in our case no such difficulty can arise.

Object. Pasch. 12 Juc. C. B. Johnson versus Smart, 2 Roll. Abr. 416. F. pl. 3. A devise to two for their lives, remainder to their two sons, equally to be divided and to their heirs, and each of them to be the other's heir; and if they both shall die without issue, the remainder to another; one dies, his share shall go to the remainder man.

Resp. This case cannot be law, because 'tis apparent that each of them was to be the other's heir, which is as plain a cross remainder as can be. 2. This case was received by Roll from some other hand, and it is reported in a private report to be quite another case; for 'twas upon evidence in a trial at bar in a case of a surrender of a copyhold, and not a devise; and Roll could not be a reporter at that time, for 'twas before he came to study the law. And each to be the other's heir makes a cross remainder. Br. Devise 38. Done 44. Pet. Br. 94. b. pl. 431.

Object. Dyer 326. a. Huntley's case, which was, that be being seised of two houses, one in St. Michael Quentity, and the other in St. Michael Flesh-Shambles, which last parish was laid to the parish of Christ-Church in Louden, and

sp. Though this question is put in the book, yet I find gument of it; and that case will differ from this, in I there the particular estates were not limited to the en, but to strangers, and so intrenches not upon the n 13 H. 7. whereby an heir is difinherited. And Dyer to intimate, that the pleading of the case was more d upon than this point; for he puts the stress of the p lie upon the pleading, that the house lay in the * pa. * P. 456. f Christ-Church, whereas the will says, in St. Michael Shambles, without averment of the union of those pa-

Error. Skin. 6, 26, 2 Jon. 150. HE plaintiff brought an action of covenant, and judgment was given against her in C. B. upon demurrer; and now she brought a writ of error in B. R. and the case upon the record in short is,

The plaintiff declares upon articles indented of nine parts, dated 5 Aug. 23 Car. 2 made between the said lord viscount Runelagh of the first part, Sir Alexander Bence of the second part, Sir James Hayes of the third part, John Bence of the fourth part, Joseph Dean of the fixth part, Robert Huntington of the seventh part, John Stepney of the eighth part, and the said Richard Kingdon of the ninth part, wherein after a recital of an indenture under the great seal of England dated 4 Aug. 23 Car. 2. whereby the king granted a lease of the great branches of his revenue in Ireland to the faid lord vifcount Ranelugh, Sir Alexander Bence and the rest, for five years, to end 25 Decemb. 1675. The parties did all agree amongst themselves severally, that the said profits of what should accrue after all the payments to be made pursuant to the king's grant, should be divided into twelve parts, viz. four parts to the lord viscount Ranelagh, and the other eight to each of the others. And that no money should be paid out of the office (which was to be kept for issuing out of cash) but according to the indenture made by his majesty; and 150 l. quarterly to each share; and that the 150 l. should not be taken out of the cash, but should be continued there, and a note given by the receiver general of the said parties declaring the same to be advanced for the carrying on of the undertaking, at interest of 101. per cent. until all the said articles should be performed, and that the said interest should be paid quarterly. And if there should not be sufficient cash to answer the ends of the agreement; then the quarterly payment should be made use of to that purpose

That the intestate Richard Kingdon died before 25 Decemb. 1675. viz. I Decemb. 1675. and that the sum of 2850 1. before the faid 1 Decemb. 1675. was advanced by the intestate out of the said quarterly payment of 150 l. and that 712 l. at his death was due for the interest thereof, which the defendants have not paid, but do deny to pay to

The defendant Farrer pleads the very fine (now endeavoured to be reversed) and five years in bar of the writ of error, to which the plaintiff demurred; and adjudged by the whole court for the plaintiff, and the fine was reversed, and the reason was, Non potest adduct exceptio ejustem rei eu-

ROVER by five, and before verdict one of them dies, and they proceed to trial, and verdict for the plaintiffs, and then the plaintiffs suggest, that one of them is dead, and pray judgment for the rest, and had it; and the defendants bring a writ of error, and affign for error, that the party died before verdia, and so a verdiat was given for a dead person. And after argument at the bar judgment was reversed, because every man shall recover according to the right which he hath at the time of the bringing the action; and therefore if the heir brings an ejectment and his ancestor dies subsequent to his action, he shall not recover. And in this case, although the plaintiffs were joint-tenants, and had a capacity of having the whole survive. yet in truth every one had but a moiety, and so were not at the time of the action intitled to so much as they are after the death of one of the plaintiffs. And as to the case of a Bulft. 262. Spring's case, he reports the reason of the judgment to be, because by the death of one the action survives to the other: but he mistakes the reason, as appears by Read and Readman's case. As to the cases where trespass is brought against many, and one dies, they differ much from this case, because there the trespass is joint or several at the pleasure of the plaintiff. As to the case of a replevin, 3 Cro. 574. though an avowant is to some purposes a plaintiff, yet he doth not bring the action, and so not within the rule, that the same right must continue which was at the bringing the action; and so judgment was agreed to be reversed by the opinion of three against Dolben, who defired time to consider.

And it was moved in arrest of judgment, that this breach is out of the articles, viz. the putting the hops into the grains, and damages being entire, the plaintiff ought not to have judgment. But judgment was given for the plaintiff, because the intention of the parties is to be considered in all contracts; and it was the intent of the parties here, that the plaintiff should have the grains for the use of his cattle, and they will not eat them when hops are put into them. So if I covenant that I will leave all the timber which is growing on the land I hire, upon the land at the end of the term, if I cut it down, though I leave it on the land, it is a breach of my covenant. So if I covenant to deliver so many yards of cloth, and I cut it in pieces and then deliver it, it is a breach of my covenant; for the law regards the real and faithful performance of all contracts, and doth discountenance all such acts as are in fraudem Legis.

At the trial, after the jury sworn, and before verdict given, the desendant came into the court, and did there submit, recognize, consess and acknowledge, that he had offended and done ill in not going to church, and not conforming himself to the law therein, and did then prove that he had conformed himself since the sait brought, by going to church, receiving the sacrament, and behaving himself orderly and soberly during all the time of divine service, according to the law; and did then and there promise and engage to conform, and go to church, and there to behave himself soberly and orderly, according to the law; and that the said desendant was never indicted or prosecuted for any offence of this nature before.

This is an action for 201. a month for not coming to church, tried at the assizes in Dorset, and a verdict for the plaintiff for 401. At the trial the defendant comes into court and conforms, and makes the above written recognition, Whether that doth discharge the action and verdict, or no, is the question?

And the whole court did resolve that the action and verdict were discharged; we did not argue the case publickly, but briefly gave our opinions. I had prepared my argument, but since we all agreed in opinion we did not argue.

I conceive the proviso in 1 Jac. cap. 4. doth discharge the penalty notwithstanding the interest which the informer sath in the same.

HE plaintiff declares of a trespass and false imprisonment, and detaining in prison quousq; finem secit ad damnum 1001. The defendants justify by virtue of a writ of Non omittas directed to the sheriff of Norfolk, and a warrant to the bailiff of the duke of Norfolk, to whom execution of the said warrant did appertain, who committed him to the desendant as keeper of the prison of the liberty. The plaintiff replies, De injuria sua propria, Absq; hac, that the bailists took him within the liberty. The desendant demurs, because the plaintiff traverses a thing not traversable, and answers not the desendant's bar; and judgment was given in C. B. for the plaintiff.

The question was this. A gaoler takes from the bailist a prisoner arrested by him out of the bailist's jurisdiction, Whether the gaoler be liable to an action of salse imprisonment? and the judges of the common pleas did all hold that he was; and of that opinion I am for these reasons.

1. In all civil acts the law doth not fo much regard the intent of the actor, as the loss and damage of the party fuffering; and therefore Mich. 6 E. 4. 7. a. pl. 18. Trespets quare vi & armis clausum fregit, & herbam suam pedibus conculcando consumpsit in fix acres. The defendant pleads, that he hath an acre lying next the faid fix acres, and upon it a hedge of thorns, and he cut the thorns, and they ipfe invite fell upon the plaintiff's land, and the defendant took them off as foon as he could, which is the same trespass; and the plaintiff demurred; and adjudged for the plaintiff; for though a man doth a lawful thing, yet if any damage do thereby beful another, he shall answer for it, if he could have avoided it. As if a man lop a tree, and the bought full upon another ipso invito, yet an action lies. If a man shoot at buts, and hurt another unawares, an action lies. I have land through which a river runs to your mill, and I dentally stop the water, so as your mill is hindered, an action lies. If I am building my own house, and a piece of timber salls on my neighbour's house and breaks part of it, an action lies. If a man assault me, and I list up my staff to defend myself, and in listing it up hit another, an action lies by that person, and yet I did a lawful thing. And the reason of all these cases is, because he that is damaged ought to be recompensed. But otherwise it is in criminal cases, for there Assus non facit reum nift mens sit rea.

Mich. 23 Car. 1. B. R. Stile 72. Guilbert versus Stone. Trespass for entering his close, and taking away his horse. The desendant pleads, That he for sear of his life by threats of twolve men, went into the plaintiff's house and took the horse. make satisfaction to the plaintiff.

Hob. 134. Weaver versus Ward. Trespass of assault and battery. The desendant pleads, that he was a trained soldier in London, and he and the plaintiff were skirmishing with their company, and the desendant with his musket cafualiter, & per infortunium & contra voluntatem suam in discharging of his gun hurt the plaintiff; and resolved no good plea. So here, though the desendant knew not of the wrongful taking of the plaintiff, yet that will not make any recompence for the wrong the plaintiff hath sustained.

2. The defendant here suffers no wrong but by his own act and will, for he was not compellable to be gaoler. And when a man takes an office, 'tis presumed he knows of all the conveniences and inconveniences which attend it. And in this, as in all other contracts, he must take the bad with the good. Vide Moor 457. pl. 629. Coot versus Lightworth,

3. As the gaols of the counties are incident to the office of the sheriff, 4 Co. 34. a. so the gaols of liberties are incident to the lord of the liberty. And the gaoler is but servant to him, as the gaoler of the county gaol is to the sheriff, and consequently they understand one another, and are privy to each other's acts relating to the prisoners, in presumption of law.

Object. By this way a subsequent sheriff may be answer-

sendant justifies by virtue of a Process out of the excheques, directed to the defendant's predecessor, who took him by it, and also by virtue of a Latitat; and so the plaintiff was delivered over to the desendant. The plaintiff replies as to the exchequer Process, there was a Supersedeas, and that the predecessor detained him after the Supersedeas delivered; and as to the Latitat, that the plaintiff in that action ordered the desendant's predecessor to discharge the now plaintiff. And upon this plea the desendant demurred; and adjudged for the plaintiff, because this detaining by the now desendant is quass a new taking. And the subsequent sheriff is bound to take conusance of the acts of his predecessor. And 'tis usual in other cases for one man to answer for the acts of another.

4. The inconvenience which would otherwise fall out; for the desendant should be thus imprisoned, and have no remedy for his wrong, for the bailiss may be dead, or the arrest might be by a deputy, or person insolvent; and no inconvenience on the other side, for he may take security that he shall be charged with no prisoners, but what shall be legally committed; or perhaps he may have a special action upon the case for committing the prisoner to his custody, not having been duly arrested.

But the other three judges resolved, that the desendant the gapler could not be charged, because he could not have notice whether the prisoner were legally arrested or not, and yet he is not compellable to take the prisoner into his custody, and if he let him go he is liable to the plaintiff in the action's suit for the escape.

Afterwards Maynard serieant moved farther, that the defendant is charged by the declaration for imprisonment quousq; finem fecit pro deliberatione habend, which is not seed wered, for the imprisonment only is justified, and not the finem fecit; and this exception was taken Mich. 19 H.6.10. 35. a. pl. 73. 1 Roll. His reasons alledged by his counsel ere. 1. There may be found another will wherein Chrifpier may be executor, and then he will be to seek for the. bate. 2. There may be specialties taken by the testator in a name of Christopher, and there being no trust declared, a same will be construed an advancement for Christopher. John the present executor may die intestate, and then the ministration de bonis non will belong to Christopher. 4. he statute of 21 H. 8. cap. 5. says, That the executor all make a true and perfect inventory. 5. John hath sworn to do, and no judge can dispense with his oath. But twitistanding these arguments . the sentence was con- P. 471. med by North lord chief justice of C. B. the intention of the statute was for the advantage of legates and creditors; and here the legacy is tendered, and no creditor complains; and its sound that John hath acknowledged in his hands 23000s, more than what will pay the debts all legacies. And by the statute the inventory is to consist only of goods, chattels, wares and merchandizes, and not at things in action; and this estate consists mostly of specialists and it would be very disadvantageous to debtors (as this case is) to have their debts discovered when no necessary requires; and the ordinary doth frequently dispense with a longer time to bring in an inventory, and so he may dispense with the inventory upon cause; and such inventory was dispense with in the estate of sir Henry Martin who died 1641, and in the case of Vandeput 1647, and so sentence was confirmed.

ROVER of divers goods. The defendant pleads an action of trespass Vi & armis brought against them formerly, for taking and disposing of the same goods; and upon Not guilty pleaded, a verdict for the defendants: judgment fi actio. The plaintiff demurs; and adjudged for the plaintiff in this action of Trover, because Trover and Tighals are actions sometimes of a different nature; for Ireal will sometimes lie where Trespass vi & armis will not les as if a man hath my goods by my delivery to keep for 🌇 and I afterwards demand them, and he refuses to deliver them, I may have an action of Trover, but not Tropes & armis, because here was no tortious taking; and look times the case may be such, that either the one or the other will lie; as where there is a tortious taking away of goods and detaining them, the party may have either Front of Trefposs, and in such tale judgment in one action is a ball never the same evidence will maintain both the actions, there the recovery or judgment in one may be pleaded in the of the other; but otherwise not; and so this judgment will not clash with Ferrer's case, 6 Co. which is good in law; for here it is to be presumed that the plaintists in the first action had mistaken their action; for that they had brought a Trespass vi & armis, whereas they had no evidence to prove a wrongful taking, but only a demand and denial, and therefore the verdict passed against them in that action, and so were forced to begin in this new action of Trever. This judgment was given positively by Pembertan. Yones and myself, Dolben hassiante.

Upon Not guilty pleaded a special verdict was, That Skin. 59. one William Gault a denizen of England was owner of the 2 Show. 143. ship at the time of the taking, and was Dutch-built, and taken in the war between the Dutch and French as a Dutch prize, and condemned for prize in the court of admiralty of France, and fold, and that when the faid thip was taken as prize, there was amity between England and France. That the master was a Dutchman born, but a denizer of England. The mate was English, and eight mariners English, and two Dutch on board; That the said ship was sold to divers persons by virtue of the sentence of the admiralty of France, and that the plaintiff bought the faid ship from the persons to whom the same was sold as aforesaid; that the defendants as servants of the said William Gault took the said ship from the plaintiff; and if the detendants be guilty, &c.

The chief question intended was, Whether this sentence shall be examined by the common law? And resolved, It shall not, because though it be in another king's dominions, we ought to give credit to it, or else they will not give credit to the sentences of our courts of admiralty; and the desendants are at no prejudice; for the way is, if they find themselves aggrieved, to petition the king, who will examine the case, and if he finds cause of complaint, will send to his ambassador residing with the prince or state where the sentence was given, and upon failure of redress, will grant betters of marque and reprisal; and judgment was given for the plaintiff.

ESIGNY a merchant trading to Jamaica, spirited away the eldest son of one Turbet, who was a scho-Inr at Merchant-Taylors School, and a hopeful youth. Turbet exhibited an information against Defigury, and upon Not guilty pleaded he was found guilty at Nift Print before the chief justice Pemberton, the litting after Trinity-Term last, and this last Michaelmas-Torm he appeared in court, and was fined 500% and to lie in prison till he paid it; fines. which fine imposed, the prisoner procured a promise of a pardon of his fine; but the court last term being informed of it, and it being an offence of an heinous nature, directed the father of the child to bring a Homine Replegiant, and thereupon an Elongatus was returned, and the prisoner charged with it in prison; and now Defigny procured a lette letter from the commissioners of the treasury, fightfying his remiefty's inclination of pardoning the fine, if the judges of B. R. met at the lord chief justice's chamber in Serjeants Inn in Flort-Street; and upon hearing counsel of both fides, we could not think it reasonable to bail the prisoner upon the Withernam, but did propose, that is the prisoner would bring * 1000 L into court, we would give him his liberty, * P. 475. but the money to be forseited if he produced not the child within fix months, and gave him time to confider. It was answered, s. The defendant may bring an action epon the cale for the false return, and if it be found for the plaintiff, the defendant in the Homine Replegianda may be Bailed .

. 2. If the shoriff shall die before the issue tried, or the sction brought, then the king may issue out a commission to enquire of the truth of the return, which inquisition taken by virtue of the said commission may be traversed by the elefendant in the homine replegiands; and if the iffue upon that traverse be found for him, he shall be bailed. N Pridoy Jan. 5. 1682. In a matrimonial cause be-Courts, tween Emerton, alias Hyde, alias Dunblane, contr. Emerton, before commissioners of delegates, and to the tor-

mer commissioners a commission of adjuncts being procured, all the judges who were therein named, and were then in town received a note subscribed by the lord president of the council, the earl of Radnor, the duke of Ormond, lord steward of the houshold, Sir Leolin Jenkins knight, principal search of the civil law, condelegates with the judges, in these words,

We do appoint to meet and consult about a day for the hearing and determining this cause upon the ninth day of January next, in the council-chamber at White-hall, between the hours of nine and eleven in the forenoon of the same day, and do require the proctors on each side to attend accordingly, dated this fixteenth day of December 1682.

At the receipt whereof the judges were somewhat troubled, for that they heard nothing of it before, and it is to attend at White-hall, whereas all commissions of delegates, wherein any of the judges are named, have always been heretofore executed at one of the Serjeants Inns, because the judges are constantly employed in the public affairs of the kingdom, in the business in their several courts, and other things which cannot be done so conveniently for the subjects elsewhere; and also every summons upon such commissions used to be signed by one of the judges named in the commission, which was herein wanting; and thereupon fix of the judges repaired together to the lord keeper North to inform him of the matter, and to desire his directions, who teemed to advise that we attend according to the note, but put the judges in hope that the ancient course should be observed in hearing the cause; he told the judges that the like had been attempted in Henry Martin's time, under pretence, that because bishops were named in the commission, the committion ought to be executed at Doctors Commons, but the king ordered, that the judges should not stir from their usual places of executing such commissions. This (ut dicktur) did now arise from the promotion of Sir Leolin Jenkins, who is a civilian, and would favour his profession as much as might be.

And it was resolved, that no notice can be here taken of the place of the birth of the children, but of their last settlement, by 43 Eliz. cap. 2. because they are only poor children, and not vagabonds; but they which are rogues or vagabonds within 39 Eliz. cap. 4. shall be provided for by the place where they were born.

Duncomb and Singleton versus Sir William Walter. Error in C. B. Action upon the Case. Middlesex.

DUNCOMB and Singleton bring an action upon the Bankrupt. case against Sir William Walter, executor of David 1 Dany. Ab. Walter, esq; deceased, and set sorth that the said David 3 Lev. 57. Walter the testator, 21 November 30 Car. 2. was indebted 1 Vent. 370. to John Staley in 1000 L for so much by the said testator of Skin. 22, 87. the said Staley had and received, and so being indebted promiled to pay the same; and also that the said Staley for five years last past, before the said 21 November, was a goldfmith, and got his livelihood by buying and felling, and became indebted to Pigot in 200 L to Clayton in 600 L and being so indebted, the said 21 Nevember began to conceal himfelf in his house with an intention to defraud his creditors, and became thereby a bankrupt within the meaning of divers acts of parliament. That 20 Febr. 31 Car. 2. at the petition of Pigot and other creditors, exhibited to the lord chancellor, a commission issued out to certain commissioners to inquire thereof, who after the death of the testator, viz. 14 May 31 Cer. 2. by indepture assigned Staley's estate to the plaintiffs, by virtue whereof the plaintiffs are intitled to , the faid 100%. And the plaintiffs farther declare upon an Indebitatus Affumpsit for another 1000 l. by the desendant neceived for the use of the testator. Upon Non assumpsit pleaded, the jury find a special verdict, wiz. that before the plaintiffs original writ fued out, wiz. The said Elizabeth Clark made her will 5 July 1677. and made John Crew, esq; ber executer, and died, after whose death, and before Crew's . That afterwards, viz. 18 November 1678. which was before the return of the said writ, the said John Crew proved the said will. That the said 18 November 1678. the said David Walter received the said 1000 l. from the said John Staley, being before that time due to the said David Walter upon bond and judgment. That before the return of the said bill of Middlesex, viz. 26 Nov. 1678. the said John Staley voluntarily rendered himielf in discharge of his bail in the suit against him by the said John Crew, and was then committed to the prison of the Marsbalsea for want of bail. The

The words of the statute of 21 Jac. cap. 19. are, Being arrested for debt, shall after his or her arrest lie in prison two months or more upon that or any other arrest, or other detention in prison for debt. And in the said cases of arrest or lying in prison for such debt or debts, shall be adjudged a bank-rupt from the time of his or her said first arrest.

Dyoffe for the defendant in the writ of error. Here is an arrest and lying in prison two months after, and so within

1. Object. Here is not an immediate lying in prison upon the arrest, for here was bail put in.

Resp. The statute distinguishes not between the cases where bail is, and where it is not put in, and though the case may not be within the second clause, it will be within the first; for here was lying in prison two years.

2. Object. A man cannot be a bankrupt, but where there is a real debt due; but here Crew had not proved the will, and till then he could not claim the debt of the testator at

Resp. The money is due to the executor before probate, for he may release, as Middleton's case is, 5 Co. 28. a. And probate is only an allowance of the executorship, and an executor may before probate bring a writ, but not declare, 1 Roll. Abr. 917. A. pl. 2. And here the will was proved before the return of the writ; and where it is faid an executor cannot sue before probate, it is meant he cannot sue effectually.

This statute doth not distinguish between a legal and illegal arrest; and if a bankrupt should not become so from the first time of his arrest, he might make over his estate, and then deliver himself up to prison in discharge of his bail, and so elude the statute.

Walcot serjeant for the desendant. The question is, from what time Staley shall be accounted a bankrupt; and I conceive only from the time that he rendered himself in difcharge of his bail, viz. 20 November 1678. A trades- P. 482. man's being arrested barely, makes not a bankrupt. Et adjournatur.

IN the case of the town of Nottingham, it appeared, that at a common council of the faid town, it was ordered that there should be a surrender made of the charter to the king, and thereupon the mayor pursuant to the said order did take out of the town-cheft the said charter, and surrendered the same accordingly; and so it fell out, that in the said charter was contained not only the franchise of the corporation, but also the grant of certain common to the inhabitants, and because the surrender was against the minds of a great number of the inhabitants who were discontented, and were opposers of the present government of the kingdom, they took advantage of this omission, and exhibited an information into B. R. and defired the master of the crownoffice (in whose name the information was exhibited) to file it, but in regard it was matter of state, and of great concern, he this term defired the directions of the court, who ordered that the attorney general should be made acquainted therewith, who at another day appeared, and refused to meddle therewith, and so it was left to Mr. Astry to file or not to file, at his discretion, for the court would not use any compulsory means for filing it, in regard they could not know whether such an information was necessary or no; and it is properly the office of the king's attorney to manage informations of such concernment.

deputy-lieutenant for the county of Middlesex, one of the king's privy council for the realm of Ireland, and stood for to be chosen burgess for the parliament at Christ-Church in Com. Hants, and that the defendant spake these words of bim, viz. He is a Papist. Upon Not guilty pleaded, verdict for the plaintiff, and judgment; and now Clargis brought a writ of error, and judgment affirmed by all the four juftices, viz. Saunders, Jones, Dolbin and mysolf, and resolved, * P. 483. 1. That the words taken abstractively are actionable, * because the acts of parliament of 23 Eliz. 3 Jac. and 25 Car. 2. do expose a papist to several penalties and incapacities. 2. A fortieri, as the words have relation to the quality of the person, for a deputy lieutenant is an officer of great trust; and though 'twas objected, that 'tis not an office of profit, and so no prejudice to lose it: It was answered, That its of as much profit as a justice of peace; and yet the words spoke of a justice were adjudged actionable; and the times alter the law when the sense of words alter; for though formerly (papift) was not actionable, yet now 'tis grown to be a word of more reproach. So healer of follows was not actionable till it appeared to be a concealer of felone: and tofay of an attorney he is a knave, is actionable, though antiently knave was no more but servant. It was objected farther, farther, that to have the word popist to bear an action would be a means to discourage prosecution of papists. To which it was answered, That railing is no prosecution; and we must not punish the innacent, because we cannot exceed in our expressions of the pocent.

And the law doth alter with the time; for before 21 E. 3. 23. an infant could not bring an appeal; and we find no precedent before that time of an appeal so brought, but now

'tis frequent; and judgment was affirmed.

The defendant pleads, That the testator became bound by Skin 214. obligation, dated 18 May 26 Car. 2. in 6000l. to Brook and Wallis (trustees of Rebecca the defendant, upon her marriage with the said John Godolphin) upon condition to pay to the defendant berself 3000l. within sourteen days after the death of the said John, if she should survive him, and fays that she survived him, and that she hath not assets ultra 1000l. which she retains towards satisfaction of the said 3000l. The plaintist demurs generally, and I conceive judgment ought to be given for the defendant, and that it is a good plea.

1. I do agree, that if John Godolphin had made a stranger * P. 484. executor, there must have been an actual payment, or judgment upon the bond before this action brought, or else pleinment administre had not been a good plea.

2. If the payment here had been to be made to Brook and Wallis, though in trust fot the feme, retainer could not have been pleaded, though the law feems contrary, 3 Cro. 754. Huish versus Philips, where a bond was to A. to the use of B. conditioned to pay B. money, 'twas a good plea, that the obligor tendered the money to B. because he was in a manner privy to the obligation, and so is Co. Lit. 209. a.

3. But here though the bond be to Brook and Wallis, yet the condition is that the executors of John Godolphin shall pay to the wife herself the money, and she is administratrix herself; now she cannot pay to herself, and therefore the payment must be by way of retainer.

Object. She is but administratrix durante minori etate of Rebecca, so we cannot retain.

Resp. She may sell goods for payment of debts, 5 Co. 29. Prince's case, & eadem ratione the may retain to pay herself, Hob. 250. Bryars versus Goddard, administrator durante minori ætate may retain.

The defendants rejoin, that they did subscribe: and issue thereupon; and a trial at the bar upon all these istues.

. The counsel for the defendants took a challenge to the array, because the jury was out of the city of Warce flar; and it being suggested by the attorney general upon the roll, that the shoriff of the said city was one of the defendants, .. he prayed a Venire facias to the coroners, and that there were two coroners, and though both the faid coroners were mentioned upon the record to have returned the panel, yet that in truth, but one only, viz. Trimnel, did return the same, and so not good; but the court manimously resolved, that the challenge aught not to be allowed, because it appears by the record itself, that both did return the feite; and that no challenge contrary to the record ought: tombe. slowed.

Another challenge was taken to the polls, because the jurors had not any freehold within the city; and this challenge was debated by all the four judges, and it seemed to . them all, that it can be no good challenge, because the P. 486. Astute of 2 H. 5. 420. 3. doth not extend to this case, for . that is only in causes between party and party; nor doth 35 H. 8. cap. 6. reach thereto, because that statute cannot extend to cities and corporations, but to theriffs of counties at large; for if a panel made in corporations, must have freehold jusors, they must have likewise six bundredors, which cannot be in any corporation of England; and to 27 Eliz. sep. 6. But the jurors of corporations are to be at the common law; and though it is faid 3 Cro. 413. in Blunt's case, that there ought to be some freeholders, that cannot be intended in corporations, for in some corporations there are no freeholders at all, and so justice would fail; and by con-Stant practice in all the strials at Guildhell, London, by Nisi prius, no such challenge was ever made or allowed, and therefore it would be very milebievous after so long practice to the contrary to admit this challenge; and get nevertheless, because the counsel for the defendants were not well fatisfied with this resolution, I was defired by the other Gg judges of the court to know the opinion of the judges of the court of common pleas, and I discoursed with them, and propounded the challenge to them; and Pemberton chief justice, Wyndham and Charleton (Levinz being absent propter agritudinem) did clearly concur with us, and I returned their answer so to the court; and for not allowing these two challenges, the desendants counsel preserved a bill of exceptions, which they desired might be signed by us, that they might be afterwards enabled to alledge the same for error in parliament, if occasion should be.

Vide 17 Ass. In an inquest in an action of debt it was not allowed for a challenge, that the jurors had not sufficient land, because the freehold was not in demand.

Note; In the case of sir Henry Vane it was resolved 14. Car. 2. B. R. That a bill of exception doth not extend where prisoners are indicted at the suit of the king. Syder-fin Rep. 85.

Serenissimus Dominus noster Rex contr. Navem quand vocat. the Expesiation, alias Commerce of London.

HICH day the right worshipful Sir Thomas Exton the king's advocate, and Samuel Francklin, esq; his majesty's proctor, did on the behalf of our sovereign. lord the king propose that if captain Sands, or any of the parties, having any interest in the said ship and lading will give security into this court in the sum of 40,000 l. that the said thip shall not go nor trade with any insidel country within the limits of the East-India company's charter without his majesty's licence, pursuant to any order of the king and council lately presented to this court bearing date the 13th of this present month of December, or otherwise will take out a commission of appraisement to appraise the said. ship and the goods laden on board her, and give in bail in the double value of the said ship and goods according to the said appraisement, in case they will not unlade the said goods, or if they will take their goods out of the faid ship (which the king's advocate and proctor offered them to do if they should think fit) then in the double value only of the said ship, and of her tackle, apparel and furniture, that in fuch case the said ship may be decreed to be released from the arrest she now lies under, otherwise they prayed that the may still be continued under the said arrest until such bail be given as aforesaid in the presence of the said captain Sands and Mr. Chapman, his proctor, dissenting and alledging, offering and praying as in the former act of this court is contained.

Whereupon the judges declared and offered, that any of the persons concerned in the said goods and lading may unlade and take their goods out of the said ship, if they please, and that, if they will so take them out, he will require bail and of her tackle, apparel and furniture, according to the appraisement to be made as aforesaid; and farther declared that if captain Sands and the persons chiefly concerned with him in this business will affirm upon oath, that they did not design or intend to go or trade, nor will go or trade with the said ship in any insidel country within the limits of the East-India company's charter without his majesty's licence, that then he will take their juratory caution, and will decree the faid ship to be released from the faid arrest without requiring any other or further caution or security; which they refusing, and also refusing to give in bail as sforesaid, the judge decreed that the said ship with her tackle, apparel and furniture should still continue under the arrest of this court until such bail be given as above required. The ensuing case and argument I had from the lord chief justice North, May 25. 1681.

Carter versus Crawley. In Probibition.

OBERT HAMOND died intestate leaving neither Distribution. wife nor child, father nor mother, brother nor sister,_ nor uncle. The administration was granted to Agnes, the plaintiff's wife, the furviving lifter of the intestate's father. The defendants are the children of Margaret the other sister of the intestate's father, who sue in the Spiritual Court to have a proportion upon distribution according to the late act of 22 & 23 Car. 2 cap. 20. for fettling of intestates estates, and the judge did award distribution; whereupon they prayed a prohibition. And the defendants appearing to an attachment upon the prohibition, and denying the contempt, fet forth this matter in a plea to have a consultation; where

*P. 497. The question is single, the intestate having neither wife nor child, nor father nor mother, but his next of kin being two aunts, one whereof was dead in his life-time, and the other having administration, whether the children of the deceased aunt shall be admitted Jure representations in loco parentis to demand a share upon distribution, as their mother should have had if living.

It depends upon the exposition of the act for settling intestates estates, and is of great consequence; for whatever is determined by the common law to be the true meaning of this act must be a rule to the exclesiastical courts, for the courts of common law are entrusted with the exposition of acts of parliament, and we ought not to suffer them to proceed in any other manner than thall be adjudged by the king's courts to be the true meaning of this act; therefore if this court shall award a consultation upon this point, it is final, and this sentence cannot be corrected by any appeals

Because the ecclesiastical courts did before this statute exercise a kind of jurisdiction of distribution, of which notice is taken by the act, as if it were legal; whereas by our law nosuch jurisdiction was allowed, but prohibitions were sent to restrain them therein, and this act intended to restore this jurisdiation.

It will not be amiss to take a short view of the history of their practice.

Ecclesiastical courts anciently grasped at a large jurisdiction De Debitis & Catallis upon pretence of taking cautionary oaths to perform contracts and such like; and then upon breach thereof did proceed Pro lassoni Fidei; but by statutes and mandatory writs they were contained within their due bounds not to meddle De Debitis & catallis (which were temporal things) nisi de Testamentis & Matrimonio.

In the jurisdiction de Testamentis & de Débitis & Catalir relating to them, their power was very large by the common law; for if there were no will appearing, the ordinary had-

If they would not pay debts with the estate, yet they were so far intrusted that they were not subject to suit until 13 E. 1. Westm. 2. c. 19. which subjected them to the said of the creditors in the same manner as executors were.

Upon this their meddling with deceaseds estates, which was very beneficial before, became very troublesome, and to free themselves from it they were fain to put the administration

nistrators might have the power to sue, it was answered, that the ordinaries might sue sith they were to answer; whereby it appears that parliament would not discharge them of the burthen, or take notice of administrators otherwise than as their servants or attornies:

But 13 E. 3. eased them in this particular, for they being thereby bound to grant administration to the best sriend of the intestate, and the administrators being made as executors, they retained only the sase jurisdiction of granting administration and calling the administrators to account.

The common law was hereupon to judge who were the best friends, and therefore if there were husband or wife, in default of them, son or daughter, in default of them or their children, father or mother, in default of them, brothers or sisters, in default of them or their children, uncles or aunts, the ordinary was compellable to grant administration to them in their several orders.

They were bound to grant to the next friends, if they were loyal, but if they were many in equal degree, perhaps they were not bound to grant administration to all, but might choose the most fit person for avoiding consuson.

22 H. 8. This was made plain, for thereby they had a liberty expressly provided to refuse the wise, if they pleased; and if they were many in equal degree of the next of kindred, to grant administration to which they please, and refuse the rest, which liberty was a great advantage to their jurisdiction.

For they would choose him that was most obsequious to them, and when they called to account upon pretence of bestowing the overplus for the good of the deceased's soul (a device in those popula times to make profit to the clergy)

Upon the reformation that pretence vanished, but they thought it allowable to distribute the overplus amongst the kindred, according to the rules of the civil law, de Successorie bus ab Intestate. And this was so reasonable, that they used that course without blame a great while, and inserted a clause into all their bonds for security to account to the ordinary, that the overplus upon such account should be distributed as the ordinary should appoint.

Which was more than they could justify, and it came to be questioned in Slang's case, Hob. 83. and Moor 864. but

P. 499- ended by reference, and afterwards in Took and Louw's case, Hob. 191. The administrators were willing to make a reasonable distribution; but their adversaries not being satisfied, appealed to the delegates, which unreasonable opposition drove the administrators to the king's courts, where it was resolved that he was not compellable to make any distribution at all; and accordingly it was resolved in Fetherly's case, 2 Car. 1. 1 Cr. 62. and Levennus's case, 6 Car. 1. 1 Cro. 201. whereby the law came to be settled and known, that they could neither compel administrators to make distribution by suit in the spiritual court, nor sue any bonds taken for that purpose.

The only way then left for them was this, whilst they were under deliberation whether they would grant adminification to the wife or next of kin, and to which of the next of kin, they did treat with the parties, and consider what sum the overplus was like to amount unto, how that ought by their rules to be distributed, and they would prefer him to the administration that would beforehand perform such distribution by payment of monies, and giving security to persons unto whom it was appointed; and this practice held till the making of this act whereon the question arises.

The occasion of making this act was, because it was found very inconvenient for any administrator to pay before he received; it was hard for him to know what he might undertake before he had possession, and the judge could not have a perfect knowledge of the true value of the overplus to give him in the measure of his distribution till after the administration ended, and the account of the estate taken.

There were public inconveniencies, which were urged to the parliament by the civilians, who yet had another reason to desire the former methods might be changed; for the allotting distributions in this manner was but a barren jurif-diction that could not be drawn out in length; all disputes were ended uno flatu without appeal, and the accounts of administrators were never contested when there was no adversary concerned to demand a share in the overplus upon taking them.

Having said thus much concerning their practice before the act of parliament, and the causes of making this law, I will now proceed to the exposition of it.

The statute is Introductivum novi juris, and therefore ought to receive a strict interpretation in restraint of distibutions, which are hereby introduced against the policy of former laws.

Refere

Before the statute the administrator that had all the bur- P. 500. then of the administration had likewise the benefit, and when he had paid all the debts and legacies, was never more questioned upon his account, because no man could demand the overplus from him; but now by this law the overplus is given away, and he is to have no part of it, but as he fands related to the intestate, no recompence for his pains, no more than he should have had if another had been administrator. And here is not only Lucrum ceffans, but Demnust emergens, for at the end of his administration he must give an account, which will be disputed by the parties concerned, and if he hath not acted very cautiously may bring a confiderable loss upon him.

Methicks we should expound this act as much in favour of administrators as we can in restraint of distributions and remote representatives, that are brought to participate of the benefit of the administrators thrift and good management.

, But I admit that all acts of parliament are to be expounded according to the true meaning to be collected from the words of them, and that must be a rule in this case; therefore I will endeavour to find out that meaning, 1. By considering the reason of distribution, and the practice in the eceleliastical court grounded upon that reason, as it was before this statute. 2. By considering the words of the act relating to this clause.

As to the rules of spiritual courts in ordering distribution, I should have been glad the parties would have brought civi--lians to have informed us concerning the grounds of their Asw and practice in this particular.

- Not having had that assistance, I have considered in the best manner I can upon the nature of the thing, whereupon I apprehend there are two motives of distribution, one in -respect of the intestate, another in respect of the ordinary that grants administration.

In respect of the intestate it may be thought an obligation upon every man to provide for those which descend from his loins; and as the administrator is to discharge all other debts; so this debt to nature should likewise exact a distribution, to all that descend from him in the lineal degrees,

- And because those which are remote have not so much of his blood, therefore the measure should be according to the stocks, more or less as they stand in relation to him.

grees in the lineal descent.

There

* P. 501. There is no such obligation to the remote dindered in a collateral-line, therefore they are not regarded but in respect of proximity as they are next of kin, it being to be supposed, every man would leave his estate to his next kindered: but the children of those that are deceased come not within this reason, for they are a degree more remote.

In respect of the ordinary it may be considered that those that are of equal degree and next of kin, be they never so many, ought to be looked upon by the ordinary with an equal eye, therefore when he has preferred one to the ministration, he ought to give some recompense to the others, that he may not appear partial, they being as capable to demand and have administration as the other. But the children of those which are deceased have not the same pretence; for they were not capable to contest the administration.

Another reason there is to exclude representations in remote degrees, that thereby the estate might come to be divided into so many and so small parts that the benefit would not be valuable.

I have heard vivilians fay, that representations are sejected in remote-degrees of colleterals by their law upon this ground.

Now the case of brothers children is of a mined consideration, 1. In respect of the obligation, for the intestate was a kind of parent to his brothers children, and in that respect marriages between them are prohibited. 2. There is no danger that the subdivisions should be very many and the estate reduced into very small parts; for brothers and sisters cannot be many, as cousin germans and other remote degree may, therefore there may be reason to admit brothers children to distribution by representation, and reject all farther degrees.

Having touched the reasons whereupon I suppose distribution grounded, concerning the practice, I can only say what I have learnt by enquiry from civilians of any acquaintance, having had no other means to be informed of it, the bar not having produced any precedents of the spiritual courts on either side.

In the case at bar the order of the spiritual court is for a distribution to the brothers children of the collaterals, who are not the intestates brothers children; and by that it should seem as if their law (if we should let them along) would carry on the distribution by representations to a more remote degree.

But I have been informed by eminent civilians of my acquaintance, I suppose I may name them without their displeasure, fir Leoline Jenkins, judge of the prerogative court, and fir Robert Wiseman dean of the arches, that it is the constant and clear practice of their court to reject all representations of collaterals, except children of the intestate's brothers and sisters.

I am forcy the plaintiff in this prohibition did not feek redress by way of appeal, that we might have seen what would have been finally ordered in their law, by which we might have known how their law stood, as to this point, which might have given us some light towards the understanding this act.

I must consess that I do acquiesce in the opinion of those learned men, and take their law to stand in this point for the exclusion of all representations to remote collaterals. I give little credit to the sentence in this cause: I remember the same judge, the archdeacon of Huntington, the other day ordered distribution amongst the kindred of the first intestate upon an administration cum Testamento annexo, where the residuum bonorum was devised to the executor, who died intestate, whose next of kin ought clearly to have had it, which occasioned our granting a prohibition upon sight of the sentence. This being the same judge, I have the less reverence for his opinion in the other matter.

I will now consider the words of the act of parliament, whereupon this question ariseth, they are these,

- [The residue of the said estate to be distributed equally to every of the next of kindred of the intestate, who are in equal degree, and those who legally represent them.

Provided that there be no representations admitted amongst · colderals after brothers and sisters children.]

Upon these words, the question is thus, Whether in the collateral line, only the intestate's brothers and sisters children can be admitted to have distribution fure representations in loco parentis, or whether representations are admitted in remoter degrees of collaterals, to the children of such as were brothers and sisters to the collaterals.

In short, whether the words brother and sister shall relate to the intestate, or to the collaterals.

I hold, that the words of the act must be understood of brothers and sisters to the intestate, and not of brothers and sisters of remoter collaterals; for these reasons:

• 1. All other relative terms generally expressed through • P. 503. the whole act have the intestate for their correlative, so (wife) is meant wise of the intestate, (children) are children of the intestate, (heir at law) is of the intestate, so that in the most plain and obvious sense, the intestate ought here to be taken for the correlative to the words brothers and sisters.

2. My second reason is, Because the distribution is given by the act for their relation to the intestate, and not for their relation to the collaterals, therefore the relation mentioned ought naturally to refer to the intestate, and not to the collaterals. There may be cases put wherein brothers and sisters children of collaterals may be no kin to the intestate, if they were by the half blood, and it cannot be pretended that such shall have a share in the distribution. Now why should the words be taken in the sense that comprehends those that have no title to distribution?

3. My third reason is, Because as these words comprehend more than ought to have distribution in some instances, so they fall short and leave out many that by parity of reason ought to have distribution, and therefore this sense they would put upon the words is very improper.

As for instance.

Suppose the next of kin are nephews by several brothers, and some of them are dead, leaving children, these children are not brothers children to the collaterals, and cannot within the words claim any share; but if by chance any of them had had uncles surviving, then they had been brothers children to the collaterals.

So if the next of kin are cousin-germans, and some of them are brothers to one another, others are not; the children of such of them as had brothers that survived the testator shall have a share, but the children of such who had no surviving brothers shall have no share, which is most absurd, for they ought to have a share as they relate to the intestate, and not as they relate to the collaterals.

I must needs say it is hard to imagine the parliament could oversee these absurdities which are so plain in consequence, and they had been so easily avoided, that we ought for that reason to believe, that they meant the relation to the intestates in this as well as other places.

If they had meant the relation should have been to the collaterals, how easily might it have been expressed so, and by words that would have brought in all cases in parity of P. 504. degree, as if it had been thus expressed (Provided that there be no representations admitted among st collaterals after their children)

This had been without ambiguity or question, and it had extended extended to all cases in pari gradu, and to no case but where there was kindered to the intestate.

I cannot imagine the parliament meant to let in reprefentations in remote degrees, because they might so easily have expressed it in plain terms, and they would certainly have done it in this act, which is carefully penned in other parts of it.

- 4. A fourth reason is, Because the excluding representations in a remote degree agrees with the reasons upon which distribution is grounded. For, 1. Nephews and nieces to the intestate are of so near relation, the intestate. having been as a parent to them, that they are of great regard, whereas remoter degrees have no regard but for their proximity (because there are none nearer) and therefore no reason to admit representations amongst them, to bring in a remote degree to share with those that are nearer of kin. 2. Again, Nephews and nieces cannot be many, so that the division cannot come into very many parcels; but in a remote degree there may be very many of the same degree, and to admit a subdivision to the children of any deceased would make the shares of such children very inconsiderable, not worth demanding.
- 5. My fifth reason is, Because by the opinion of the learned, the law and practice of the spiritual courts before this act did exclude all representations of collaterals, after the intestates nephews and nieces.

The whole scope of the act was to make their jurisdiction as to distribution legal, which before was condemned by the king's courts, and the words of the act (legally reprefenting) (pro suo cuiq; jure) and (according to the laws in such cases) and (the rules and limitations set down) shew that there is a reference to their laws. Now if there were an opinion this way before the act; there is great reason to believe this clause was founded upon that opinion, and to expound it that way. I never heard of any opinion that before the act the representations were bounded to brothers children of collaterals. It may be the learned Doctor who hath ordered distribution in this case, has done it upon an imagination, that this clause has changed their law in this particular, taking it in that sense that my brothers do that have argued against me.

- I shall now observe the objections that are made s- * P. 505.
- 1. Object. They say, Ad proximum antecedens fiat relatio, and the next precedent relative is the word Collaterals.
 - Sol. This maxim hath always this restraint, that it must Hh 2 agree 'agree with the sense, so that it admits an enquiry which relative best agrees with the sense, and we must judge according to the sense, and not by the order of words.

2. Object. They say it is strange this Provise should restrain representations of collaterals to one particular case, which were left under a generality before.

- Sol. I see no cause of wonder, if it were so; but that which is called a generality, is by the words (legal representatives) and if by the course of their law representations were not admitted to other collaterals than brothers and disters children, then those remoter degrees had no legal representations; so that this clause is but explanatory of the word (legal) in the sense of their law, our law having no notice of it at all.
- 3. Object. They say there is no inconvenience in the other exposition, but it seems reasonable that the nephews in all cases should have a share with the uncles.
- Sol. I have already shewn by my reasons, that by the other exposition the symmetry and reason upon which distribution is grounded fails, and many absurd cases will sollow upon it.
- 4. Object. Then they object that there are few acts of parliament that provide for all cases; there are Casus omission upon the most clear laws, and the sense of an act must not for that be lost.
- Sol. I confess a law clearly penned shall have its force in cases it does reach, though it does not reach all cases; but where a law is penned, that it may be expounded one way or other, and there is a question of the meaning of it, it is more natural to believe it was meant in that way that is clear, and that reaches all cases that are in parity of reason, than in that way that has absurd consequences, as this hath, both by including those which were not intended, and leaving out those which stand in the same degree, as I shewed before.

To conclude, I conceive this act was intended for a plain rule, and I think it much better to interpret it in the most plain and obvious sense which will establish the succession of personal estates, according to reason and symmetry, than to strain to find out another sense for the sake of remote kindred, that are of no regard, which will produce apparent absurdities, and subject personal estates to sanciful and intricate disputes, that will need another act to compose and settle.

Having defired the opinion of the learned Doctors of Doctors-Commons upon the question following,

Whether before the late statute of 22 Car. 2. for settling intestates estates upon ordering distributions, representations were admitted amongst collaterals in remote degrees? or, Whether there were any bounds set by their law or practice beyond which representations were rejected, and what those bounds were? or, Whether it was not merely discretionary as the ordinary thought sit? I received this answer from them:

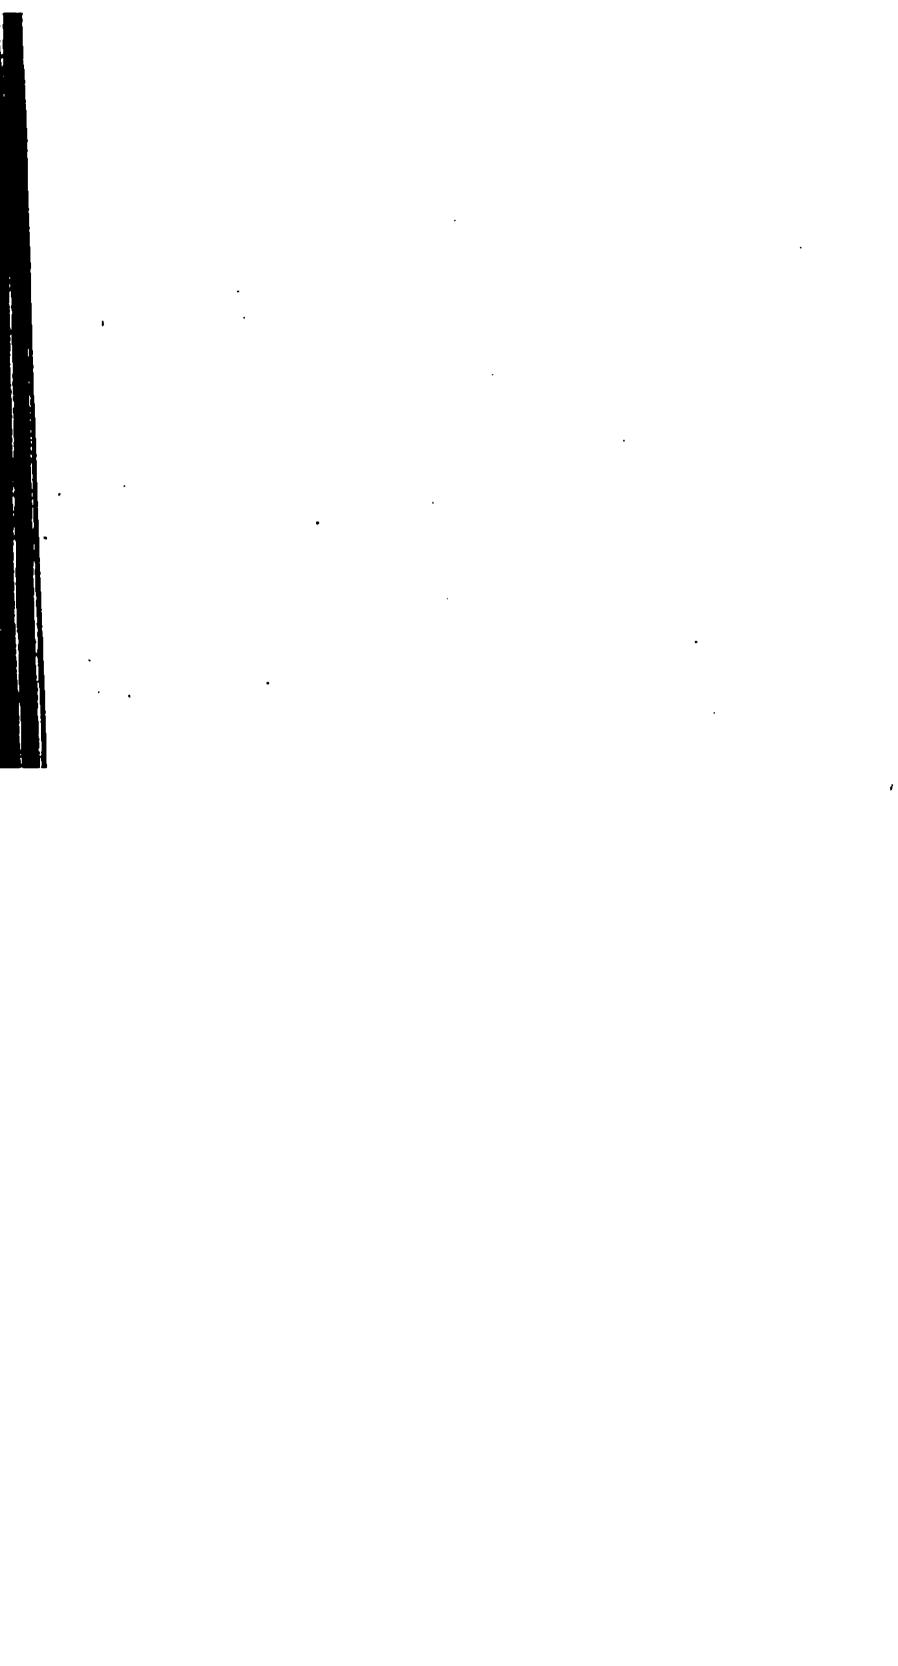

In making distributions of intestates estates amongst collaterals, our civil law, and the practice of the ecclesiastical courts have constantly observed these two rules.

The first is, Repræsentatio in filius fratrum & sororum tantum locum habet, ad ulteriores vero Collaterales non extenditur.

The second is, That in case there be no brothers nor brothers children, vocantur ad successionem reliqui Collaterales quicunq; in gradu sunt proximiores, remotioribus exclusss. Ita quod infallibiliter semper prior in gradu sit potior in successione, whereby representation must needs be out of doors, the next of kin, whether one or more being only to be admitted to the distribution.

ABATEMENT, see PLEADING.

TANY things may be pleaded in bar and in abatement Pages 57, 395. Payment to the plaintiff, or a stranger, is a plea in discharge, and yet it may be pleaded in bar, ibid. A plea in abatement Puis darrein continuance in a real action is peremptory, 118, 119 -Where an action founded on contract is brought against two, and the one dies, the writ shall abate, although they are executors; but in actions of trespass which are grounded upon a tort, the death of one shall not abute the writ, 131, 463 In an Indebitatus Assumpst by five executors for monies received to the testator's use: the defendant pleads in abatement that two of the plaintiffs are under the age of seventeen years; the plaintiff

demurs; and if the third that was full of age, and the infants, ought to join, was the question; but not resolved, Page 198

ACCORD.

Accord is no good plea to an action of trespals and assault, execured in the whole, In an Indebitatus Assumpsit for wates fold; the defendant pleads an agreement betwixt the plaintiffand the defendant, and the fon of the defendant, that the plaintiff should deliver to the defendant divers clothes of the defendant's wife's, then in her cuttody, and that the plaintiff should accept his son for her pay-master for 9 l. in full satisfaction of the Assumpsit, and shews the delivery of the clothes by the plaintiff, and that the son at the day tendered the 91. and the plaintiff refused it; and that the son was always fince, and yet is ready to pay the same; the plaintiff demurs. For although as was alledged, of ancient time the pleading an accord without execution of the whole, was not good, according to the resolution in Peyto's case, yet of late it hath been held, that on mutual promiles an action lies, and confequently there being equal temedies, an accord may be pleaded without execution; which was agreed by the court, Page 450 Yet in the principal case judgment was given for the plaintiff. 1. Because it doth not appear that there is any consideration that the son should pay the 91. but only a bare agreement. 2. Admit the agreement would bind, yet now by the statute of frauds and perjuries, this agreement ought to be in writing, or elfe the plaintiff could not have any remedy thereon; and though on tuch agreement the plaintiff need not fet forth the agreement to be in writing; yet when the defendant pleads such an agreement in bar, he must plead it so as it may appear to the court, that an action will lie upon it; for he shall not take away the plaintiff's action, and not give him another upon the agreement pleaded, 450

ACCOUNT.

In account, and judgment quod computet, the defendant before auditors pleads a special plea, (viz.) the act of oblivion, and it seemed to the court to be a good plea, and needed not to be pleaded in bar to the first action,

A TABILE OF &c.

USURY.

If the party who lends the money, contracts for more than for 61. per Cent. all the assurance is void; but if he doth not contract for more than the statute allows, and after he will take more, the assurance shall not be avoided, but the party shall forfeit the treble value,
